

ELECTION CLERK IS ACCUSED OF TRYING TO INFLUENCE VOTERS

One of Women Election Officials Cautions Alleged Violator of Corrupt Practices.

SECTION OF ACT IS GIVEN

Fine of $5 to $100 Provided for as Penalty—Offending Official May Have to Explain His Conduct.

Although the corrupt practices act prohibits any electioneering on election day, one of the clerks of election in precinct 48, Broadway and Columbia streets, was heard this morning urging voters to vote against the dental initiative measure.

C. S. Woodruff was in line waiting for his ballot when he heard the clerk electioneering against the initiative measure. The clerk was talking to G. Raymond, who was also there to vote.

One of the women election clerks cautioned the clerk that it was unlawful for him to electioneer.

Evidently, to show his disregard for the law, the clerk then stood up and made a campaign talk against the measure, loud enough for all the voters at the polling place to hear.

When "Painless" Parker, who initiated the measure, heard of the clerk's activities, he immediately started out to make an investigation, and probably will take some action against the official.

Section 2518 of the corrupt practices act says:

"It shall be unlawful for any person, at any place on the day of any election, to ask, solicit, or in any manner try to induce or persuade any voter on such election day to vote for or refrain from voting for any candidate, or the candidates or ticket of any political party or organization, or any measure submitted to the people, or upon conviction thereof he shall be punished by fine of not less than $5 nor more than $100 for the first offense, and for the second and each subsequent offense occurring on the same or different election days, he shall be punished by fine as aforesaid, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than five nor more than 30 days, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

Three Boys Are Held To Juvenile Court

Action of Police in Taking Three Other Lads Standing Nearby When Arrests Made Causes Indignation.

Three boys living in the middle east side district arrested Sunday for burglary of stores on Union avenue were held to the juvenile court yesterday afternoon in the municipal court. They are Lafayette Coley, William Smith and Stanley Gray.

Each of the lads confessed to the larceny of small articles taken from the stores. They had secreted the stolen goods under a house in this district.

When the detectives caught the boys Sunday evening, the officers also detained and questioned Gene Knowler, Harry Shank and Herold Creswell, who were standing near by when the other boys were arrested.

It developed that these boys were in no way implicated and they were immediately permitted to go home. No charge was placed against them. The parents of these boys were indignant because the detectives had taken them to the police station.

possessing the most endurance and capable of filing fresh reserves into the fray from time to time as they are badly needed."

The transfer of the British troops from the vicinity of Paris to the sea coast to resist the German attack in that quarter was said to have been accomplished without loss or a hitch, the men moving noiselessly at night and sometimes evacuating trenches only 100 yards from those occupied by the Germans, without the latter's knowledge.

October 21, it was stated, the Germans attacked the allies' entire line but were repulsed. Six thousand of their dead were declared to have been left on the field in the vicinity of Armentieres alone, one battalion of the One Hundred and Fourth German regiment was mentioned as having lost nearly its entire strength and most of the balance of the regiment as having been wiped out later in the fighting north of River Lys.

Britons, captured by the Germans and subsequently rescued by the allies, were quoted as paying a tribute to their captors on account of the humane treatment accorded to their prisoners.

The report severely criticized the German officers, declaring they showed "defiant faith of leadership" which the almost superhuman bravery of the soldiers cannot counterbalance."

Girl Reported as Being Held Up

Robber Forces Victim to Give Up Her Gold Ring on Macadam Road; Police Notified.

A. H. Miller of Palatine Hill last evening reported to the police that his 14-year-old daughter was held up late yesterday afternoon by a stranger on the Macadam road, a short distance from the Sellwood ferry landing. The man forced the girl to take off her gold ring and give it to him, and then he ran away.

The girl says the stranger stopped her and asked a question, then demanded her ring. She refused and attempted to run past him on the highway, but the man seized her and forced the ring from her. In the scuffle, the daughter says she knocked off the man's eye glasses and broke them.

The man is described as about 30 years old, five feet and seven inches tall, smooth shaven, wore brown suit and hat.

TURKISH AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA IS BEATEN BY HIS OWN SERVANTS

The sultan's partial apology for acts of hostility committed by Ottoman warships against Russian ports, and his sea shipping. Hostilities apparently being inevitable, the ambassador immediately began preparations to leave. The Russian ambassador, therefore, demanded four months' arrears of pay. Faredin replied that it would be forthcoming when the Turks took Odessa.

The attack on him followed. One clerk struck him on the jaw. The police were called, but refused to interfere. Members of his staff finally succeeded, however, in protecting the departing Turkish diplomat, and the party left by way of Finland shortly afterward.

Turkish War Welcomed.
"Russia," proclaimed the manifesto which the czar issued today welcoming war with the sultan, "will receive this fresh aggression on the part of the ancient persecutor of the Christian people with tranquility. The Slavs will meet the issue with confidence, recalling that, with God's help, their valiant armies will triumph again over the Turkish hordes and punish the insolent foes of the fatherland."

It was expected that within a week an imperial decree would be issued expelling all Turks from Russia.

The sultan's apology took the form of an expression of regret for the attack on Russia in the Black sea, and an offer to withdraw his fleet from those waters. The allies insisted, however, that the cruisers Goeben and Breslau be put out of commission until the end of the war, that the German officers in the Ottoman service be dismissed, and, according to some accounts, that the Turkish army be demobilized.

Apology Not Expected.
The Constantinople government showed no signs of acceding to these terms, and, indeed, it was doubted if the Turkish war party, led by Enver Pasha, the war minister, a highly influential personage at the sultan's capital, would even acquiesce in the apology.

Reports were current that the Russian Black sea fleet was already concentrated and awaiting the Turkish squadron's attack. Navy officers expressed entire confidence that the czar's forces would win easily.

They asserted, too, that the fighting effectiveness of the German cruiser Goeben had been much overrated. During its recent bombardment of Sevastopol, they stated, the vessel was hit by a shot from one of the allied forts, which damaged the mechanism of the turrets, interfering with the manipulation of the guns. So badly, in fact, was the ship disabled it was asserted that it was deemed the highly trained German crew would be wasted on board it and the men were accordingly distributed among the sultan's other fighting craft.

Attack on Accounts.
Unconfirmed accounts were received of fighting between the Russians and Turks in the Caucasus.

Whether or not a clash actually occurred, it was definitely and officially announced that the viceroy in that territory had been ordered to cross into Turkey and attack the Turkish troops said to be massing on the sultan's side of the frontier.

Along the Russian and Austro-German front, it was said, the Slav offensive continued, the Austro-German forces being badly handicapped by the miring of their guns.

TURKS' ARMY ONE OF BEST IN EUROPE AND HAS 1,000,000 MEN

London, Oct. 17.—(By mail to New York)—If Turkey enters the European war it will bring to the Teutonic alliance aid of a formidable army of a million, which, though small, does include several really serviceable small fighting vessels.

The sultan's army, on a war footing, numbers at least 1,000,000 men. Military experts are all enthusiastic over them as fighters, too. Their poor showing in the Balkan war was attributed by high authorities to the breakdown of the officers' corps and to the complete lack of organization and not to any lack of courage or efficiency among the rank and file.

Realizing the Turkish previous weakness, the Germans have already sent more than 500 officers to take charge of the Ottoman forces. Enver Pasha, as war minister, has completely reorganized his country's military system and now there is no disposition on the allies' part to minimize the prospective enemy's strength.

The Turkish first line troops (the Nizam) are supposed to spend three years with the colors and six years with the reserves. From the Nizam they pass into the second line (the Redif) and afterward into the third class (the Mustahfiz).

Most of the troops of all these classes have already been called to the colors.

Before the addition of the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, the sultan's navy consisted of three old battleships, two small cruisers of doubtful fighting value, eight destroyers, three torpedo gunboats and nine torpedo-boats. These smaller craft, as well as the Goeben and the Breslau, are all in good fighting condition.

The two former German ships still retain their old crews, and it is reported that a large number of German officers have recently reported to the Turkish admiralty for service. Incidentally, the entire Turkish navy was but recently reorganized by British naval officers.

ATTEMPT TO BRING DISCREDIT ON WORD ENDS IN A FAILURE

Man, Bearing Copies of the News, Interrupts a Meeting Held at Gresham.

CROWD BACKS SHERIFF

Intruder and Woman Companion Forced to Leave Hall; Street Disturbance Prevented by Sheriff.

An attempt was made last night at Gresham to discredit Sheriff Word as he was addressing a meeting in the theatre there, but the attempt ended disastrously. While Word was speaking a man entered the hall carrying an armful of copies of the News. He held up his head as he came down the aisle and asked permission to question Mr. Word.

"Why were you so disgraceful in the Portland streets during the labor troubles and why did you pull worthy citizens from the boxes from which they were speaking?" he asked when permission was given.

"Where you present at the time?" questioned the sheriff. "If you heard the speakers all the flag of our country a dirty rag and you heard churches, preachers, nuns and other blood-curdling noise which no man with red blood could listen to without disgust and anger."

In the roar of applause which followed the man, who gave his name as Wilson, and his woman companion were marched from the hall.

Sheriff Word apologized to the audience for the words he used in denouncing the pair and asked them whether they wanted a sheriff who was merely a Republican or one who would enforce the laws.

With one accord the crowd yelled, "We want you."

"I would have taken the governor of this state or any other man or woman from those boxes had they lowered themselves to do and say the things that the speakers did," went on Sheriff Word.

The man, who interrupted, tried to raise a disturbance in the street in front of the hall during the remainder of the meeting. Word finally went out and sent him away, followed by a crowd of boys jering and shouting. The copies of the News which the pair distributed were thrown into the mud of the street and tramped upon.

The sheriff and his woman companion stood in the doorway to listen. After the meeting all remained to shake hands with Word and assure him of their support.
