Success of Anti-Capital Punishment Measure Is Due to Paul Turner.

Paul Turner, the man who formuated and put on the ballot the measre abolishing capital punishment in regon, is well known in many parts of the state as an advocate of reform neasures. He advocated a similar neasure two years ago, when it was lefeated by over 22,000 majority. It equired some devotion to principle ind considerable determination to start out alone, secure funds and obtain the 12,000 signatures. Turner walted for others to start the campaign until patience ceased to be a rirtue. Without a cent to start with, had credit with a printing company o secure the necessary printing of be petition, and in the latter part of pril secured his first donation, which was from James B. Kerr. The aid of t. A. Harris, state printer, was a reat encouragement. C. E. S. Wood. erald, Alfred D. Cridge, Mrs. I. Wittenberg, W. G. MacLaren and Raiph C. Clyde gave means and efforts to the siccessful work of securing the peti-

Washington, Nov. 26 .- In writing to he. National Geographic society of his city, C. Townley-Fullam says that has sung its race back to its ancient rural Hungary is upon the plane of freedom. It has sung, in the sweet rural England. "Physically, she has mother tongue that but for it had been beauty all her own," he writes, and long forgotten, of the glorious dead then continues:

"True, the noble magnificence of the English estate is not reproduced; and of regret; never of despair. For but there is a general air of the feudal it has withal that touch of humor radition, heightened by castle, tower nd battlement, which bring Norman England appreciably nearer. Abbies and monasteries, creations of pure architectural beauty there are not; but the Rococo, the Seccessio, and that splendid Moorish type which passes, strangely enough for Gothic, fairly represent the achievements. The baoutal splendors of the old homes of he magnates are first patriarchal and hen wonderful.

"Rural Hungary is still the dream other days, the quaint, still life which brooded in pre-Renaissance picures and peeps out under the magic of Washington Irving's touch-restful. illuring and casting the reflective grace of innocence upon its mighty sons.
