

SOLDIERS OF MANY KINDS ARE EVERY DAY SIGHT IN BELGIAN CAPITAL

A street scene in Brussels in which German infantrymen, a German marine, a German Red Cross attendant, and a member of the Brussels civic guard are seen. This photograph shows the polyglot of fighting men seen daily in Brussels

SOME OF THE EAST INDIAN SOLDIERS WHOM LORD ROBERTS WENT TO SEE

These swarthy warriors are seen weighing out their daily rations. Their ways are queer, but their fighting qualities such as to endear them to the late Lord Roberts, who died in France on a visit to the English troops —Photographs copyright, 1914, by the International News Service.