LEARD AND MELOAN GO TO THE SEALS BY OUTRIGHT PURCHASE

Los Angeles Fans Surprised at Sale of Venice Infielder and Outfielder.

Los Angeles, Jan. 11.—Los Angeles fans regarded today with mixed emotions the sale to San Francisco by Vernon of Infielder Bill Leard and Outfielder Molly Meloen.

Leard, it was admitted, had outlived some of his usefulness to Vernon, but Meloen's rapid return to form during the last half of the 1914 season had led many to believe that he would be a regular next year in the Vernon outfit.

According to President Maier of Vernon, Leard and Meloen were sold outright. They will report to San Francisco when the Seals go into spring training.

PURTELL COMES TO VERNONS TO REPLACE LEARD

Veteran Infielder Purchased From Detroit Tigers by Ed Maier.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 11.—President Maier of the Vernon Coast league baseball club, confirmed today a report from Detroit that he had purchased Infielder Billy Purtell from the Tigers. The newcomer probably will fill the second base hole made by the sale of Bill Leard.

Purtell is a veteran of many big league campaigns. Sent to the minors three years ago, he staged a comeback in 1913, and was traded by Detroit from the Jersey City Internationals. He was on the bench most of last season.

Purtell took part in 26 games last year with Detroit. He batted .317, making 13 hits in 76 times at bat. He scored four runs. His fielding average in 16 games at third base was .946. This is not a very impressive record.

Harvard Men Regret, Too.

Harvard men, as well as all real lovers of sport, regret seeing Michigan dropped from the Harvard schedule. The whole sporting world followed with great interest last fall's inter-sectional contest and all joined in cheering for the school which had struggled against a superior team. It seems a shame to spoil a contest marked throughout by the best of feeling and high sportsmanship, with this sad ending.

Harvard last fall, with the greatest wealth of material she has had in many years, could afford to rely on a hard school which kept her two main objects well in view. As events turned out, she very nearly over-reached, for it certainly looked for a time as though the substitute team would take the field against Yale. Next fall, with her many graduations, it would be suicidal for Harvard to run this same risk of injured she ran this year. This is why the promise of a return game from Harvard, and while regretting that the meeting is not to take place, they certainly do not believe that they were dropped because Harvard failed to meet them. They were dropped but for one reason—and that reason the one given by the Harvard athletic authorities—namely, because it was too hard a game for the team to play in mid-season.

The author of your article has seen fit to drop it again in the situation in regard to Dartmouth. Harvard did not sever relations with the New Hampshire college for the reasons I have mentioned in speaking of Michigan. If W. & J. neither was it dropped because of "rough play." It was dropped, however, because of what is known to followers of football as "dirty football"; so dirty, in fact, that during the past year between the two colleges, in 1912, Dartmouth was hissed by spectators on every side of the field. Any close follower of eastern football in the past years knows that Harvard has never shirked "rough play," but "dirty" playing is something she has sought to evade rather than combat.

"When your paper makes such a statement as 'Harvard won through luck and nothing else. W. & J. outplayed Harvard in every department of the game,' it should also add that Harvard played so tactically an entire substitute team. Your article has been written with the intention of deceiving sport lovers who are not close followers of Harvard athletics. You allow them to think that Harvard played Michigan with a veteran team—an eleven made up of the greatest stars of the game—this is essentially untrue. It is a fact that the two teams which they do not beat with ease. To prove the falsity of your whole article, it is only necessary to print the Harvard 1915 schedule, on which both Penn State and Brown appear—the only two teams which played the undefeated 1914 eleven together.

"Your final summary, together with the whole thing stands as an example of how unsportsmanlike a sport writer may be if he wishes to discard the truth to fill space. "FAIR PLAY."

HARVARD STAND IN DROPPING TWO TEAMS UPHELD

Crimsons Prepared Only for Purpose of Beating Yale and Princeton.

A supporter of the Harvard university football team takes exception to an article written by Frank G. Menke, the New York sport critic, and printed in The Journal of Sunday, January 8, which severely arraigns the Cambridge gridiron authorities for dropping Michigan and Washington and Jefferson from the annual schedule. "Too silly," was the tenor of the Menke article.

It is not the policy to print unsigned articles, but the reply to Mr. Menke is well written and of a high class. If, indeed, very much paprika; and this opportunity is given the anonymous author to relieve his chest of a heavy load.

"Sporting Editor, Journal, Portland, Or.—Dear Sir: I have just finished reading in last Sunday's Journal the most unsportsmanlike article it has ever been my misfortune to read. The article in question is headed, 'Frigid Tootsies Up Cambridge Way Cuts Tough Elevens Off,' and is evidently a reprint.

In the east some papers have had in the past the very bad taste to print such 'sporting rot,' at infrequent intervals. There, however, such articles need no replies as they are killed by ridicule. In the west, however, the conditions are different. I think that a brief reply would not be out of place.

In the first place Harvard football is on an entirely different basis from the western conference playing. The Harvard team is prepared with two objects, to beat Princeton and to beat Yale; the former of these objects being entirely subordinated to the latter. With this end in view—and this only—the Harvard team is trained. During the season they play practice games, but—and this is frequently overlooked by the critics—the practice games are different, and this practice—always filled with substitutes. Harvard wishes to win these practice games if it is true, and it can be won without too great cost to the team in fitting it for its main object. To eastern people, to graduates and to the general public, the explanation mentioned in the article, this explanation is unnecessary, as they all know and appreciate the condition.

Harvard men, as well as all real lovers of sport, regret seeing Michigan dropped from the Harvard schedule. The whole sporting world followed with great interest last fall's inter-sectional contest and all joined in cheering for the school which had struggled against a superior team. PORTLAND'S HOCKEY TEAM LEAVES TODAY FOR 2 GAMES NORTH

Johnson and Harris to Start Against Victoria and Vancouver Teams.

The Portland Pacific Coast Hockey league team will depart this afternoon for Victoria, B. C., where tomorrow night it will clash with Lester Paterson's aggregation of puck chasers. The local team will be handicapped on account of Johnson and Harris being injured, but Manager Muldoon expects his players to win.

Johnson and Harris were injured in the game against the Vancouver team last Tuesday night, but these two players turned out for practice Friday morning and, although they are not yet in tiptop shape, they will start the match against Victoria.

On Friday night the Rosebuds will play the Vancouver team. The team will return to Portland Saturday afternoon and on Tuesday, January 19, it will meet the Victorians here.

Kenny Mallen of the Vancouver team has decorated the fence more than any other player in the league this season, the scrappy wing player having been penalized 31 minutes in six games. Skinner Poulin of the Victoria team has been penalized 26 minutes, and McDonald of the Portlands heads the Rosebuds in being penalized. He has been out of the game 15 minutes.

The Vancouver team has been penalized for a total of 64 minutes. The local team for 62 minutes and Victoria for 56 minutes.

Lehman is the only goalkeeper who has been put off the ice, and Cook is the only defense player, outside of Connie Benson, who has played in but a couple of games, who has not been put on the fence.

The scores: Dennis Holohan, 90; J. B. Bull, 86; Jim Reid, 80; Strower, 80; Tyler, 78; McIntyre, 50; McKean, 76; E. Keller, 75; Thompson, 61; Pollock, 54; G. A. Keller, 65; W. F. Greer, 70; Leonard Greer, 71; Miss Gladys Reid, 64; Mrs. E. Keller, 54; Mrs. Fred Dryden, 50; A. R. Dryden, 45; Mrs. Dolph, 49; Mrs. Greamer, 46; and Mrs. Ed Matthews, 52.

Aberteen in the Northwest.

Aberteen will be the sixth city in the Northwestern league during the season of 1915, 1916 and 1917. Arrangement for the transfer of the Portland-Ballard franchise to Aberteen was practically completed yesterday by President Blewett, D. E. Dugan, John Egan and a group of Aberteen business men.

Happy Hogan of the Venice-Vernon team is going to slip the hines envelope to 18 players of his 1914 lineup.

BILL DONOVAN IS AFTER STAR TO BRACE YANKEES

Thinks His Team Has Good Foundation to Build Up Winner.

New York, Jan. 11.—"Wild Bill" Donovan, the new manager of the New York Americans, is hard at work on plans to give New York a pennant winning combination. He admits he is after a well known big league star, but is unwilling to give out the name for fear it may prove a boomerang. In a recent interview, Donovan said: "It's all foolishness to think that the other clubs are going to give us a lot of good players, because baseball is a business, where every team must look out for itself. That's what makes the game popular. We are not going to ask anything for nothing, and if we get any good ones you may know that we have paid all they are worth, either in money or in players."

"While the present New York team cannot be called a strong one, I believe it has enough natural strength to make a foundation on which we can build. I am not well acquainted with many of the Yanks, but I know some of them by reputation. I cannot say what I will do with them until I have had a thorough tryout."

"This new man Papp is a corking good first baseman, and may fit in the first year; but that boy Mullen may come through, you know, and hit well enough to hold his job. I don't think there is any question about his fielding. There are few better."

ALBINA ELEVEN AND WESTOVER TEAM ARE FOOTBALL WINNERS

Hughy McKenna Makes One Touchdown Against Westover Club in Last 5 Minutes

A touchdown by Hughy McKenna, quarterback of the Albina team, two and one-half minutes before the end of the game, gave the east side eleven a 6 to 0 victory over the Western Athletic club eleven yesterday and the championship of the lightweight section of the Archer & Wiggins league. This was the third contest between the two elevens, the first and second battles resulting in scoreless tie games.

In a preliminary, the Westover team won from the South Portland Juniors by the score of 7 to 6. A victory over the Lincoln Park team next Sunday will give the Westover team the championship of the Portland Junior league.

The feature of the Western-Albina game was the great defensive playing of the great side team, which held the Albina team to one touchdown after the east side had been within one yard of the western goal three times.

McKenna scored the touchdown on a 12-yard run around right end, after he drew all the defensive players to the left end of the line. Nelson's try for a goal failed.

Bill Kurtz scored the touchdown for the South Portlanders in the third quarter, but failed to kick goal.

Over 2000 fans saw the two games, which were interrupted frequently by fist fights. A squad of policemen sent an end to all attempts to make the games pugilistic affairs.
