OREGON SENATORS HELP

Representative Smith Threatens to Question President on His Next Appearance on Floor of House.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.) Washington, Jan. 18 .- What Oregon voted itself after many months of agitation the District of Columbia came near having wished upon it without notice last week.—Prohibition.
Nobody had been thinking or talk-ing Prohibition. It was not in the The Hebson resolution designed to bring about a constitutional amend-ment that would make the whole nation dry had failed of passage in the house several days earlier and the subject had been forgotten for the time being. That is, everybody had forgot-

Senator Sheppard took advantage of the senate rules to place what is called "rider" on the bill that carries all the appropriations for the District of Columbia. Said "rider" sought to say farewell to the liquor business in the district November 1, 1916. A panic resulted among Washington liquor men and they thronged to the capitol in droves. They found good reason for their fright for a poll showed majority of the senators were inclined to favor the Sheppard rider.

LAW, IS ADVICE GIVEN BY PROMINENT MEN

Banker, Lawyer, and Commerce Chamber Take Up hand. Cudgels for "Little Folks."

SLIGHT CHANGES NEEDED

Law Should Be Amended as Recom mended by Commissioner, but Nothing Else, Legislators Are Told,

Law Great Benefit, blue sky law, with amendments will be of great benefit to the state and, in fact, already has been,' asserts a letter which is being sent to every member of the Multnomah delegation today by E. C. Giltner, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. The legislative committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Joseph N. Teal chairman, reviewed the amendments which have been proposed from within the corporation department and approved them. The trustees of the Chamber of Commerce formally approved the amends ments as proposed and have taken decided stand against any other changes in the law, especially changes that would lessen its efficiency.

sky law."

The legislature's attention is directed to this advice by Judge Charles H. Carey, a leader of the Oregon bar, and by John A. Keating, president of the Lumbermens Trust company.

They spoke this morning in behalf of the "little folks," who, before there was a blue sky law, frequently lost all they had in the world through being lured, without protection or warning, to sink the few dollars they possessed into "get rich quick" schemes held out as balt by crooks and defrauders. Millions of dollars were stolen from small investors in Oregon before the advent of the blue sky law.

They spoke, too, in the name of Oregon's legitimate business, which, under the blue sky law, has had protection against snide real estate schemes, fake stock promotions and fraudulent enterprises.

Slight Changes Meeded. "The act is very important and i should not be tampered with," said

Judge Carey. "Some slight changes should be made, to correct slight defects, which have been found through the operation of the law; but in the main the act is calculated to protect people from fraudulent stock selling enterprises.

"It can do no harm to legitimate organizations. Any corporation in Dregon operating on an honest basis should not object to the regulation imposed under this law. criticism to be made in their behalf is that some of the minor provisions

"The administration of the corporation department under Mr. Watson has not only been efficient, but has taken into consideration convenience in the transacting of business, in such a way as to greatly assist the floating of new enterprises. He has systematized the work of the office and has arranged its affairs so that prompt attention is given the investigation of stock and bond issues and no serious delays have been experienced as was feared by some prior to the enactment of the Oregon Magnet for Promoters. "A western state like Oregon naturally attracts a great many promoters and gamblers, who put forward schemes for the purpose of 'getting rich quick,' and unless a law provides some check upon these schemes a good pany inexpert and unwary people are taken advantage of. This is evidenced by the numerous convictions in the United States court in fraud cases."

"It is natural that dealers in investsecurities, as we are, should have felt some regret at being placed under state supervision," said Mr. Keating. "This regret, however, we have given up, and we are satisfied that legislation on the order of the blue sky law is not only very desirable, but very necessary. As large dealers in investment securities of a legitimate character, we are interest ed in having the savings of the state conserved for safe investment.

"We are of the opinion that rational administration of this law protects the innocent investors of this state from a large part of the heavy losses such as they have had in former years by the purchase of "wildcat" securi-ties, and that thereby the total wealth of the state is increased. We believe that this regulation is just as important as supervision of banks, and for that reason we cheerfully submit vestor, but without such ill-advised restrictions as to interfere with the free flow of capital into municipal and corporate investments. Heavy investments of new capital are vital to the prosperity of this state, and will be for many years to come, and this capital will have to come largely through bond issues. In our judgment, Mr. Watson, the present blue sky commis sioner, has given the state a very conscientious and intelligent, administration. I should consider it a great misfortune to have the state lose the benefit of his service. The blue sky commissioner should be permanent in his office just as the banking commissioner should, and should be equally undisturbed by political matters.

"The first blue sky law was, necessarily, a more or less crude effort, but in the right direction. The new law which Mr. Watson has prepared is a rational measure, and better fitted to "As an officer of our own company,

This bill is a second step in the process of evo-lution of blue sky legislation, just as the various acts passed in the history of the national banking law have been similar steps. It is a carefully presimilar steps. It is a carefully pre-pared and wise measure, which I hope will be passed by the legislature.

"I trust the sober public opinion of this state will support the blue sky legislation, and that the governor will leave Mr. Watson undisturbed in 1.s
