AS THE CROW FLIES

By R. A. C. THE CONTRIBUTION BOX The mince pie scandal has reached the North Irvington section of the city, showing that gossip spreads quickly. This contribution came this morning from A. B. S. secretary of the aristocratic North Irvington Irredicents, the official poet set of that favored addition:

When I seek out my title clear To maulions in the sky, I'll say farewell to vice and rum. And also mince pie.

And this one came via messenger from A. Wristwatch Turnip, the dreamy rhymester of the Rose City Park Rhyming club:

There is a man in our town And he is wondrous wise, Although he swore off drinking rum He still eats hot mince pies.

Caruso, the Rose City Park huckster, writes in to ask us if we will print the following athletic gem:

We trust the rival baseball clubs, When facing Govalles like his name, Will find that swains in steady.

Miss Hortense Noteworthy, the alert Alameda Park litterateur, who assures us that her daily gymnastic exercise consists of reading the sporting pages, assures us with this one, over the telephone:

The fox trot will be exemplified, In the town of Milwaukee tonight; At least that is what the singdier thinks, When Jimmy and Mike start their fight.

And here's a real knockout sent in by Jitney John, the Beaumont bard, who writes in to say that he hopes his stuff won't cause any hard feelings in the carrier business:

The giddy taxicabber, That sprightly money grabber, May come heels upon the well known curb, While we go grab the ready.

The club directors also decided yesterday to reduce the initiation fee from $15 to $5. Plans were discussed for launching a membership campaign, and it is expected that many will join the club before the opening of the spring season.

President Everding announced yesterday that the club would make an effort to get the annual tournament of the Oregon State Trap Shooters' association.

The annual meeting of the Oregon State Trap Shooters' association will be held here Saturday. President Beas of Eugene has wired all directors to be present, as several matters of importance will be considered.

Reed Collegians See Three Basket Bouts

A triple header basketball series filled the Reed college sport program yesterday afternoon in the gymnasium, in which the winners were: Junior women over freshman women, 11-8; sophomore men over seniors, 27-14, and junior men over faculty, 23-17. Each game was hard played and exciting, bringing a great deal of cheering from the spectators.

Henry Norman, captain of the Junior squad, spent most of the second half throwing fouls, and was quite an expert after his practice. Fred Weber, captain of the faculty, made some brilliant shots during the first session, but forgot himself in the last. William Krause, a freshman, filled up the faculty team, which was short a man.

The soph-senior game was a better exhibition of basketball. Both teams showed good teamwork and played hard, the lower classmen winning by their superior basket shooting. Paul Rittenberg, for the winners, seemed to stay in the game a little more than the others and Willman, of the same team, shone at shooting baskets.

Freshman women Junior women Oshorn, captain, 11-8 Kelly, captain, 11-8 Brault, captain, 11-8 Coffin, captain, 11-8 Williams, captain, 11-8 Parker, captain, 11-8 Rittenberg, captain, 11-8 Willman, captain, 11-8 Haddock, captain, 11-8 Lantz, captain, 11-8 Norman, captain, 11-8 Weber, captain, 11-8 Buland, captain, 11-8 Krause, captain, 11-8 Zabel, captain, 11-8 Wood, captain, 11-8 Lackey, captain, 11-8

Tomorrow night the C. B. Juniors will play the McLoughlin quintet of Oregon City and on Saturday they are scheduled to play the Sellwood Y. M. C. A.

The Jefferson and Hill Military Academy teams will play the third game of the intercollegiate league season this afternoon on the Jefferson floor.

WASHINGTON GIVES THANKSGIVING GAME TO COLORADO TEAM

Seattle Eleven Refuses to Meet Guarantee of Conference and Goes Outside.

University of Washington, Seattle, Wash., Jan. 21.—Washington's seven-time football champions will meet the University of California, considered to be the strongest eleven in the Rocky mountain conference for the past six years, in Seattle on Thanksgiving day.

Washington's initial steps to go outside the conference has come to an apparent inability of several of the northwest conference managers to agree with Washington upon the question of dates and terms of guarantee.

"Personally, I am not in favor of scheduling outside of the conference games," said Manager Younger, "but when a team forces us to accept terms to which we cannot conscientiously assent, I can see no other recourse than to look for new competitive material."

The University of Colorado squad can come to Seattle under terms less than the Oregon Agricultural college. For this reason Coach Younger is advisable to consider the former's terms.

Washington's guarantee to the Colorado team is $2500 which sum covers expenses to Seattle.

In the Rocky mountain conference the U. of C. holds the position of dominance held by Washington in the northwest conference. Both institutions have won more games than all the other schools combined, and although the University of Colorado's record is not so clean as that of Washington's, this fact may be contributed, says the Colorado authorities, to the fact that they have not confined their games to the conference and have always played with teams in the Missouri valley conference.

Colorado has beaten the Rocky mountain champions four times out of six. Owing to an accident in practice to one member of the team, which resulted in a broken leg and a subsequent amputation before the Colorado School of Mines game, a cloud of gloom was cast over the squad which resulted in the loss of this critical game last year. Colorado, however, finished second, with one defeat charged against it. In 1912 Colorado lost as a result of too strenuous a rule with out-of-conference games.

Colorado's prospects for the coming season are bright, according to advisers which have reached here. Of last year's team, Coach Polson will lose only two men. He has splendid recruits in the positions which come from other classes than the freshman, because of the existence of a freshman rule which forbids them from playing on a varsity team.

"If Colorado again wins the championship of the Rocky mountain conference and we are so successful as to get another championship in the northwest, I believe that the Colorado-Washington game will be one of the biggest football attractions the northwest has seen in years," said Manager Younger.
