MINERAL LAKES LEASE IS DISCUSSED BEFORE SENATE COMMITTEE

Ex-Attorney General Crawford Denies Charges Made by Wallace and Friends

SAYS JOKER IN HIS LEASE

Lease Made With Moore Declared to Be Perfectly Fair for the State and the Lessee.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)

Salem, Or., Jan. 21.—That J. S. Wallace and his friends, by their efforts to prevent a ratification by the legislature of the lease of Summer and Abert lakes, are endeavoring to hold up the associates of Jason C. Moore or the state was the opinion of former Attorney General A. M. Crawford, expressed at a meeting of the senate public lands committee last night.

Mr. Crawford said Wallace and his associates were promoters and asked if the legislature is to be "played horse with by them." He pointed out a joker in the lease offered by Wallace, which he said would operate, if entered into by the state, to bring the state's title to the lakes in doubt and would offer a loophole for Wallace and his associates to escape payment to the state of the amounts stipulated in the lease.

Senator Bingham, chairman of the committee, announced that a joint meeting of the senate and house committees will be held at 7:30 o'clock next Monday night to which all persons interested in the lease of the lakes are invited.

Basis of the Lease.

Some time ago the state land board, after advertising for bids, entered into a lease with Jason Moore of New York for the two lakes in question, the lease to be subject to ratification by the legislature. This lease provides that within 90 days after its ratification, the lessee must put up a bond of $25,000 as a guarantee for carrying out its provisions. As a pledge of good faith, Mr. Moore put up $10,000 at the time the lease was executed. The lease is made on a basis of royalties on the tonnage of salts, sodas and other products taken from the lakes, the minimum to be paid the state being fixed at $25,000 a year.

In their efforts to block the ratification of the lease, Wallace and his associates have addressed a letter to the members of the legislature, in which they say that fault for their failure to comply with the terms of the bid for the lease is due to the advice given them by Attorney General Crawford. They did not put up a certified check with their bid.

Crawford Denies Allegation.

Mr. Crawford denied to the committee that he ever advised them it would be unnecessary to put up a certified check. He said, moreover, that State Treasurer Kay had advised him that the board had given Wallace two additional days to put up the check and he had not done it.

The Wallace letter states that they had no other attorney to advise them. Mr. Crawford cited instances to prove that they were advising with attorneys.

He pointed to a paragraph in the lease offered by Wallace which stated that the lessee did not recognize the state's title to the lakes and that the lease must be confirmed by the federal government.

"They had a lawyer who was shrewd enough to insert that provision, so as soon as the state would sign it and commit itself to a recognition of the federal government as having title to the lakes the state could be estopped from enforcing the terms of the lease," declared Mr. Crawford. "They could back out of making any payments to the state."

Declares Lease Is Fair.

Mr. Crawford said he believed the lease made between the state and Jason C. Moore was perfectly fair for the state and for the lessee.

"I believe the lease should be ratified," he said.

Under this lease construction work on the project must be commenced within six months after the lease is ratified. Mr. Crawford said employment would be given to thousands of men, and the state was assured of getting its royalties on the deposits taken from the lakes.

J. Fred Larson, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Portland Commercial club, stated his experiences with Wallace and his knowledge of the scheme worked by Wallace to locate mining claims on the lakes at $5 to $25 per claim. He declared there should be a law to prevent such promotion schemes.

"His propositions to me lead me to believe the less you have to do with him the better," said Mr. Larson.

A. A. Aya of Lapine addressed the committee and urged the ratification of the lease, on the ground that it will give the state just revenue from the lakes and will be the means of developing central Oregon. He said from 3000 to 5000 people will be employed if the lease goes through.

Forbes Yelled "Louder," Not "Lobbyist"

Where Is the Garden Spot of Oregon

Salem, Or., Jan. 21.—While Representative Barrow of Coos county was arguing against the pernicious lobbyists during the house debate yesterday, he almost lost the thread of his discourse when Representative Forbes yelled "louder."

Mr. Barrow, in fact, was telling how, in the old days of Missouri, the gangsters and debauchers of justice were plying their nefarious crafts on the very floor of the house.

"I have often stood there—" he began.

"Louder," cried Forbes.

Now it happened that Mr. Barrow thought Forbes was saying "lobbyist" with the implication that he, Barrow, was doing those very things he condemned.

"No, sir, I never lobbied for any measure for any man," he declared. And then, while everybody laughed, he gathered up the line of his interrupted discourse.

Representative Tom Handley of Tillamook, who looks like Bill Hare of Washington, and, in fact, was born on the same day, has ceased his habit of telling new acquaintances that he is from "the garden spot of Oregon."

He had been making the boast to all comers until the other day when it chanced that he uttered the remark in the presence of Representative Cardwell of Douglas county.

"Yes," said Handley, "I'm from the garden spot of Oregon."

"Piffle," retorted Cardwell. "The poor chap thinks he is representing Douglas county."

J. J. Houser of Jackson county, a member of the house in the old days when Populism was rampant, was a visitor in the house of representatives yesterday. He called on the Jackson county delegation and was accorded the house courtesies.

George Holcomb, a former member of the house, was among the visitors to his former haunts at the capitol yesterday. J. D. Abbott of Portland, likewise one of the wheel horses of olden days, was given official welcome.

His first visit to the legislature did not disconcert the venerable John Minto, who collapsed one day last week during a session of the house. He called again yesterday, apparently none the worse for his fainting spell.

Much has been heard around the state capitol about steam rollers. Last night at the meeting of the joint ways and means committee, Senator I. N. Day objected to an appropriation for concrete paving for one of the institutions. He thought the state should build macadam roads.

"The state should have a steam roller and——"

"Well," interrupted Representative Andrew C. Smith, "you have an excellent steam roller in the senate."

"It seems to me that a person should be allowed some peace after death," said Senator Garland in the senate yesterday, when the bill to regulate embalmers was being discussed. "The doctors have him when he is alive, the embalmers after he is dead, and then the lawyers get his estate."

"From all this discussion," interrupted Senator Kellaher, "I think the instructions to the committee should be to embalm the bill."

President Thompson of the senate was a little absent minded yesterday. The 28 senators present had voted unanimously for a bill.

"Twenty-eight Republicans vote for the bill," announced President Thompson.

"Did you say Republican votes?" asked Senator Moser.

President Thompson quickly corrected his statement, yet he was just about right in the first place. With only two democratic senators in the upper house they nearly get lost.

State Capitol News.

Salem, Or., Jan. 21.—The state desert land board at its meeting today closed a deal for the purchase of the headquarters at Laidlaw and directed O. Laurgaard, project engineer, to turn all equipment and money of the Tumalo project over to Fred N. Wallace. Wallace is to be the representative of the board and will look after the distribution of water and other matters.

R. Yount, president of the Columbia County Good Roads association, writes to Secretary of State Olcott that he wants Olcott, who is a member of the state highway commission, to know that there is one satisfied man in Columbia county. Yount says that he was one of the original good roads men and he desires to see the good work go on.

The Pacific Coast association of Railway Conductors has re-elected all the old officers, the ballot being conducted by mail, and the list follows: President, C. B. Aitchison, of the Oregon commission; vice-president, Max Thelen, of the California commission; secretary, E. H. Walker, secretary of the Nevada commission. The association is for the purpose of getting together and securing action on such things as statistics and accounting of operating revenue and expense.

Teachers in Same Status.

Salem, Or., Jan. 21.—Men teachers and women teachers remain on the same status they always have held, according to decision of the house educational committee yesterday afternoon, which smothered Representative Allen's bill to prevent discrimination in the payment of salaries between male and female instructors.

The committee also disapproved of Mr. Dillard's bill requiring a majority vote of all school districts before a union high school can be organized. Mr. Paisley's bill abolishing county school boards was postponed for further consideration and Mr. Dillard's bill providing for school bond issues will be reported adversely.

Selling Is Pleased With Progress Made

Indications Are Fewer Bills Be Introduced and Those Presented so Far Have Been in Good Faith.

Salem, Or., Jan. 21.—"With indications that fewer bills will be introduced this session than last, with committees all working every available minute and the members more thoroughly in accord with one another than in many and many a session, I am more than pleased with the progress so far made."

Speaker Ben Selling of the house of representatives, thus expressed his confidence in the sincerity of representatives in the twenty-eighth session today. The expected flood of measures has not come and from quiet canvasses made among the members, none is now looked for.

"It realy appears that the legislature is here for business," continued Speaker Selling. "Few worthless measures have appeared that have to be killed either in committees or on the floor of the house because of their weakness. I am satisfied that every bill introduced so far has been presented in good faith, with the belief that it is necessary legislation."

Bingham's Speech Impresses.

Salem, Or., Jan. 21.—The senate passed, yesterday afternoon, Senator Bingham's joint memorial urging congress to amend the navigation laws so the lumber mills on the Pacific coast of the United States may enjoy water freight rates that will enable them to compete with British Columbia mills for the business on the Atlantic coast.

Senator Bingham made a ringing speech in support of the memorial, and it so impressed the senators that on motion of Senator Moser the clerk was instructed to incorporate the remarks in the senate journal.

Miller Approves Bill.

Salem, Or., Jan. 21.—Frank J. Miller, chairman of the state railroad commission, heartily approves of the "public convenience and necessity" bill introduced in the senate Tuesday by Senator Perkins.

He points to many instances where burdensome competition between railroads or other public utilities would have been prevented if a law of this nature had been in force. He says when the state regulates the rates and prescribes the service that shall be given by public utilities, it ought to have authority to protect the investment of such utilities.

NO CUTS IN SALARIES AT THE PENITENTIARY; ECONOMY ON REPAIRS

Cobb Proposes Printing Office to Keep the State's Wards Employed.

IDEA IS FROWNED DOWN

Amounts Asked for Improvements Are Slashed Considerably by Joint Session of Ways and Means.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)

Salem, Or., Jan. 21.—The senate and house ways and means committees, in joint session, resorted to the pruning knife again last night and trimmed $28,100 from the appropriations requested for improvements and repairs at the state penitentiary. No cut was made in the amount estimated for maintenance and salaries of employes.

While discussing the affairs of the penitentiary, Representative Cobb, chairman of the public ways and means committee, declared it was a shame that provision has not been made to give employment to all the convicts. He advocated the installation of a printing plant either at the penitentiary or the asylum that would turn out all the printing for the state institutions.

Representative Wesley O. Smith took issue with this contention, declaring that it would be against public policy to permit the convicts to enter into competition with free labor and establish printing houses.

All of the appropriation items for the penitentiary, with the exception of one, were definitely passed on by the joint committees last night. This item is that of $3000 for the construction of a new steel water tank to replace an old wooden one. Action was taken on the other items as follows:

	Amount Asked.	Amount Allowed.
For salaries of 42 employes	$ 64,480	$ 64,480
For general maintenance	85,520	85,520
For new cow barn, concrete	10,000	2,000
For construction of two new cottages	4,000	.....
For cement walks and pavement	2,500	.....
For concrete feeding pens and brooding houses	1,700	1,700
For repairs to administration building	2,000	2,000

Hood River's New Mayor Messageless

Council Members Prepare for Usual Program, But Invitation to Proceed With Business is Alone Forthcoming.

Hood River, Or., Jan. 21.—Mayor H. L. Dumble took charge of the affairs of the city of Hood River Tuesday to succeed A. P. Reed, who served the city in that capacity for the past year. Mayor Dumble somewhat surprised the members of the city council and spectators, who all fell back into their chairs and lighted their cigars at the first sound of the gavel and awaiting to see the usual "message to the council" come from the mayor's inside pocket, but instead the mayor announced that the council would proceed at once to business and for the first time in the history of the city of Hood River the mayor's annual message failed to make its appearance.

The following appointments were made: Chief of Police, J. K. Carson; night officers, B. B. Smith and H. H. Bailey; city attorney, George R. Wilbur; city surveyor, P. M. Morse; city health officer, Jesse Edgington; street commissioner, T. B. Chambers. Mr. Jury of the Oregon-Washington Telephone company assured the council that the electric police service that had been discontinued would be reinstalled forthwith, and that his company was responsible for the service to the city instead of the Pacific States company.

House Passes Bills.

Salem, Or., Jan. 21.—The house Wednesday passed five bills, the largest grist so far of the session. Besides the anti-lobbying bill, the measures acted upon were: H. B. 62—By Allen, prohobiting county clerks from acting as attorneys; H. B. 79—Exempting certain personal property from attachment; H. B. 81—By Olson, correcting a defect in the law creating district courts; H. B. 85—Creating labor liens on sawed cordwood.

Ferguson Given Present.

Salem, Or., Jan. 21.—Just before J. W. Ferguson retired from the office of state insurance commissioner at noon yesterday, the employes of his department presented him with a handsome silver electric coffee set.

Goes to Jail for Abusing Wife

Astoria Spaniard Accused of Taking Wife's Earnings and of Treating Her Harshly on Divers Occasions.

Astoria, Or., Jan. 21.—For cruel and unnatural treatment of his wife, 18 years of age, Victor Famore, a Spaniard, is serving a sentence in the city jail.

The girl is employed at a local restaurant and it is alleged by the police who have investigated the matter thoroughly, that Famore not only takes all her salary, but forces her into a shameful life.

The matter was first directed to Chief of Police Houghton's attention when Famore brutally took his wife from the company of the man and woman owning the restaurant at which she is employed, as the three were about to go into a moving picture show early this week. He is said to have called her a vile name and ordered her to her room. Further investigation revealed the fact that only recently Famore had severely beaten his wife because she had deposited a small sum of money with her employer so that he could not get it. It has also been ascertained that in Portland several months ago when she rebelled against the kind of life her husband was compelling her to lead he turned on her with a knife. Her body still bears the scars of the attack.

LIVESTOCK MEN WANT THE SANITARY BOARD TO STAY IN EXISTENCE

Representative Olds Taken to Task for Bill Shutting the Campaign Against Disease

ANIMAL FAMINE IS SEEN

Governor Withycombe Declares More Horses and Hogs Should Be Raised; Plummer Disagrees.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)

Salem, Or., Jan. 21.—Protest against the proposed abolition of the state livestock sanitary board and the repeal of all continuing appropriations was voiced last night at the semi-annual meeting of the Pure Bred Livestock association held in the capitol building, when a series of resolutions covering the aims of the association was adopted.

Representative P. P. Olds of Yamhill county was called to task for introducing the bill shutting off the campaign against disease among livestock and he rallied to his own defense, setting forth that he and his colleagues had been besieged with petitions from their constituents declaring the sanitary board a graft. It was on such representations, he said, that he had introduced the measure. He recommended that the association present its side of the case before the committee and a committee consisting of William Schumerich, C. N. McArthur, Frank Brown, Frank Porter and Carl Abrams was appointed.

Governor Gives Warning.

Governor James Withycombe was called upon by President Hawley for a short talk. The governor warned the association that the time is coming when hogs will be almost extinct in Oregon unless steps are taken to stop the slaughter now going on. He predicted also that the world will face a famine in horses, caused by the European war, and urged the members to raise any kind of horses, to help recoup the world's supply. He predicted also that when the war is over, wheat will drop to 50 cents a bushel, cheap enough to allow feeding to stock. This, he said, would be a great stimulus to the raising of all sorts of livestock.

The association heard a report from State Veterinarian Lytle which showed that this state is remarkably free from tuberculosis in cattle, though Multnomah county's percentage is highest. He figured that throughout the state, the average would not be much above 4 per cent, with 1½ per cent in Linn county as the lowest and the eastern Oregon counties averaging less than 3 per cent.

Hog Cholera Unknown.

Through luck and careful watching hog cholera in Oregon is now virtually unknown, he declared. The department paid much attention to rabies in eastern Oregon, he said, and the foot and mouth disease scare of two months ago produced a spirit of cooperation among all interests almost unknown.

O. M. Plummer disputed the statement of Governor Withycombe that the supply of hogs is diminishing, declaring that the North Portland packing houses are preparing to spend large sums in the enlargement of their hog houses and plans are on foot for taking better care of the industry than ever before.

Congressman-elect C. N. McArthur urged the association to work for an ironclad federal inspection of all blooded livestock entering the state, except that intended for immediate slaughter. He said many stockraisers have suffered large losses through imported stock found on arrival to be diseased. Inspections in the states where the stock originates he held unsatisfactory because there is no check on his inspection.

The association passed resolutions urging a continuing appropriation for the Oregon Agricultural college extension work, indorsing C. E. Cleveland, superintendent of sheep at the Panama-Pacific exposition, and urging the legislature to avoid further paternalism in imposing added restrictions to the business.

Divorce Suit Filed.

Divorce suits filed yesterday were: Clyde Vaughan against Bessie Vaughan, cruelty; Minnie Kumala against Emel Kumala, cruelty; Nora M. Whitman against Eben J. Whitman, because Whitman is in the penitentiary serving a sentence from Lane county; John W. Finney against Alice M. Finney.

IDAHO HOUSE GIVES TO ANTI-ALIEN LAND BILL BIG MAJORITY

Senate Also Passes Resolution Providing for Submission of Liquor Question.

(Special to The Journal.)

Boise, Idaho, Jan. 21.—After flag waving speeches and amid great enthusiasm, the house of representatives of the Idaho legislature passed the Anderson anti-alien land ownership bill, with but two opposing votes.

The bill prohibits the acquisition of land by alien persons, firms or associations, except by enforcement of liens or through inheritance, and in such cases must be disposed of within five years or be forfeited to the state. Leasing or purchasing of land will be permissable after first naturalization papers have been taken out.

The bill contains no reference to race, blood or nationality. Members who voted against the bill were Speaker Conner and Representative Shattuck. The bill now goes to the senate.

The senate this morning passed, with but one opposing vote, the Hart resolution providing for the submission to the people of the state of an amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor after May 1, 1917. The resolution provides for the submission of the amendment at the general election of 1916.

The committee on uniform legislation presented to the house a report on model legislation as drafted and approved by the national conference of uniform state laws.

Administrator Appointed.

Adria C. Haley was appointed administrator of the estate of his father, Maximilian Haley, who died December 27, leaving property estimated to be worth $3500, in the petition for appointment of an administrator. Four sons and a daughter are heirs.

Immigration Agent Goes.

Salem, Or., Jan. 21.—The house Wednesday passed the Dimick bill abolishing the office of state immigration agnt. The bill has already passed the senate and awaits only the signature of the governor.
