AMERICAN FASHIONS

By Lillian E. Young.

Evening frocks are delightfully youthful.

Somebody, whose name, according to precedent, should be Ponce de Leon, has in the most part succeeded where he failed in a praiseworthy attempt to discover the fountain of youth...

Fashions in all clothes have never given such a delightfully youthful aspect to the wearers. If they are young, fashion accentuates it...

The greatest efforts seem to have been expended on evening frock designs. They express the very spirit of youth, so far as absolute charm and daintiness go...

The bodice consists of broad shoulder straps caught under the arm to form a pink kimono sleeve and edged on either side with little self frills of chiffon...

After the musicale tea was served in a Japanese tea garden. Assisting Mrs. Hare were: Mrs. W. B. Hare, Mrs. G. J. Francis, Mrs. Lillian Conner, Mrs. Lee Arnett, Mrs. John Hoff, Mrs. E. L. Pettis, Mrs. E. M. Baker, Mrs. Suzanne Patterson and Mrs. Frank M. Taylor.

One hundred ladies were present. The social feature of the Monday Musical club is an added attraction and is especially for the new musicians who are coming to the city.

Alumni to Skate. The Richmond Alumni association will give their first skating party at the Oaks rink Saturday evening. An enjoyable time and a large attendance are expected.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES. "Mary," queried the teacher, "can you tell me what human nature is?" "Yes, ma'am," was the reply. "It's people before they get into society."

Little Will—"Say, papa, what is the ruler of Russia?" Papa—"He is sometimes called the czar."

Little Will—"Then would it be proper to call his kids czardines?"

Last summer little Dorothy accompanied her mother to the circus and among the animals on exhibition she saw a leopard for the first time. "Mamma," she exclaimed, "that dog got the biggest measles I ever saw!"
