

PORTLAND, OREGON, SATURDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 13, 1915.

Aerial Bombs and Earthquake Cause Death and Destruction in Old World Towns French Blue Cross Society Cares for Dumb Animal Victims of the European War

GUARDING SWISS NEUTRALITY IN THE WINTER

Switzerland has been at great expense in keeping an armed neutrality. The picture shows a Swiss border guard leading his horse through the deep snow.

GERMAN PATROL AT CAMPFIRE

Half-frozen infantrymen of the Kaiser's on patrol duty in Poland, trying to warm themselves over a scanty campfire. All are clad in fur coats.

KING OF ITALY VISITS EARTHQUAKE DISTRICT

King Victor Emmanuel of Italy made a personal investigation of the district shaken by the earth tremor. The picture shows the king inspecting the ruins of Avezzano. Foreign aid was declined by the Italians, and they have taken care of the earthquake sufferers themselves.

HUMANE WORK OF THE FRENCH BLUE CROSS SOCIETY

In the present war, the horses are not being overlooked, and the French Blue-Cross society is doing much to relieve the sufferings of the dumb animals. This is a general view of the hospital at Le Torquet, where hundreds of fatigued, sick and wounded horses are treated.

AERIAL RAID ON THE BRITISH EAST COAST

Damaged building in St. Peter's Palin, Yarmouth, England, after the German aerial raid. Count Zeppelin in a recent interview intimated that more such attacks in British towns may be expected soon. The horseshoe over the door did not bring good luck to this building.

—Photographs Copyright, 1915, by The International News Service.