Woman's Press Club Meets

"Life as the Illustrator Secured" was very graphically described by Mrs. Constance M. Dowling in a paper read by her at the regular monthly meeting of the State Women's Press club Wednesday evening. The meeting was devoted largely to art, and some interesting studies were shown by Mrs. Dowling, Mrs. Alice Weister, an artist and psychologist, in responding to the subject, "The Silent Hour," touched upon the dangers as well as the advantages of "going into silence." She said in part: "We live in an ocean of thought force and we come in contact with these forces by our own vibration. We connect ourselves with certain thought forces and we get what ever there is in that current." Hence, a Mrs. Weister pointed out, there is an advantage in connecting up with the right current, and a danger in allowing our thought to drift.

Parent-Teacher Council Meets

The monthly meeting of the Council of Parent-Teacher Associations was held yesterday at Central library, with a large attendance. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Martin Wagner, the vice president, Mrs. Alva Lee Stephens, presided. The greater part of the afternoon was taken up in a discussion of the new constitution. The old constitution was drawn up when the organization was very small numerically, hence the new one which was approved yesterday. This provides for a more active and more usefulness generally. Several of the committee chairmen made interesting reports.

Thompson Association

The Thompson Parent-Teacher association met yesterday afternoon with a good attendance. Mrs. Mary Mallett of the W. C. T. U. spoke on "Narcotics and Patent Medicines." The school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Merrill, gave pleasing selections. Several matters of routine business were attended to.

To Elect Officers

The Brooklyn School Alumni association will hold an important business meeting in the school assembly hall this evening. New officers will be elected and there are several important issues to bring before the house. All members are urged to be present. This is not an open meeting.

Brewster, commissioner of public affairs, who will speak on "The City's Relation to the Problem," and Miss

A large class of boys meets regularly on Tuesday evenings in the school assembly with Mr. Gillard as leader. The program for their entertainment will be:

FRATERNAL NOTES

State Deputy of Modern Woodmen will pay visit to Roseburg. J. W. Simmons, state deputy head council of the Modern Woodmen of America, accompanied by R. A. Carroll of this city, will go to Roseburg next week, and will visit other localities in southern Oregon before their return. Neighbor Carroll has recently been appointed a field deputy, and will have charge of all of western Oregon south of Eugene.

Deputy to Have Busy Time

E. P. Martin, deputy head council of the Woodmen of the World for the northwest, will divide his time between here and Seattle for the next three months. In each city a force of four or five assistants will be at work rustling applications for the different local camps and helping to roll up a big increase in membership. The campaign is known as the silver jubilee, because next August in San Francisco the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the order is to be held with imposing ceremonies and representatives from all over the Pacific coast.

Webfoot camp, W. O. W., this evening

Webfoot camp, W. O. W., this evening will have an interesting social open house session. Dr. J. Allen Gilbert will make one of his straight talks on social health. A musical and literary program has been arranged for the evening. The famous glad hand committee will be there to welcome all comers.

Spurious Ritual on Market

Robert T. Daniel, grand sire of the sovereign grand lodge of the I. O. O. F., calls attention to a spurious ritual being sold to members of the order, and urges that effort be made to stop its distribution. It is against the rules of the order to even have one of these spurious rituals in the possession of a member.

New Organization Planned

There is said to be forming a new fraternal order in this city to be called "The Defenders of the Constitution." Its objects are to uphold the principles of the constitution of the United States and to offer support and sympathy to movements, measures and men that are authorized by the constitution and guarantees of free born American citizens.

Leading members of the Loyal Order of Moose in Oregon and Washington are agitating the proposal to charter a special train of the Southern Pacific to attend the national session, to be held in St. Diego, July 19 to 26. It is thought that $50 reserves can be made.

The Eagles this evening will hold their regular quarterly dance at their hall at Third and Madison streets.

Edgar Easter, director of the organization department of the Loyal Order of Moose, is in Toledo this evening to institute a lodge there.

Sheriff Given Gold Star

Sheriff Hurburt yesterday just couldn't resist the temptation to manipulate his right hand and arm in such a manner that each time he met someone the right lapel of his coat was sure to slide back and display a handsome gold star on his breast. The submission to temptation is excusable when one realizes that the star was presented to him Wednesday and by 50 of his deputies, headed by Deputy Richon. The presentation was in honor of a birthday celebration soon to occur. The number of years to be celebrated is a state secret.

NATIONAL GUARD NOTES

James H. Porter Elected Captain of Company E, Third Regiment.

Succeeds Shumacher. James H. Porter, heretofore first lieutenant and adjutant of the Second battalion, Third regiment, O. N. G., was last evening elected captain of Company E, Captain Porter is a native of Ireland and enlisted in the O. N. G. in 1888. He has been commander twice in the Oregon National Guard and once in the California National Guard. He was commander of Company E in 1895, 1898 and 1897. Captain Porter is a watchmaker by occupation and with the well known firm of Frislander.

He succeeds Captain George H. Shumacher in command of the company, who has been promoted to the position of regimental inspector of small arms.

New Companies Wanted.

George A. White, adjutant general of the O. N. G., would be glad to correspond with citizens in any section of the state relative to the establishment of a military company. There is room for several companies of the Coast Artillery Corps, and the U. S. war department will furnish supplies, uniforms, guns, accoutrements and equipment for the O. A. C. company that will comply with the U. S. regulations. It will also detail experienced and capable officers from the regular U. S. Coast artillery to instruct the men and officers.

Silverton Wants One.

The leading business men of Silverton have been corresponding with Adjutant General George A. White regarding the formation of a military company at that point. If the four additional companies of Coast Artillery are authorized for Oregon one of them will be at Silverton. If not the probabilities are that a company of infantry will be formed.

Next Monday night is the date of the big inter-company smoker of the Third Regiment at the Armory. Some first class sporting events are scheduled.

Little Stories for Bedtime

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS
(Copyright, 1914, by T. G. Lord.)

Happy Jack Is Perfectly Happy.

Never say a thing is so unless you absolutely know. Just remember every day. To be quite sure of what you say. Taking things for granted doesn't do at all in this world. To take a thing for granted is to think that it is so without taking the trouble to find out whether it is or not. It is not only to get you yourself into trouble, but to make trouble for other people as well. Happy Jack Squirrel saw Farmer Brown's boy carry Shadow the Weasel away in a cage, and he saw him bring back the cage empty. What could he have done with Shadow? For awhile he teased Farmer Brown's boy to tell him, but of course Farmer Brown's boy didn't understand Happy Jack's language.

Now Happy Jack knew just what he would like to believe. He would like to believe that Farmer Brown's boy had taken Shadow away and made an awful mistake. He would like to believe that it wasn't very hard to believe it. There was the empty cage of course. Farmer Brown's boy wouldn't have done the trouble of trapping Shadow unless he intended to get rid of him for good.

"He's made an end of him, that's what he's done!" said Happy Jack to himself because that is what he would have done if he had been in Farmer Brown's boy's place. So having made up his mind that this is what had happened, he went to Farmer Brown's house, and the only one he had to watch out for at all was Black Puss. By this time he wasn't afraid of her. Not a bit. In fact he rather enjoyed teasing her and setting her to chase him. When she was doing on the doorstep he liked to steal very close, wake her with a sharp bark, and then race for the nearest tree, and there would be to his heart's content. He had made friends with Mrs. Brown and with Farmer Brown, and he even felt almost friends with Bowser the Hound. Sometimes he would climb up on the roof of Bowser's little house and drop nut shells on Bowser's head when he was asleep. The funny thing was Bowser never seemed to mind. He would lazily open his eyes and wink one of them at Happy Jack and thump with his tail. He seemed to feel that now Happy Jack was one of the family just as he was.

So Happy Jack was just as happy as a fat gray squirrel with nothing to worry him could be. He was so happy that Sammy Jay actually became jealous. You know Sammy is a born trouble maker. He visited Happy Jack every morning, and while he helped himself to the good things that he always found spread for him, for Farmer Brown's boy always had something for the little feathered folk to eat, he would hint darkly that such goodness and kindness was not to be trusted and that something was sure to happen. That is just the way with some folks; they are always suspicious.

But nothing that Sammy Jay could say troubled Happy Jack, and Sammy would fly away quite put out because he couldn't spoil Happy Jack's happiness, the least little bit.

Argue New Phase Compensation Law

Roseburg, Or., March 5.—A suit of unusual interest was argued before Judge Shipworth of Eugene, in the circuit court here Wednesday. The suit was brought by E. F. Lang to recover damages from the State Accident commission for alleged injuries sustained while working in his sawmill near Dillard. When Lang presented his claim to the State Accident commission after his injury, it was turned down on the ground that Lang was an employer and not an employee, as required under the terms of the workmen's compensation act. Lang contends that he is entitled to benefits compatible with his injuries for the reason that he worked in the mill, and that the State Accident commission accepted his application and premium.

After listening to the evidence Judge Shipworth gave Attorney Abraham, of counsel for plaintiff, 30 days in which to file his briefs. The state is represented by Attorney General Brown.

Divorce Decree Is Set Aside by Court

Case That of Elderly Lutheran Minister Whose Wife Secured Divorce During His Absence from Portland. Though divorced for a short time Thresa and Adolph Gaudlitz are now husband and wife without a second marriage. Before County Judge Cleaton left the circuit bench he allowed

Mrs. Gaudlitz a divorce on grounds of cruelty. Later Gaudlitz, who is an elderly Lutheran minister, appealed for a reopening of the case through Attorney Charles J. Schnabel. This was granted. Gaudlitz declared his wife took advantage of his absence on a visit to Sacramento, Cal., where he went to make a daughter's home for his health, to secure the default and divorce.

After Mrs. Gaudlitz had testified at the trial of the case yesterday Judge Gantenbain said that her case was not sufficient on which to base a decree and suggested that property rights be settled out of court. Attorney A. E. Hooker, representing Mrs. Gaudlitz, took a voluntary non-suit when he learned the attitude of the court, thus returning the entire matter to the status before proceedings were commenced.
