

PRODUCTION OF GOLD IN OREGON IN 1915 TO BE DOUBLE LAST YEAR

More Than $2,000,000, It Is Estimated, in This State During Present Year.

VALUE OF BUREAU GREAT

Mines and Geology Department Declared to Be More Satisfactory Than Geological Survey.

Gold to a value of more than $2,000,000 will be produced from Oregon mines during 1915, according to A. H. Gunnell, well known Grants Pass mine owner who is in Portland on business.

"This year's production will be more than double that of 1914," he said yesterday.

"The production was somewhat over $1,000,000 last year.

"Southern Oregon's gold production this year will be $1,000,000 or more, as much as the state total for 1914."

Mr. Gunnell, with Dr. J. F. Reddy, who accompanied him to Portland, has just completed the purchase of the Waldo district copper mine.

"The mine will be worked by the Gunn estate of San Francisco, from which they bought it for $200,000. The purchasers admit that there was a six figure deal.

The Waldo mine has produced 7500 tons of ore, running 12 per cent copper and $4 to the ton gold.

"We have in the mine today an ore body 330 feet long and 16 feet wide, running 10 per cent copper and $4 gold to the ton," said Mr. Gunnell.

Activity in Mining.

"The mine will be blocked out and ready for production by the time the railroad Dr. Reddy is building from the Illinois valley reaches our section. That will be soon.

"There is more mining activity in southern Oregon than at any previous time during the past 10 years.

"There is great demand for gold and many have turned to mining.

"A large number of important sales have been made in the mine today that have scarcely received any notice.

"The Raleigh Copper mine on Elk creek has been taken over by eastern capitalists.

"The Channel placer mine was bought by Seattle people, and is now in operation.

"The Anaconda gold quartz mine on Coyote creek was bought by Fisher & Wilson, and is now being worked.

"The Sowell gold and copper mine has been bought by Dreager and others of Salem.

"The Barr placer mine on Bridge creek was bought by James of Colorado.

Many Mines Reopened.

"Three big dredging concerns have been test drilling in southern Oregon, and there is a practical certainty that two to three modern gold dredges will be installed during the present year at a cost of not less than $250,000.

"Many mines have been reopened. Among them are the Deep Gravel, owned by Evan Reames of Medford; the Greenback, a gold quartz 10 stamp mill, and one of the most famous in the country, which is under lease to John Anderson and associates; the Jim Blaine, owned by the Lewis estate of Portland, which is under lease to George Epperly and associated; and four or five placer mines on Graves creek, which had been idle for four or five years.

"The added impetus given mining in southern Oregon, and in fact, throughout the state, is attributable in large part to the splendid work of the Oregon Bureau of Mines and Geology. It has conducted research work of the most exhaustive character. Its findings have been of great modern, scientific and economic value to the mining industry and its bulletins of great benefit to miners.

Business' Work Valuable.

"The bureau has been doing several times the work of the United States Geological survey at one-fifth the cost. Its work has been more accurate, more satisfactory, and the results are given before the information ceases to be of value, while, on the other hand the findings of the United States Geological survey are apt to be given long after the information has ceased to be of any value whatever.

"When the public begins to realize the practical value of the work done by the Oregon Bureau of Mines and Geology it will be more willing and generous in its support of it. The bureau will have a great influence in increasing mineral production of this state.

"The legislature added to the appropriation for maintenance of the bureau, a sum of $10,000 for a mineral exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition in San Francisco which will, I am convinced, attract much desirable attention to the mineral resources of Oregon."

Tailors' Shears Interesting Relics

One Pair Was Used By Man from Whom General Grant and Others Bought Uniforms.

George H. Himes, the assistant secretary of the Oregon Historical society, has a collection of tailors' shears which are interesting relics of Oregon's early days.

One pair recently presented to the society, were used by John Schiffmann in St. Louis in the early part of the last century.

At the outbreak of the Civil war prominent men like Grant, Lyons and Fremont ordered uniforms of him.

The shears were brought to Oregon by a Mr. Schaefer, now a retired tailor in this city. They weigh 35 ounces.

Another pair in the possession of the Historical society were brought from Germany in 1848 and were used for many years by G. Linemann, who was the first tailor in Portland.

He settled near Gresham, bought cloth from Patrick Raleigh, one of the early merchants in this city, and cut his cloth and did his work on the farm. The shears weigh 28 ounces.

A third pair came from Oregon tailors in the possession of William Cannon, who was with the Astor overland expedition. He lived at French Prairie for many years. The pair were made in England and weigh 41 ounces.

There is still another pair of shears known to have been brought from England in the first ship that reached Vancouver, Washington. They were bought by Edward Chamberlain from a Scotch tailor in Vancouver named Macmillan for a pony valued at $15. They weigh 26 ounces. All these shears are in a good state of preservation and as capable of use as they ever were. They might need sharpening to suit a skilled workman, but they are sound in every way and are not rusted.

Traveling Men at Banquet Tonight

Members of Travelers' Protective Association of Oregon and Washington Division Will Make Merry.

Could a census of traveling men on the road tonight in the northwest be taken the result would probably be a great surprise for it is expected that hardly a knight of the grip will be outside of Portland. A banquet is planned for the evening to be celebrated at the Portland hotel by the Oregon and Washington division of the Travelers' Protective Association of America.

Stunts will commence at 8 o'clock accompanied by "smokes" and "cats." Sidney Dunn, Charles Ringler and R. P. Thompson will act as natural expectors of the crowd to laugh and impromptu stunts will be pulled. The Rainbow grill cabaret, Miss Iva Lyons, Miss Howland, Mr. Casey and Mr. Fishburn will furnish the musical numbers. Talks will be given by Postmaster F. S. Myers, district sales manager of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, and A. G. Clark, president of the Portland Ad club. P. C. Morton, Charles Ringler and R. L. Adams are in charge of the jinks.

Court Stops the Barn Dance Habit

Owner Alleges That He Leased Building for Storing Hay and Not for Purposes of Pleasure.

Albany, Or., March 6.—An injunction to put a stop to barn dancing has been secured by John Calahan, a farmer residing near Crabtree, until a suit he filed against Henry Churchill, a younger farmer, can be settled in court.

According to Calahan's suit, he leased his barn to Churchill to store hay. Instead, it is alleged, the barn has been converted into a dance hall. That regular dances are given, that they are attended by persons addicted to the cigarette habit, that a stove is maintained in the barn, and that the insurance agent has notified the owner that if the barn is continued in use as a dance hall, the insurance will be canceled, are facts alleged. In view of these facts, Calahan, according to his complaint, is afraid of losing the building through fire. "Should the insurance company cancel the policy and the building should burn down, the defendant is not able to properly reimburse the plaintiff," says the complaint.

"Frame-Up," Cry Alleged Robbers.

San Francisco, Cal., March 6.—J. Ryan and N. O. Anderson today asserted that they were the victims of a "frame-up" after having been positively identified as the men who attempted without success to hold up the Southern Pacific's "owl" train at Saugus a week ago. Sheriff Gline of Los Angeles, however, is positive that he has the right men. John Fuller and William Muller, who were riding on the brakebrakes of the "owl," identified the two prisoners.

STAMPS GALORE

After Agostino Caressimi at Milano, Guatemala, got through sticking postage stamps on a letter he forwarded under registry to his brother Joseph Caressimi at 100 First street, Portland, there was just room enough to place the address on the envelope.

Caressimi received the communication yesterday and counted no less than 275 centavos worth of stamps on it. There were a score of them plastered on both sides of the envelope and in plain money of the U. S. A. they amount to only about 25 cents.

ADMIT ROBBING SALOON

While on their way home, loaded down with goods they had taken from Durrenberger & Demain's saloon at 524 Jefferson street, Clifford Harris, aged 16, of 22 1/2 East First street north, and Virgil Yates, aged 17, of 352 Forty-second street north, were intercepted early this morning at West Park and Clay streets by Patrolman B. F. Hunt. Yates confessed to having robbed the saloon and took the officer to the place and showed him that the putty had been cut from a window, and the glass removed. They had taken all the whiskey, wine, cigars and cigarettes they could carry, but no money. Both boys have police records.

Willamette Physicians Meet.

Albany, Or., March 6.—Twenty-eight physicians attended the quarterly meeting of the Willamette Valley Medical association, comprising Lane, Linn, Benton and Lincoln counties, Thursday night. The principal speakers were Dr. Labbe and Dr. Wright of Portland. The former read a paper on "Obstetrics," and the latter read a paper on "The Common Inflammatory Diseases of the Eye." Two new members were taken in. They are Dr. Gornjobst of Halsey and Dr. Miller of Lebanon. Lebanon was decided upon as the June meeting place. A banquet was served at the Hotel Albany.
