

PORTLAND, OREGON, SATURDAY EVENING, MARCH 6, 1915.

England Has a Fleet of Vessels That Are Built to Fight Under Water, as You Can See Austrian Machine Gun in Action in Trenches ∴ German Officer Who Would Not Quit

AMERICAN FOOD SHIP SEIZED BY THE BRITISH

The U. S. steamer Wilhelmina, lying in the Falmouth, England, harbor after being seized by the British authorities. She was on her way with a cargo of grain for Hamburg. The disposition of this vessel will be the test for future action in shipments.

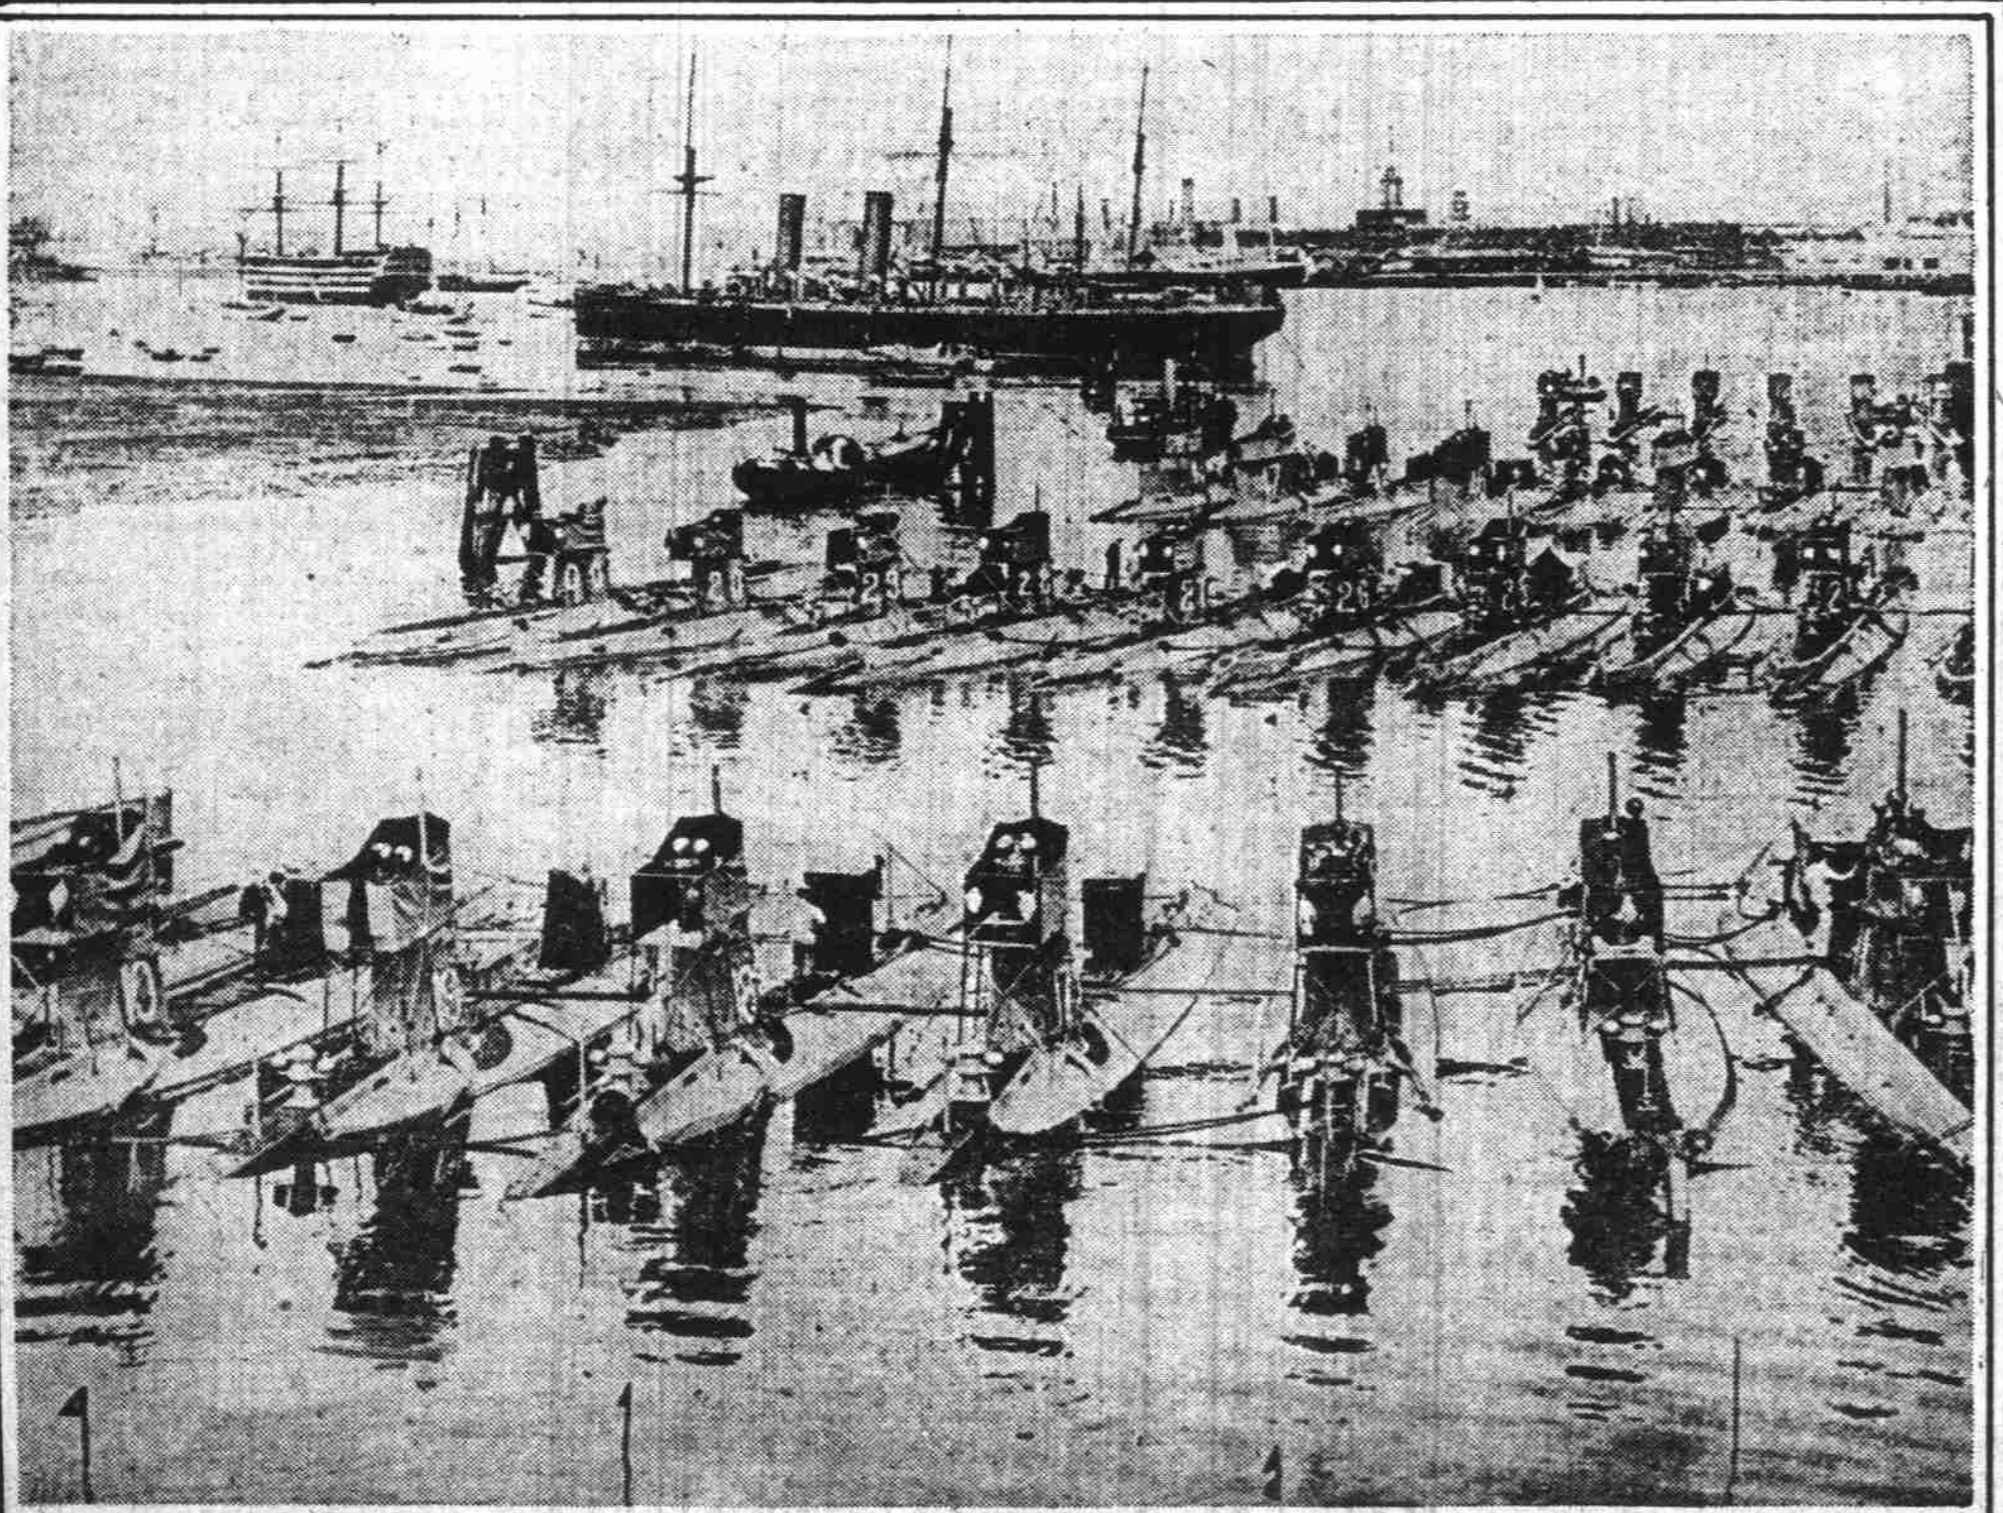

WAR-RIDDEN POLAND

Typical scene after a battle where the Germans met the Russian army from the Caucasus mountains. Photograph taken near Petrikau

HAD TO HANDCUFF GERMAN OFFICER

This officer wanted to fight even after he had been captured by the French near Arras, and was manacled because of his violence

WILL THEY FIGHT THE GERMAN RAIDERS?

England's large fleet of submarines lying in anchor at the harbor of Gosport

AUSTRIAN MACHINE GUN IN ACTION

In the Austrian trenches with the machine gun section—showing the gun in operation in an engagement with the Russians

—Photographs by International News Service.