

FORMER GOVERNOR WEST ON STAND IN DEFENSE OF ACTION

Letters Which Were Largely Responsible for Martial Law at Copperfield, Read.

BUT ONE DEFENDANT NOW

Case at Baker Attracts Much Attention and Is Hearing the End.

Baker, Or., April 13.—Governor West was on the stand in his own behalf this morning in the case of William Wiegand, former councilman and saloonkeeper of Copperfield, who is suing West, Colonel Lawson of the National Guard et al, for damages alleged due for liquor confiscated when Governor West put Copperfield under martial law in January, 1914.

Some time was devoted to reading 16 letters from Copperfield citizens, describing conditions there prior to the declaration of martial law. Attorney Nichols, for the plaintiff, objected to the introduction of the letters to justify seizing of the liquor, the court ruling that they could be admitted only to justify martial law.

West's testimony, following reading of the letters, largely concerned his conversation with Rev. Mr. Lee of Huntington, who made a personal visit to Salem, complaining to the governor that District Attorney Gordin and Sheriff Rand were not enforcing the law.

Objections Are Frequent. Nicholas frequently objected, when West gave his opinions, reached as a result of Lee's information. The court finally ruled that the witness must confine himself to statements made by Lee.

With the exception of testimony on the value of the seized liquor, plaintiff's case rested yesterday afternoon. Attorney Collier for the ex-governor, and Attorney General Brown, representing Colonel Lawson and the militia men, immediately moved for non-suit. Motion of the attorney general was sustained, and Collier's motion was denied, making West now the only defendant.

"Lee said," testified West, "that Sheriff Rand was an excellent officer for catching murderers, house thieves, etc., but having secured so long he had become hardened to conditions in mining camps, to which Lee attributed the cause of the seizure of liquor, plaintiff's case rested yesterday afternoon.

STRAIGHT MILEAGE AS BASIS FOR R. R. RATES LOOMS AT HEARING

Washington, April 13.—(U. P.)—As the interstate commerce commission's hearing on the "back haul rates" from the Pacific coast approached the end today, legislation looking toward the establishment of rates upon a straight mileage basis appeared more certain. The commissioners are puzzled by the conflicting demands of various points.

LOAN ASSOCIATION HAS KEPT ITS FUND ACTIVE CONTINUALLY

Plan Under Way to Enlarge Present Working Capital for Future Operations.

That the paid in capital of the Portland Remedial Loan association has turned over fully three times since organization, a little over a year ago, and that losses have been trivial, was reported at a meeting of the association yesterday.

The capital stock paid in to February 1, 1915, was $31,300, and this total had grown to $93,943 by April 1. Demands for loans are such that the association has found it necessary to borrow $5000. "Ten thousand dollars additional working capital is solicited," said Ben Selling, president of the association, this morning. "Interest will be paid at a rate of 6 per cent on all capital stock paid in, the interest beginning the first of the month following payment and continuing to February of this year."

PROTEST AGAINST THE REMOVAL OF STATION AT BEER FOR WARDEN

Many Business Houses and Property Owners Sign Petition; Reasons Given.

SENATORS APPEALED TO

Representative McArthur Sent Petition to Postmaster General Burleson Yesterday.

Signed by 341 business houses, firms and property owners of the east side, a petition addressed to Postmaster General Burleson and the Oregon congressional delegation, was mailed to the postmaster general yesterday by Representative McArthur.

The petition protests against the proposed merging of the east side branch postoffice, station A, at Union avenue and East Alder street, with station A fifth and Gileson streets, and asks that instead of abolishing it, station A be given a more central east side location, the better to serve the 30,000 people that the petition claims are its patrons.

Carriers would lose much time crossing the bridges under the proposed arrangement, and their car fare would be an item of additional expense; at least one delivery a day on the east side would be lost by such a move; the east side is fast becoming the wholesale and jobbing district of Portland, instead of the proposed arrangement being more economical, it would result in an actual loss, with decreased efficiency.

"We now have some 16 commission houses, 23 large implement and machinery, 150 manufacturing plants of various capacities," say the letters, "with scores of other business houses, all, and more particularly the implement and machinery houses, very existence depends upon prompt, quick mail deliveries and parcels post service, in filling rush orders for small quantities of goods and machinery at this season of the year. We have 14 automobile assembling plants and agencies in this district, likewise dependent upon quick, prompt mail service (and without doubt the department will soon be delivering Ford's by parcels post). These implement and machinery houses now ship annually nearly $2,000,000 worth of machinery, agricultural, timber and road machinery, and the business done in this station a branch postoffice last year was valued at over $150,000 and ran over $1,000,000 during the past 10 years. We submit that this is worthy of most careful consideration."

Measure Would Give City Exclusive Control of Street Ends to Refund Taxes.

The city ordinance was directed to prepare a plan for refunding the city of the commission power to order the construction of fire walls at suitable intervals along the congested portion of the waterfront. It was stated that fire, if started in certain quarters, would sweep waterfront and city; also, that if fire walls were constructed, the decrease in insurance rates would pay the cost during the life of the wall.

INJUNCTION SOUGHT TO PROTECT HUBBY FROM OTHER WOMAN

Mrs. Leonie M. Rau Brings Novel Proceedings in Circuit Court.

Can one woman be legally stopped from molesting or pursuing the husband of another woman?

A woman in Henry Westbrook believes it is possible, and the Oregon law makes a marriage a civil contract. With the view of testing out the question this morning, she filed suit for Mrs. Leonie M. Rau against Ruth Lee, 25 years old and residing at the Hotel Arthur, to restrain her from making further advances toward Rutherford M. Rau, a liquor salesman for Rothchild Bros. The Raus have a son, Jack, 4 years old.
