

LABOR MEN, SEEKING UNEMPLOYMENT CURE STUDY LAND PROBLEM

Unemployment Committee of Central Labor Council Turns Effort to New Line.

RELIEF WORK CONCLUDED

President E. E. Smith Says Work Against Road Issue Not in Vain; Peace Talk Made.

That the relief work of the unemployment committee of the Central Labor Council is virtually concluded, and that the committee hereafter will devote itself exclusively to the consideration of the land question, was the report of E. J. Stack, chairman of the committee, at the meeting of the council last night.

Mr. Stack said that the committee had $54.66 still on hand, and that this money would be expended in a few days on cases of relief already undertaken. A letter from the Socialists asking for cooperation in the celebration of International Labor Day, May 1, was placed on file.

Charles Grassman of the bartenders called the attention of the delegates to the fact that the bartenders were loyal to their organization, notwithstanding that they were voted out of business five months ago. He said they would hold their ranks firm until January 1, 1916. He asked all members of organized labor to bear in mind the union card when they lifted a beer glass.

As chairman of the committee on the bond issue, President Smith reported that "we went up against the same old game and are not particularly downcast at the result."

Mr. Smith berated the delegates, who, he said, talked against the bonds on the floor of the council, helped commit it against them and then never showed up when there was work to be done. He said the Chamber of Commerce treated him with courtesy and displayed confidence and enthusiasm in their own side, which he admired.

Gypsy Musical Act Will Be Featured

Mrs. Jana Ellis, Jack Nash and William Schuster Ready to Make to San Francisco Exposition.

With their gypsy musical act perfected, Mrs. Jana Ellis, Jack Nash and William Schuster, who will walk from Portland to San Francisco, will give their first public performance at a Vancouver, Wash., theatre Sunday. They will wear their new gypsy costumes. They will start about May 1 on their long hike southward, and in the meantime they expect to appear for a week at one of the Portland theatres.

The trio is under the management of Mrs. Ellis' mother, Mrs. A. M. Mills, of 111 Bancroft avenue.

Mr. Nash will play the guitar and violin. Mr. Schuster the piano and Mrs. Ellis will give gypsy and Spanish dances. The party's baggage will be carried on a packhorse.

"Woodrow," Known To Portland People, Goes to Mulehaven

Troutlake, Wash., April 17.—"Woodrow," the old burro, is dead. The animal was well known to Portland people and others who visit this place every summer.

On the last trip of the Mammals to Mount Adams the burro was dubbed "Woodrow." Before that he was called "Teddy."

Prize Winners' Work Attracts Attention

Artistic Photographs Are Now on Exhibit in Windows at West Park and Alder Streets.

Considerable interest is being shown in a collection of photographs by amateurs now on display in the windows of Woodard, Clarke & Co., West Park and Alder streets, the prints being those adjudged the best in the first of a series of monthly photographic competitions begun last month by that firm.

The competitions are open to all amateurs save those who have won prizes in competitions held under other auspices and there are no restrictions as to subject, size or the like. Three prizes aggregating $15 are given each month and those receiving honorable mention are awarded certificates of merit.

C. F. Richardson, president of the Oregon Camera Club, G. F. Bissell, staff photographer of the Evening Telegram, and D. Perry Evans, secretary and treasurer of the Photographers' association of the Pacific northwest, have been selected as judges for the competition now under way.

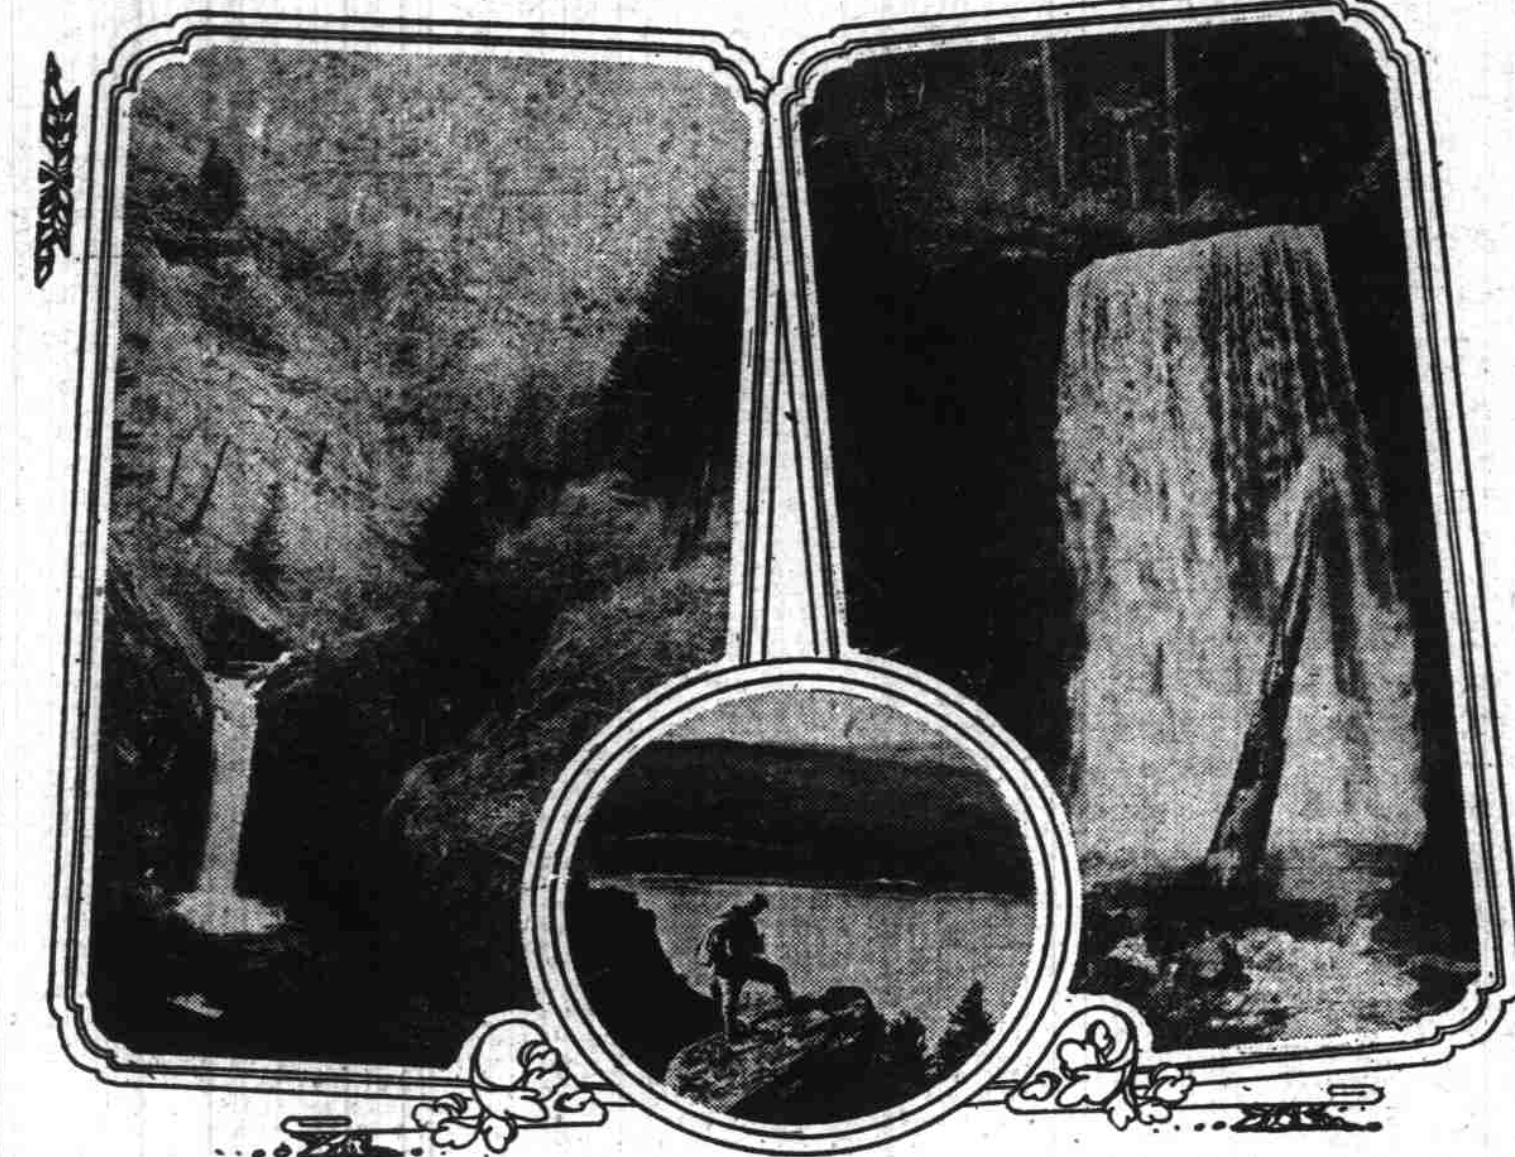

Winners of last month's competition, whose photographs are now on exhibition, are: First prize—"Majestic Columbia," George C. Stephenson, 652 Vaughn street.

Second prize—"Lonesome," Axel Anderson.

Third prize—"The Widow and Her Mite," Mrs. W. P. Strandborg, Fourteenth and Taylor streets.

Larch Mountain Views Charm Business Men Points of Interest Visited by Portland Party

Entrancing views glimpsed by Portland party. Left to right—Lower Falls in Multnomah creek. Picture in circle—Looking down on the Columbia river and the Washington shore from Angels' Rest; Upper Falls in Multnomah creek, one of impressive spots in wooded retreat. Top of mountains is said to afford finest viewpoint in the Cascade range and one that will make Oregon famous.

Members of the Progressive Business Men's club have traversed the route of the Larch mountain trail which is to lead from the Columbia highway over Multnomah falls, through Multnomah creek canyon to the top of the mountain, where is to be found the finest viewpoint in the Cascade range.

Among the points of interest en route are the upper falls of Multnomah creek and the view of the Columbia river gorge from Angels' Rest. Devil's Rest is not far distant from Angels' Rest. Some of the best views along the trail have been taken by Charles A. Benz, of the Meier & Frank company.

Daylight Robbers Ransack House; Steal Child's Bank

Cutting the screen and breaking a window on the back porch of the home of S. E. Wand, 345 East Forty-second street, north, daylight burglars yesterday thoroughly ransacked the home, turning things upside down in every room, but stole only a child's savings bank, containing $4. The rear porch is screened with a lattice, and the neighbors noticed nothing suspicious. The robbery was not discovered until last night.

Henry Treblehorn, of 852 East Eleventh street, reported to the police yesterday that his motorcycle garage was broken into by two men and $25 worth of tools stolen.

that it would be contrary to public policy to order establishment of two homes. He said the couple had children and it was their duty to live together or else take legal steps to obtain a divorce. He dismissed the case.

Report Is Made on Men's Resort Work

Record for Year Ending March 31 Shows 7900 Fed, 7100 Sheltered, 1856 Sent Out to Work.

An idea of the scope of work of the Men's Resort, Fourth and Burnside streets, is contained in the report of the Rev. Levi Johnson made to the annual meeting of the First Presbyterian church Thursday night.

The records show that in the year ending March 31, 1915, 7900 men were fed free, 7100 men were sheltered free, 10,000 men contributed for what they received, 25,784 attended lectures, concerts, Bible classes and gospel meetings; 321 made request for prayer, 1856 men were sent out to work, 11,300 letters were written on the resort's stationery, 646 letters were received, delivered or forwarded, and 2300 packages of baggage passed through the check room.

The financial report shows receipts of $4558.39 an ordinary expense of $5487.85. Other expenses left a balance for the year of $19.55. A report was also given for Hillcockburn, a ranch managed by the resort.

L. W. HILL PREDICTS GREAT PROSPERITY AFTER WAR IS OVER

President of Great Northern Declares Demand to Over-tax Industries of U. S.

ONLY FARMERS REALIZE

Increased Acreage in Wheat and Investments in Cattle Show Grangers Expect to Find Markets.

Louis W. Hill couldn't wait over for his customary visit in Portland after his winter in California. So, instead of being here today to chum with his countless cronies, he had his private car switched last night over to Will-bridge and hooked onto the North Bank's flyer for Spokane. Today he is speeding eastward toward St. Paul as fast as steam can take him.

The head of the Great Northern railway came up from San Francisco on the steamer Northern Pacific, which reached Flavel late yesterday afternoon on her first trip to the Columbia river. He was accompanied by Mrs. Hill and four children, all of whom have been playing in the sunshine in California.

Mr. Hill is more than usually optimistic just now. He believes the settlement of the war will bring to the United States a share in the reconstruction of Europe which American business men are hardly prepared to face. The result, in his opinion, will be an overtaxing of industries and attendant prosperity that should make everybody busy.

Mr. Hill said he would be back in a couple of months. He always does spend a few days, at least, in Portland every year. This year he wants to see how Multnomah county is going to spend his $1,250,000 on paved roads in the country. Roads, he contends, go just one step ahead of civilization.

Mr. Hill had expected to stay over several days in Portland on this trip, but he has received a lot of "hurry home" telegrams and so will defer his real visit.

COUNTY COURT NEWS

Irvington Park Would Put Ban on Pastoral Scenes

Residents of Irvington Park district want cows barred from their neighborhood. In a petition addressed to the council, members of the Irvington Park club say that cows make their homes in the vacant lots of the district and that the sight is distasteful.

Entertainment Given. A musical and literary entertainment under the auspices of the Friendship Circle of Mount Tabor M. E. church was held in the church auditorium last night. Mrs. Lee Bequest gave a reading, and there were several musical numbers.

clerk and the county purchasing agent. Tuerck-Mackenzie Machine Works bid $1940 for furnishing and installing control apparatus on the Broadway bridge. The bid was referred to the superintendent of bridges and ferries. Hearing on the petition of Bernard & Stickney, 874 Overton street, for $37.50 for one bull slaughtered because of infection with tuberculosis, has been set for April 22.

The board allowed Caroline S. Moore $75 for services as acting superintendent at the Fraser Detention Home from January 1 to February 22. She presented a bill for $125.

Vouchers for $50,000 advanced by J. B. Yeon and others to the state highway commission for use in Columbia highway construction work in Multnomah county, were approved and referred to the district attorney to prepare the proper order to be issued relative to them.
