

TURKISH SUBMARINE SAFE AFTER SINKING A BRITISH BATTLESHIP

Triumph, Sunk in Gulf of Saros, Is Fifth Battleship Lost in Dardanelles.

GOES UNDER ENTIRE FLEET

Brings British Loss Up to Five in Dardanelles Attacks; French Lose One Vessel.

Constantinople, May 27.—(I. N. S.)—Via Berlin—Safe return of the Turkish submarine that destroyed the British battleship Triumph in the Dardanelles was announced today in an official statement here. It was said the submarine was 200 yards from the Triumph when her torpedo was fired.

Passed Beneath Allies' Fleet. London, May 27.—(I. N. S.)—The Turkish submarine responsible for the sinking of the British battleship Triumph in the Gulf of Saros, off the Gallipoli peninsula, passed underneath the Anglo-French fleet in the Dardanelles, according to advices received here today. The submarine's base was between the Narrows of the Dardanelles and the Sea of Marmora, and this made it necessary for the diver to go under the waterline bombarding the forts of the Dardanelles.

Most of Her Crew Saved. London, May 27.—(U. P.)—Five allied warships, four British and one French have now been sunk by the Turks in resisting the attempt of the allies to force the Dardanelles. A majority of the officers and men from the Triumph are reported to have been saved. The vessels sunk in the Dardanelles to date are the British battleships Triumph, Ocean, Goliath and Irresistible, and the French battleship Bouvet.

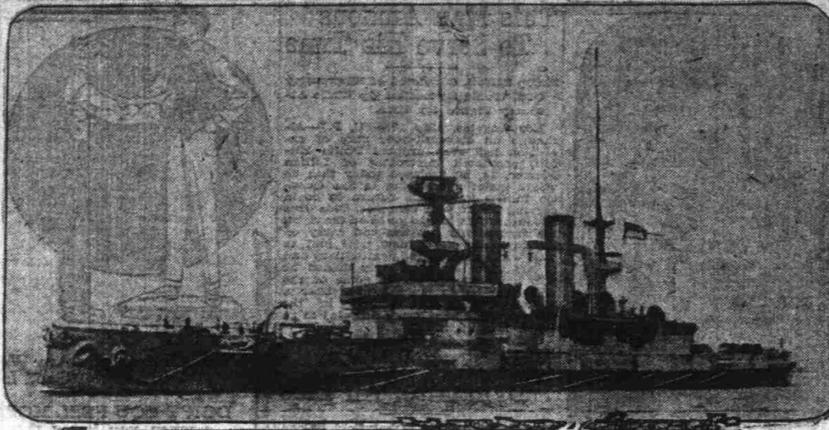

"Trust" Once Out Can't Get Back

Salem, Or., May 27.—Corporations that had been doing a trust business and filed supplementary articles eliminating the word "trust" from their names, following legislation in 1913 regarding trust companies, cannot now file supplementary articles reinstating the word "trust," according to an opinion given today to Bank Superintendent Sargent by Attorney General Brown. Those corporations which relinquished the rights have no longer any claim to them, and a mistake of law does not in any way validate their contract with the state, says Brown. Following a decision of the supreme court that the 1913 law did not affect corporations formed prior to that date, several of the corporations have been making an effort to put back the word "trust" in their names.

MAN FALLS IN FRONT OF AUTO AND ALMOST INSTANTLY IS KILLED

R. C. Inman, Carpenter, Apparently Confused at Machine's Horn.

Struck by an automobile driven by Wayne Stewart, aged 18 years, of 652 Clackamas street, Robert C. Inman, carpenter, aged 59 years, of 809 East 84th street, received injuries from which he died in a few minutes, at Grand avenue and East Morrisop street about 7 o'clock last night. Inman was crossing Morrison to board an eastbound car. Stewart was driving his machine west. As the man went in front of the automobile, Stewart reported that he sounded his horn. The sound seemed to startle Inman, who threw up his hands and half fell in front of the automobile. In an effort to avoid striking the man the car was run into the curb. The fender struck the victim, however, and he was hurled under the machine, both wheels passing over his body. Inman's skull was fractured and he received internal injuries, dying in an ambulance service machine as it was carrying him to St. Vincent's hospital. Miss Edna Stewart was riding in the automobile with her brother. Stewart, arrested for investigation, was released on his own recognizance. An inquest will be held tonight at 9 o'clock.

One of the features of today's opening ceremonies was Miss Spokane, the beautiful protégée of the Spokane Ad club, who, garbed as an Indian princess, occupied a place of honor in the parade.

Yakimas Insist on Old Fishing Rights

Seattle, Wash., May 27.—(U. P.)—An uprising of Yakima Indians near Prosser is threatened today because of the Indians' refusal to recognize the game law protecting salmon in the vicinity of the Prosser dam. Information has reached the office of Fish Commissioner Darwin here, that the Indians are arming themselves to keep at bay anyone who interferes with their operations. Since the opening of the Chillo locks a few weeks ago, a heavier run of salmon than usual has resulted up the Yakima river. The Indians are said to be using clubs to kill the fish.

Although the state law forbids any sort of salmon fishing within a mile of the Prosser dam, the Indians claim prior right to fish through a treaty made with the federal government years ago.

AUTO DISTRIBUTORS TO PARTICIPATE IN HOSE SHOW PRIZES

Two Trophies Will Be Awarded on Basis of Number of Cars in Parade.

INTEREST IS STIMULATED

Already Several Dealers Sending Circular Letters to Owners Asking Cooperation in Cup Fight.

An added attraction to the automobile parade to be held during Rose Festival week was announced yesterday afternoon by Ira F. Powers, chairman of the floral parade committee. The association has decided to give as extra prizes two silver trophies to be awarded to the Portland automobile distributor or agent, having the largest number of any one manufacturer's cars entered in the automobile parade in proportion to the total number of that make of machines licensed in Multnomah county on June 1, as shown on the records compiled by M. O. Wilkins. One cup will go to the distributor or agent of machines listing at $2000 and over, and one to the representative of machines listing at less than $2000. This offer is expected to stimulate interest among the Portland distributors and be an extra inducement for them to influence owners of their particular cars to enter and make the automobile parade the feature of the festival. In addition to the silver cups, the Journal has agreed to publish for the winning distributors pictures of five of the best decorated cars of the winning group in the Sunday paper following the parade.

Far more interest is being shown this year than ever before, in the automobile parade, and it is estimated that all former records for number of cars entered will be broken.
