MARKETING Every year hives delay buying current and winter's supply of jelly until it is too late. Probably more women miss current than any other fruit or berry for the reason that the season is very short. These delicious little 'jelly possibilities' are now in market and next week should see the jelly making process at its height.

SUGAR IS GOING UP. Due to the heavy demands made by European countries and to the fact that the fruit raising season is opening up. It is likely that it will advance even farther.

FLOUR WILL BE LOWER within the near future, according to those who are mistaking the situation in wheat will bring about this decline as well as the fact that it is exceedingly difficult to secure either steamers or railroads to carry the flour cargo to Europe.

ASPARAGUS IS PLENTIFUL and the demand is only fair. Evidently people have at last had their fill of this succulent vegetable. However, the prices remain rather high.

GREEN PEAS—the Oregon crop are coming into market in good quantities, but the demand remains so great that the prices are still high.

DIVINITY FUDGE Two cups brown sugar, half a cup of corn syrup, half cup boiling water, have the whites of two eggs beaten stiff, then beat into it the boiling mixture; add one teaspoonful of vanilla and one cupful of chopped nuts; beat until hard and creamy, then drop on buttered plate.

THE SHOPPER If you have been waiting to purchase your summer wardrobe you will be able to save many a dollar. I saw such a splendid array of bargains in suits and coats in that sixth street shop which specializes on ready made things. They are all this season's models and genuine 'snaps' at the prices asked. One is always able to pick up in this shop a bargain from a sample line or a broken line, hence it is a good place to include in one's round of the shops.

LAWS ARE CARRIED in the great numbers in this same shop. I was told that the very last word in headsets is the combination velvet and velvet and satin being black. A bit of color is introduced by means of fancy embroidery designs. The woolen yarn—doesn't sound so very attractive, but they really are very nifty.

MEDIUM PRICED WASH FROCKS are also shown in this shop in an all-wise variety of color combinations, kinds of material and styles of making. The prettiest ones are priced at less than $10 while there are those of great quality and attractive that may be had for less than $5.

IN MODISH ARRAY On black checked suits, white of black patent leather are to be seen. Old blue and black with white makes a charming combination.

WASH ARE SHOWN in this shop are a silk braided appears on satin and silk blouses, bindings and trimpings. Finely pleated grandy frills are excellent as neck and sleeve finish to dark dresses.

Little Stories for Bedtime

The Three Little Possums Meet Granny Fox.
Bumpy, Grumpy and Frumpy, the three little possums who were out to see the Great World, had been away from the old hollow tree where they were born for so long that they felt quite as if they had been out in the Great World always. This was their 'third' day, and three days in strange places can seem like a very long time to little folks, you know. Frumpy was still very sore from the bumps he had got when he fell from the tree in which he had mistaken Prickly Porky the porcupine for an old nest. He was very quiet as he trudged along behind the others. Somehow the things that Frumpy and Grumpy had had when they poked their heads into hollow trees and found others there before them didn't seem funny at all now. Before his own trunk he had chuckled and chuckled every time he had thought of how they had run. Now they were chuckling at him, and he didn't see anything funny in it at all. Presumably they came to the Logs wanted to go up the Lone Little Path, and Bumpy wanted to creep it and keep on where there was no path at all. So very foolishly they fell to quarrel.

The biggest, so of course I'm the leader, and you have to do as I say," said Grumpy rather crossly.

"Oh, such things!" declared Frumpy. "I'm the market, and the smartest always is the leader. We'll go down the Lone Little Path."

"Whether or you can lead me," announced Bumpy. "You ought to know that where there is a path there will surely be people to use it. Whether we go up or down it, we will be almost sure to meet some one, and it will be as likely to be an enemy as not. So we'll keep straight on where there is no path."

"Oh, we will, we will!" snapped Grumpy. "Well, we won't do anything of the kind. It is very much easier traveling in a path. Besides, a path must lead somewhere, and it is likely to be to a part of the Great World we want to see. So we'll go up the path."

But to this Frumpy and Bumpy wouldn't agree, and so the three foolish little possums sat in the middle of the Lone Little Path, and each grew angrier and angrier as he tried to make the others give in to him and the most people who see their traps set for them everything else. They forgot that they were new out in the Great World with dangers on every side. They forgot to watch out.

And this is how it happened that old Granny Fox, on her way down the Lone Little Path, with a very near brush to breaking up on her way down. She had been trying along with nothing in particular on her mind, watching out every minute as she always does in her way down. She stopped instantly, and her eyes fixed on the three little possums. She had never seen Grumpy Fox before, but he reminded her of her red coat, and he didn't wait for another look. With a warning cry he scrambled up a tree at the foot of which the three little possums were quarreling, and without looking to see what the trouble was the others followed him. Then from the first branches they looked down at Granny Fox.

Next story: "Granny Fox is Very Pleasant."

INTENSIVE GARDENING

As a garden plot can have constant attention, there is no reason why it should be idle between spring and fall. The experts have worked out a plan that has succeeded. It is no experiment.

Vegetables planted in rows less than two feet apart in the small garden are cultivated by hand. The wheel hoe, or a hand cultivator, makes weeding and straight lines should be followed in all the planting.

Briefly summing up the results of intensive culture, the succession of vegetables appears as follows:

Lettuce, radishes, followed by celery, lettuce and parsnips, followed by celery.

Carrots and beets, followed by kale, beans, early varieties, followed by fall cabbages.

Peas, late varieties, followed by fall cabbages, followed by fall potatoes.

Beans, followed by fall potatoes, cauliflower, kohlrabi, followed by fall potatoes.

Spinach, followed by spinach, eggplant, peppers, followed by spinach.

Cucumbers followed by turnips, melons or squash, followed by turnips.

Early potatoes, followed by fall beans.

Sweet corn, followed by fall peas.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS A woman whose household has been packed for a long time found upon unpacking that her centipedes and dolls which were embroidered in colors had turned yellow. How to bleach them without any damage was a problem. Upon advice she soaked them in buttermilk and they came out as good as new.

Cut off the hands and save the upper part of your long kid gloves in use either in making opera bags, when they are of delicate colors—or for polishing mirrors, cut glass, etc.

Best for use in holding soiled linen should be lined with bleached muslin. It is more sanitary than any kind of cloth and will not absorb odors.

NO POLICE MATRON For Medford City

Medford, Or., June 4.—An effort of local women to secure a police matron for the city failed at a meeting of the city council Tuesday night. Attorney B. E. Mulvey presented the women's case declaring that a great need existed for such an officer, but the council declared that conditions did not justify increasing the police force at the expense of $70 a week.

The Rogue River Public Service corporation of Gold Hill filed a bid at the last meeting of the city council asking for a 10 year franchise to furnish light to certain parts of the city. They declared their rates would be 20 per cent less than those now asked by the California-Oregon Power company. The matter was taken under advisement and referred to the proper committee.

Good Films Shown At the National

In "Unto Himself Alone," first of the Pathé-Balby series of "Who Pays?" the National has a three part drama that proves to be of exceptional interest. Of first importance is the cast headed by beautiful Ruth Roland and handsome Henry King. The two lead actors play difficult roles with finished skill and fine effect. There is not a member of the cast who is not equally good in lesser roles.

The plot is woven around a young woman who defies conventionalities and at the close each spectator is left to answer for himself the question of who pays the rebel, the wife or the husband? This picture is well set and well directed with some really effective water scenes. The bill is completed with a Pathé colored scenic and a Thos. M. Brown comedy, "The House of a Thousand Relations" with Rosemary Theby and Harry Myers. Dorothy Daphne Lewis delighted with her singing in "Louis L'Amour," at the organ, needs to tone down the accompaniment.
