

PLANS FOR STUDY AND THE PREVENTION OF TUBERCULOSIS MADE

Prominent Physicians and Social Workers Named to Call Meeting Soon.

TO DRAFT CONSTITUTION

Problem is Discussed Informally at Meeting at Library Hall Friday Afternoon.

Dr. E. A. J. Mackenzie, dean of the Oregon College of Medicine; Dr. M. B. Marcellus, city health officer, Mrs. Thomas D. Honeyman, vice-president of the Visiting Nurses Association, Mrs. Siddle Orr-Dunbar, corresponding secretary of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs and Charles DeForest, field secretary of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, were Friday appointed to draw up a tentative constitution and call a meeting in the near future for the formation of an Oregon Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

This committee was appointed at a meeting held in Library hall, presided over by Mrs. Sarah A. Evans and attended by professional medical men, nurses and others interested in this association and its work. The speakers were Dr. Hatfield, executive secretary of the National Association, and Mr. DeForest, field secretary.

Methods are suggested. Both of these men have been in Seattle attending the annual convention of the National Association. Mr. DeForest said in part:

"The time seems to be ripe for the organization of an association in Oregon which shall have for its object the systematic and scientific fighting of the great white plague. In bringing about such an organization I trust that the earnest, working cooperation of all clubs, fraternal societies, civic philanthropic and educational bodies will first be secured."

"Such an association should not dispense funds for the immediate relief of any case, however pathetic, but rather see that the case is cared for through another channel and dispense its funds for educational purposes, to bring home to the individual and families and to create public sentiment looking toward legislation for public health and common weal."

"In many states there are specific laws providing district hospitals and district nurses, dispensaries and laboratories. Even in this state such laws should be put on a thorough business basis with at least one paid worker."

"The sale of red cross seals has brought into the treasury over $7,000,000 during the past seven years, which is being expended for educational work along lines of exhibits, lectures, literature, etc. If you turn to the press with good, live matter you can always get plenty of space."

Dr. Hatfield said in part: "The National association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis for 31 years and it is now on a sturdy and substantial basis. It was founded on the ideal of a systematic grouping of every known way and means of stamping out this dread disease. We have aimed at all times at the big things. The spirit of cooperation is absolutely essential. The cause must be placed above and beyond that of person or immediate district."

"There must be a systematic organization of activities and this should begin with education. We must teach people how to detect the disease and how to prevent it. In this connection the exhibits have been found of great service."

"We know that not only children but adults as well, learn quicker by seeing than by telling. A visiting nurse with social training is one of the most valuable persons a district can have. While this association does not aim to give relief through its own organizations, one of its functions is to see that proper places are provided for the care of all cases."

"Health centers where examinations can be made, treatment given, visiting nurses established and laboratories and dispensaries placed, at the disposal of people so afflicted are greatly needed."

"The anti-tuberculosis campaign has had a greater effect on general public health than any other one campaign ever carried on in these United States. Make your membership fee small and your membership will in consequence be large and you will find that the gospel will spread rapidly. I would suggest as a slogan for Oregon, 'Every individual in Oregon educated on tuberculosis in 1915.'"

Dr. C. J. Smith spoke briefly of the establishment of a local sanatorium for the care of tuberculars. Dr. Mackenzie spoke of the sanatorium at

URNS OF FLOWERS DECORATE POSTOFFICE

The one permanent feature of the 1915 Rose Festival is the beautiful ornamental urns at the postoffice. Three public spirited florists, appreciating the civic pride of the committee of women from the bureau of social equity of the national congress of women voters, through whose efforts the six beautiful urns were secured and kept filled with choice roses during the Rose Festival, have donated potted plants permanently to fill these urns, which are to remain as ornaments at the postoffice entrances. The names of those donating the potted plants are: Gustave Burkhardt of Twenty-third and Gisan streets, George Seta & Son, and Niklas & Son. The committee soliciting the roses and filling the urns during the festival was: Mrs. W. E. Potter, chairman; Mrs. E. J. Stetela, who secured roses from Ivanhoe; Mrs. G. L. Bu-land, Mrs. Henry A. Johnson and Mrs.

Helen Miller Senn from the east side, and Dr. Mae Cardwell, Mrs. A. C. New-ill and Dr. Viola May Coe from the west side. Twelve hundred roses were used daily in filling the urns. The committee wishes to express their appreciation for the necessary assistance and encouragement given by Emery Olmstead and Postmaster Myers. Ernest Thomas, the artist who made the urns, contributed a large part of the cost of their construction as a gift to the city.

Salon, saying that while there were buildings to care for the sick, there was great need of a big governing body, such as a State Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. Dr. Hatfield spoke for the organization and at the close of the speaking the committee first mentioned was appointed.

San Francisco City Directory Grows

Contains 210,728 Names as Against 207,248 in 1914; Compilation Difficult on Account of War and Peace.

San Francisco, June 19.—(I. N. S.)—In the compilation of the 1915 city directory, published today, the customary tabulation of names dropped and new names added was abandoned. Departing subjects and citizens of warring European nations, and incoming fugitives from the unpleasant conditions of existence which war has brought in their train, resulted in a shift of population which Manager Moulton and his aids found themselves helpless to record in addition to the existing compiling of the directory, which shows a marked increase of population in spite of the patriotic exodus of those born here.

The number of names recorded in the 1915 directory is 210,728, as against 207,248 in the directory of 1914, and an increase of 3,480 over 1907. The work of compilation was completed in March, with a view to avoiding the inclusion of large numbers of transient and visitors at the Panama-Pacific International exposition. In spite of this arrangement, the pages of names received "too late for classification" are an even dozen in the 1915 directory, while in the 1914 volume there were only four pages. The extra pages of the 1915 directory give some intimation of the first great wave of new population which the exposition is bringing to San Francisco, for a large proportion of those entered in the 12 pages at the opening of the book have the letters "P. P. I. E." following the address or employment.

No Solution of Port Orchard Case

Authorities Still, However, That Wilbur M. Cleveland was Murdered and Buildings Burned to Conceal Crime.

Port Orchard, Wash., June 19.—(P. N. S.)—Barred in their attempt to solve the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Wilbur M. Cleveland, a rancher living nine miles south of Port Orchard, and the destruction of his ranch buildings by fire, the authorities of Kitsap county today are convinced that Cleveland was murdered and his buildings burned to conceal the crime. This also is the belief of Cleveland's daughter, who was in Seattle when news of the occurrence reached her.

Cleveland's disappearance furnishes the third mystery that has originated in the settlement where he lived during the past three years. Fred Bull, a rancher living not far from the Cleveland place, disappeared three years ago and his house was found burned. No trace of him has ever been found. Stephen Ramage, an eccentric recluse who was Cleveland's nearest neighbor, was found in his cabin a few months later with his head almost torn off by gunshot.

Peace Parliament at Point Loma Indorsed

Resolutions and Letters Received From All Parts of the World on Eve of Conference.

San Diego, Cal., June 19.—(U. P.)—Resolutions and letters urging peace in Europe have come from all over the world to the international parliament of peace to be held on Point Loma next week, according to announcement made today by assistants of Mme. Tingley, head of the Theosophical society, and that strong resolutions have come from peace societies of neutral nations of Europe. Grand Master Bledsoe of the California Masons and Sovereign Grand Inspector Widener of the Scottish Rite Masons have promised to send delegates.

The parliament will open at 3 p. m. Monday with a reception. There will be one public session Monday evening at Point Loma and another Tuesday evening in the Isis theatre in this city. A pageant, peace symposium and festival play will be other features.

PORTLAND GIRL IS WINNER OF MEDAL IN GERMAN PROGRESS

words "Dem Fleishe zur Ehre" (in honor of diligence). C. J. Schnabel spoke in part as follows: "I feel that the presentation of a medal for proficiency in the German language to a pupil of the Portland public schools at this particular time has a special significance. That significance relates to the fact that although a resident and native of an English speaking country, you are receiving a reward for your proficiency in a tongue which is foreign to it."

"Try to imagine what this means. Here I am today, addressing you in English in commemoration of your success in learning the German tongue, and leading your class in that study. Could anything illustrate the distinction between our great country and other nations more than this spirit of tolerance of liberty in a period of world-wide disruption and can such a condition be found elsewhere under any flag in the world?"

Advantage Pointed Out. "But without dwelling further upon a topic which requires no elaborate appeal to your intelligence, I wish to say a few words to you upon the value to you of an acquaintance with the German tongue. It is frequently remarked by public speakers and others interested in conveying thoughts and sentiments to the mind, the difficulty of expressing adequately peculiarly fine and infinitesimal shades of meaning involved in the translation of one tongue into another."

"I feel that this difficulty is especially true of the German language. Now when you take into account the treasure of poetry and philosophy and various forms of literature written in the German language, treasures conceded by the entire cultured world to be unsurpassed by any other literature or tongue, you will appreciate in a moment the significance to you involved in your capacity to read these productions and understand them in the original idiom and meaning in which they are prepared. I need not participate by mentioning any department or representative of the German literature."

Commercial Standpoint Important. "It is enough to say that any German scholar will agree that passages in Goethe, Schiller, Kant, Hecker, Richard Voos, Felix Dahn, Herman Suder-mann, Theodore Sturm, Max Walter, Eugene Kuchsmann and Clara Viator are absolutely beyond the capacity of any translator, however well versed he may be in the German language, to properly interpret in English the thoughts and expressions conveyed in the original tongue."

"Aside from this I think you are to be congratulated from a commercial standpoint on the advantage that is

Miss Margaret Slauson, daughter of A. B. Slauson, won the gold medal given by the German Verband to the scholar making the best progress in German. The presentation speech was made Friday at the Almsworth school. In the ceremonies this year by the German class, over 30 pupils sang various German songs and played German music under the leadership of Mrs. Lillian Thomas, principal of the school. The inscription engraved was the

TURKISH STRONGHOLD IS WELL ADAPTED TO REPEL ALL ATTACKS

Big Guns of the Allies Merely Tear Great Holes in Earth; Few Are Killed.

TURKS' RECRUITS LEGION

Constantinople Safe From Invasion Unless Some Unexpected Factor Appears Now.

By Henry Wood. (United Press Staff Correspondent.) Constantinople, via Berlin and The Hague, June 1.—(By mail to New York, June 18.)—The attack upon the Dardanelles faces unsurmountable obstacles. The consensus of opinion among well informed military authorities is that unless an unexpected factor should attempt to force the gateway to Constantinople is doomed to defeat.

The Turks have perfected a secret system of movable batteries, which not only prevents the allied fleet from locating the Moslem guns, but enables the defenders to maneuver in meeting attack.

Through the bombardment of the Turkish positions by the fleet is appalling, but little damage is done. The largest shells seldom kill more than two men when they explode. But they dig enormous holes in the earth and the Turks hide successfully until the bombardment is over. The wonderful protection afforded by the Turkish trenches explains why the bombardments of the allies preceding the infantry attacks, are ineffective. When the bombardment ceases the Turks leap from the craters and repulse the charge of the allied infantry.

I know personally that the Gallipoli peninsula bristles with nearly a thousand guns of the largest type. The resources of the Turks for men are inexhaustible. Recruits are arriving daily from all sections of the empire. Military and naval authorities tell me that the Turkish submarines have entered the Sea of Marmora, they cannot reach the principal units of the Turkish fleet which is moored behind impassable barriers.

destined to accrue to you in the future from a knowledge of the German tongue in its relation to the business of the world.

"You will find that when the present unhappy interruptions of trade and commerce are over, that the German language, next to your own, will still remain the predominating medium of communication throughout the world. So, whatever may be your destiny in the future, you stand to be compensated from every standpoint by the proficiency of your knowledge of the German tongue.

Must Continue Studies. "I advise you to continue your studies along that line by the selection of good books in the original editions of the authors, and you will not only find pleasure and entertainment in the progress of your education and familiarity with the German language, but you will realize profit in other ways as well."

"And now in performance of my duty and assignment on this occasion I present you a gold medal from the Confederated German Speaking Society of Oregon, commemorating your graduation in that department of literature. The performance of this duty is all the more agreeable to me at this

ROUMANIA NOW AT CROSSROADS IN THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT

She Must March One Way or the Other, With Germany or on Side of the Allies.

ROUMANIA MAKES DEMAND

Country's Course of Action Will Depend Upon Outcome of Negotiations With Russia.

By Nicholas Basilescu. (Professor of International Law in Bucharest University and a Deputy.) Bucharest, June 19.—(I. N. S.)—Roumania is at the crossroads and she must march one way or the other, with the allies or with the Germanic powers. Whatever her decision, it will have an enormous influence on the future course of the war, because it is practically certain Bulgaria will follow in her footsteps.

An agreement with Russia, which is an indispensable preliminary to Roumania's support of the allies, still seems remote. Roumania demands the retrocession of Bessarabia, which Roumania is disinclined to give, because it is the Banat of Temovar, which Serbia is intent on taking for the strategic protection of Belgrade, and because it is a very fertile country, and Transylvania, which Russia is ready to concede.

An equally important Roumanian demand is that Constantinople be made an international city. This is a question of life or death for Roumania, which would be economically and strategically strangled if Russia gained possession of the key to the Dardanelles straits.

It is also a vital question for the United States, which not only has $30,000,000 invested in Roumanian oil fields, but also important interests in Constantinople. I cannot say at this stage whether the allies can induce Russia to accede to our demands. Our services to the allies by remaining neutral have already been immense.

For 30 years Roumania has been Germany's ally through a secret agreement, personally concluded by the late King Carol and denounced by our government early in the war.

Germany offers us Transylvania and the Banat of Temovar as the price of our military assistance.

This is the present situation. Our course of action will be decided solely by the outcome of the present negotiations with Russia.

DANCED IN ROSEBUD PARADE

One of the attractive features of the Rosebud parade June 9 was given by the pupils of the Highland school. The children were led by the Misses Marie and Irene Watson, two clever little dancers who have been studying for the past four years under the direction of M. Christensen. Marie, aged 14, and Irene, aged 11, spent five weeks previous to the festival in tutoring the children of the Highland school in the art of dancing the Highland fling. That their efforts were successful was shown by the enthusiastic way in which the children were received along the line of march. Marie and Irene have appeared at the local vaudeville houses, where they have always been well received by the public.

W. F. Cowherd is Improving. Pasadena, Cal., June 19.—(P. N. S.) The condition of W. F. Cowherd, former mayor of Kansas City, Mo., and for 10 years a Missouri congressman, was reported today as improved. Today's report of the physicians at the sanatorium where Mr. Cowherd was confined for several weeks was of such an optimistic nature that hopes are now entertained for his recovery.

Apparently the telegraph editors are still in doubt whether ex-Lieutenant Becker is in Sing Sing awaiting electrocution or electrication.
