

OLD MT. HOOD WILL BE GOAL OF LARGE CROWD ON MONDAY

Veteran Guide Will Escort Climbers on South Side of Snow Peak.

CAMP IS BEING PREPARED

Masamas Hope to Send Messages From Summit to Other Snowy Peaks in the Northwest.

Watch Mount Hood Monday. If Mount Hood is not shrouded with clouds Monday noon, watch its summit. Formerly, at least 200 people are going to climb it Monday, and several are going to take mirrors, 12 to 18 inches in diameter and base if the weather is clear will give brilliant flashes which may be clearly seen from Portland. There will also be climbers on Mount St. Helens and at 12 o'clock sharp those on the two summits will endeavor to communicate with each other.

One hundred and twenty-five climbers on the north side, 130 on the south side. This is the number so far that have expressed intentions of making the ascent on Mount Hood Monday.

The largest crowd to ever stand on the summit of Hood at one time is expected, if weather conditions are anywhere near favorable at all. This is the third official Fourth of July climb under the auspices of the Masamas, and over 100 registered yesterday.

Elijah Coalman, veteran south side guide, who has been on top of Hood 215 times, has been given entire charge of the climb proper, Monday morning from timber line above Government Camp.

Cables Are Being Laid. Coalman yesterday afternoon left for the summit, and is busily engaged today in placing the cables at Crater Rock and above the big crevasses, just below the summit. If the weather is right, Coalman will guide alone, but other south side guides will be called into service if weather conditions are adverse.

Albert Haller, chief for the south side climbers, left with the baggage yesterday, and will have the big timberline camp in readiness by Saturday afternoon. Robert E. Hitch left yesterday for the north side of the mountain to prepare for the climbers on that slope.

Robert E. Hitch left yesterday for the north side of the mountain to prepare for the climbers on that slope.

Early tomorrow morning those attempting the climb will begin leaving for the two camps.

In recognition of the courtesy extended the Masamas by the Saddle Mountain club, which the former organization climbed Saddle mountain three weeks ago, the Masamas have invited that club to be represented in the Mount Hood climb by Saturday afternoon.

Robert E. Hitch left yesterday for the north side of the mountain to prepare for the climbers on that slope.

St. Helens to Be Climbed. The Multnomah club expedition to Mount St. Helens, under the leadership of John A. Lee, has been swelled to a membership of nearly 60. Mr. Lee expected to have the largest crowd on this mountain that ever made the climb at one time.

Over 50 persons have signed for the two weeks' outing of the Masamas at Mount Hood, which begins July 10. Enough others are on the prospective list, according to Miss Martha Nilssen, registrar, that at least 80 will be on the special train when it leaves Portland at 7 o'clock Saturday night of next week.

Pack trains bearing the Masama commissary equipment and over a ton of provisions are already moving up to Horse Camp from Sisson, Cal. J. W. Benefield left Thursday to make the camp, and he will be joined Sunday by E. H. Froudy, former president of the club, who has been in California all winter. Two other members of the club will leave here early next week to join Mr. Froudy and make preliminary ascents, mapping out the course of the main climb.

Juneau and Douglas Alaska, Remain Wet

Juneau, Alaska, July 2.—(P. N. S.)—Juneau and Douglas will remain wet, at least until after the general election upon the prohibition question in November, as the result of a decision rendered by Judge Jennings. Judge Jennings has ruled that Juneau and Douglas voted in favor of saloons at the elections held recently and has granted licenses to saloons for another year.

Concrete Buildings Burned to Ashes

Concrete, Wash. July 2.—(P. N. S.)—Half the business section of Concrete is in ashes as a result of fire which started shortly before midnight Wednesday, doing damage estimated at $50,000. Trapped by flames while asleep in a room over a drug store, Roy Hedrick had a narrow escape from death, sustaining serious burns about the face, hands and body. The fire burned out quickly, due to the fact that all of the buildings attacked were of frame construction. The origin of the blaze is unknown.

HINDUS FIGHTING BRITISH

San Francisco, July 2.—(P. N. S.)—News of a pitched battle between Hindu revolutionists, and British troops within four miles of Calcutta, capital of India, was received today by P. Ram Chandra, Hindu leader, who publishes a Hindu revolutionary paper here. The battle occurred early in June and the revolutionists were repulsed and fled to the mountains with their dead and wounded, according to the reports received by Chandra. The account comes from official British reports.

Stop Guessing

One little girl writes that she doesn't believe in guessing contests. A lady says, "I couldn't guess correctly in a thousand years." We have therefore decided to call it off. So you don't have to guess any more.

Here's a complete full view of the effervescing little personality for whom you have been watching for so many days.

"Bettie Bubbles" The Fountain Favorite

And below we show an example of the many hundred happy parties who daily find sumptuous sipping in

Celro-Kola 5c At All Fountains "First for Thirst"

You'll like "Bettie" as much as you'll like CELRO-KOLA—and you'll learn to love her when you know her better. Watch for her in this paper. Just to help you get acquainted quickly with the new 1915 drink, she invites you to try CELRO-KOLA right away, and enter the problem contest for the prizes listed below, which will be
