NO GENERAL FUND FOR FIXING STREETS

Four Persons Sustain Injury When Autos Strike Holes and Collide During Night.

CONDITION IS REVEALED

Attempts to Repair Street in Main Section Blocked by Abutting Property Owners.

By Marshall N. Dana.

There is no general fund for the repair of public streets.

Property owners may successfully remonstrate against repairs.

The property owners of upper Washington street did remonstrate successfully against the filling of holes in the pavement of that street.

Partly because of the holes in the pavement two automobiles collided on the night of June 26.

Four injured persons were hurried to a hospital.

But because there is no general fund for repairs and because owners of abutting property may, and did, successfully remonstrate against repairs, the city's hands are tied.

The most accident might be worse but the city is powerless to prevent repetition of disaster so long as the remonstrators have a majority in the locality where the paving is worn full of holes.

Situation Is Exposed.

The astonishing effect of present city ordinances relating to street paving and repair was revealed by Robert G. Dieck, commissioner of public works in correspondence that recently passed between him and Harry P. Coffin, chairman of the public safety commission.

The "safety first" commission was naturally anxious to render less likely such an accident as occurred at Twenty-first and Washington streets.

So, after detailing the accident, the chairman added:

"Two bad holes there, as well as several other holes, make it necessary for automobiles to take the center of the street or between the car tracks, narrowing the roadway to 18 or 20 feet."

To which Commissioner Dieck answered:

"I agree with you that the condition of this roadway is disgraceful and that the citizens, generally, should appreciate the attitude of this department in endeavoring to secure the repair. You must realize, however, since no general funds are provided and since the interested owners refuse to permit the repair at their own expense, the department may not act."

Petition Is Necessary.

The municipal commissioner also said that a $5 per cent petition must be filed before further proceedings may be undertaken within the next six months, and that an effort is being made to secure the petition.

It appears, in addition to the facts stated, that some action is being taken to resurface all of Washington street.

For a long time the holes in the paving of upper Washington street have taken toll from every passing vehicle. Every person driving by has feared accident.

The street is the most heavily traveled thoroughfare in the city.

But the present attitude of the city against improvement is as great where the need is most as where the travel and the need of repair are least.

What will be done?

One does not sympathize with property owners who will permit accidents rather than pay for repairs, but that is not their attitude. They feel that they should not be called upon to pay the entire cost of repairing paving that the traffic of the general public has worn. They probably do not consider accidents as much as those who do not have to pay for repairs.

Accidents Are Invited.

One would naturally think, however, that public necessity would rule in such cases, and that the city would prepare itself to serve public necessity with some emergency fund for, at least, temporary repair.

But the fact remains that under present city ordinances:

Repairs for Washington, Portland's busiest street, can be prevented by a few abutting property owners.

Also, the paving of Broadway east from the bridge to Third street, indefinitely postponed to the detriment of the entire northeast side.

Embarrassment to traffic and accidents, far from being prevented, are invited.

Accident to Woman Reported by Officer

When Patrolman E. V. Cochran went off shift Saturday night at 11:30 o'clock, he turned in a report as follows:

"I was crossing the street at North Broadway, about 50 feet from the crossing, when two autos smashed together on the crossing. One was a green auto, and the other a black one. The green one struck the black one in the side and skidded it around a little, and the black one put on high speed to get out of the way, and struck a lady and threw her several feet, where she lay senseless and was then picked up by a couple of men from the green auto. She was taken into a nearby auto building and was still unconscious when I left, about five minutes later."

Inquiry at the hospital failed to bring forth any further information.

Logger Is Knocked Down and Robbed

Leonard Lundquist, a logger, Saturday night was knocked down and robbed on North Third street. The robbers got most of the man's money, which consisted of proceeds from several checks he had cashed, a sum apparently about $100. While the police were waiting for the patrol wagon, Officer Collins noticed a man, who later gave the name of John Larsen, with something in his hand. This developed to be about $25 in money. Larsen explained that he had picked up the money in the street and was waiting to return it to Lundquist. He was placed under arrest on a charge of attempted larceny.

Electrically heated rollers have been invented for drying towels used by many persons.
