

SYSTEM OF CODING CRIMINALS SCORED, SITUATION REVIEWED

Stern Methods Advocated in Treatment of Offenders Against the Law.

CASES IN OREGON CITED

Criminals Are Not Mentally Deficient, Usually; Some Have Very Keen Minds, Says Writer.

By George A. Thacher. Last month Judge Kavanagh of Chicago made a bitter attack on the modern criminologists who have pointed out that many criminals are victims of mental defects...

"Too much sympathy has been wasted on the woman of the street. She is not mentally defective. She does not want sympathy but wants to be let alone. It is also true that she is uneducated, but for the same reason that the thief is uneducated. She was too lazy to acquire an education. It is high time to stop codding criminals, and inflexible handling is the way to stop the pernicious activities of young criminals."

"Crime Trust" Found. This is one phase of public opinion which overlooks the fact that the education of the great majority is acquired in childhood and youth. Another side is shown by the report of the city council committee on crime in Chicago, published March 22, 1915. In 1913 there were 109,764 arrests in Chicago and of this number 14,242 were on criminal complaints, burglary, murder, etc. Fifty-eight per cent of the men and 61 per cent of the women arrested were under 30 years of age.

Every jailer and policeman knows that prison is the best school for crime because of the close association of young offenders with hardened criminals. This is no argument for prisons, but it is a terrible charge against the management of prisons. Idleness in prison is the rule and the influential leaders in prison society are the most vicious and dangerous to be found in the state. This is the present practice of "reforming" the young persons who are sent to prison and describes as willfully selfish and ignorant and lazy.

There are three prominent qualities of mental defectives. The first is an absence of foresight, and the third is lack of self-control. At the same time, the defective may possess a good degree of cunning and manipulative ability. He may even have a special talent, like that of Blind Tom for music. He may have a faculty of genius, like that possessed by Giteau, who assassinated President Garfield. It is very common for these mental defectives to have unusual mechanical ability.

Probably the best mechanic in the state of Oregon is in the penitentiary at Salem for an offense against his little daughter of very tender years. Some weeks ago I went over the rolls of the penitentiary and found 75 men serving long terms for sexual offenses, usually against the female children of their own families. These men, in the opinion of the chaplain and others, were feeble-minded. This illustrates the lack of judgment, foresight, and especially the lack of self-control, of the mental defective.

Probably a majority of the hoboes, the women of the underworld and petty thieves are feeble-minded, while the forger for small sums, some burglars and occasionally murderers are feeble-minded.

The assassin of Carter Harrison was a weak-minded young man, and so was the assassin of President McKinley. At the time President McKinley was assassinated, I was living in Washington, and circumstances led me to get a pretty complete history of Giteau, who committed the murder because of which he had absolutely no qualifications. Giteau had all the markings of a high-grade mental defective. He was always changing his business and getting into trouble because of dishonesty. He could not make an honest living, and so landed in the state dead-beat who rarely paid board bills, while his personal habits were those of the typical feeble-minded. His lawyer set up the defense of insanity, but the court ruled that he knew the difference between right and wrong, and so he was convicted and hanged, babbling on the scaffold, "I am going to my Goddie in the sky."

Outcast did not have a certain faculty for language or literary gifts and was usually judged men and women by what they say, he passed during his life for a near-crook of bad habits, and at the end for a particularly vicious murderer. Leaving to one side the woman of the underworld, the constitutional drunkards and hoboes who commit petty offenses, I will refer to cases of murderers who are undoubtedly feeble-minded.

The Humphreys brothers killed a woman at Philomath a few years ago under circumstances which showed an utter absence of foresight and self-control. They were convicted and hanged at Salem, showing great stolidity and lack of comprehension of their crime. The prosecuting attorney told them that the men were both feeble-minded. Dr. E. E. Lee Steiner, superintendent of the insane asylum, assured me that he was the family physician, and that he knew them to be feeble-minded. Last fall a beautiful and intelligent young woman in Portland by Fred Tronson, a feeble-minded person, who could not hold any kind of a job and who had neither intelligence nor self-control. The prosecuting attorney referred to him as a fiend, and so far as his actions went, he had the fiendishness of irresponsibility.

PORTER CHARLTON IS TO BE EXAMINED AS TO HIS MENTAL STATE

Young American Charged With Murder Will Be Tried In the Fall.

New York, July 10.—(L. N. S.)—On the night of June 5, five years ago, 30-year-old Porter Charlton beat his middle-aged wife to death with a mallet from the United States. Then he fled to Europe on a steamship. He was arrested in London, and when he returned from his drunken fury, recovered her body from a trunk and hid it in the trunk of a motor car. He was arrested in London, and when he returned from his drunken fury, recovered her body from a trunk and hid it in the trunk of a motor car.

Justice has moved with leaden feet in Charlton's case, but most of the long delay has been his own fault. For three years he fought extradition from the United States. Then he was taken back to Como. After being confined in Italy one year he would have been tried last summer, but the war caused him to spend still another year in jail, an unconvicted man. Charlton's obvious defense is adolescent insanity. He married when an inexperienced youth a woman wise in all the ways of the world, a divorcee, a woman of violent character, who is known to have tried to slay one of her admirers. Dominated by her, he led a life of idleness and dissipation until the war caused him to spend still another year in jail, an unconvicted man.

Charlton can look upon the five years he has spent in prison with some equanimity, for they will be deducted from whatever sentence he receives. He is not indicted for cold blooded murder, but for "unpremeditated murder," the maximum penalty for which is 15 years imprisonment. Sixty-six students of the Portland law department of the University of Oregon recently received their degrees of bachelor of laws, and it is believed that more than one-third of these will actually engage in the practice of law. More than two-thirds of this number are included in the list of 83 persons who passed the state bar examinations last week, held in the crowded main corridor of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York. Following her divorce she went on the stage and next became an artist's model in New York. On August 2, 1909, the sensation of the day was her attack on William E. The prosecuting attorney told them that the men were both feeble-minded. Dr. E. E. Bill was doing and brought in the big trout to show his patient, who nearly had a relapse. Now Bill declares Doc just operated on him to get his appetite for bait and caught that big trout with it. On the other hand the prosecution is said to be preparing to prove that Mrs. Charlton was not yet dead when Charlton doubled her up inside the trunk.

London, July 10.—London has a mystery in the discovery of the mummified bodies of two babies in a building where many women employed by a large commercial firm live. The bodies were discovered in a trunk. They were buried in quick lime and enclosed in a wicker basket and sent to have been there some time. Scotland Yard is working on the case.

New York, July 10.—Nagging by his wife Minnie in one year reduced his weight from 175 to 105 pounds. Charles Gerhold, of Clifton, N. J., treasurer of the New Jersey Manufacturers' association, testified yesterday at Jersey City in a suit for divorce.

Physicians said he would die unless he was relieved. After remaining away from home for a year his normal weight was restored, he testified.

Bill and Doc went fishing the first two days of the season and brought in nice catches. A couple of days later Bill was taken sick. His wife called up Doc on the phone and caught him just as he was starting fishing. He diagnosed the case as appendicitis, got out his instruments, performed the operation, got Bill back to bed and hurried off to go fishing. He came back to see how

CORONER TRIES TO PLACE BLAME FOR DEATH OF WOMAN

Uncovered Well, Where Victim Was Drowned, Called Death Trap by Police.

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Mary Jones, wife of C. L. Jones, 251 1/2 Third street, who was drowned when she fell into an open well near Fifteenth and Spring streets, Friday, while gathering blackberries are not to be made until word is received from her two daughters in Ohio. The body was removed from the morgue to Pinley's parlors yesterday afternoon. The body was found at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning by Patrolman Stanton after searching parties had searched all night Friday and several hours Saturday morning. The top of the well was obscured by weeds and grass, and it is believed that Mrs. Jones walked directly into it.

According to the police, the jump and fall from the regular death trap and several people and animals have fallen into it before. Investigation is under way by Deputy Coroner Smith to determine who is responsible for the well having been left uncovered. Mrs. Jones left her home early Friday morning to pick blackberries in the woods on Fortmann Heights. Her absence was discovered by her husband when he arrived home Friday night. Search immediately instituted was continued by the police and Patrolman Stanton, remembering that there was a deserted well in the neighborhood, led searchers to it.

The body was found floating in the water which was about 8 feet deep. It is believed that Mrs. Jones fell into the well Friday morning.

Death Story Finds One Long Lost Son

Chicago, July 10.—Wide publication of the pathetic story of how Abraham Littlejohn died a few days ago in Chicago after having called daily at the postoffice for years hoping vainly to get a letter from his son, John, who had disappeared 17 years ago, resulted in locating the son at Wichita, Kan. He read the story in a paper and wrote home.

Woman Plans Own Funeral, Then Dies

Yankton, S. D., July 10.—Arrangements which Mrs. Zimmerman, a Sioux Indian woman, perfected while in good health were carried out at the woman's funeral. Some time ago, when Mrs. Zimmerman was in the best of health, she called an undertaker to her home, instructing him to bring his catalog and samples. From these she selected her monument and casket. She supplied the undertaker with an inscription which would be placed on the casket. These arrangements were completed she wrote out a check covering the funeral expenses and the undertaker died this morning.
