WHO HAS AUTHORITY SINCE MERGER CAME?

Two Applicants for Electric Franchise Aspire to Operate Upon St. Helens Route.

DOES CITY NOW CONTROL?

United Railways and O. M. Black Interests Both Taking Chance on Legality of Franchise for Line.

Although the question of the county commissioners' authority to grant franchises along the St. Helens road to Linton since Linton became a part of Portland, was raised by City Attorney La Roche this morning, the board will receive the franchise bids tomorrow and will act upon the requests Wednesday.

Mr. La Roche held that, under the charter provision to mean jurisdiction have authority only over county roads outside the city and construed a section of the city charter giving authority over county roads within its limits to mean only powers to maintain, repair and improve.

Two Franchises Sought.

Two franchisees are being sought along the road. The United Railways, whose franchise was revoked some months ago, is asking the right to maintain a freight spur, and O. M. Black is asking for a passenger line for a freight and passenger line to Linton to replace the United Railway line.

Corcoran C. H. Carey, for the United Railways, had a draft of a franchise ready for submission, but changes were suggested which will be incorporated in the new draft.

Montague offered, for his clients, to agree upon a minimum service of 12 days a week, with a charge of a fare of 5 cents each way. He offered to incorporate a clause giving the county 6 per cent of the net income for the right of way.

Road as City Street.

City Attorney La Roche said he had already taken up with the city commissioners the proposition of taking over the road as a city street, and that this probably would be done.

HANLEY ADJUDGED IN CONTEMPT OF COURT, MUST PAY COSTS

Wealthy Harney County Stockman Declared to Have Violated Decree.

$250 DAMAGES ASSESSED

Two Others Also in Contempt and Dams Are Ordered Removed From Silvers River.

William Hanley, the "Sage of Harney County," wealthy stockman and landowner, today was decreed to be in contempt of court for violations of a former court decision which limited his rights to erect dams and use water in the Silvers river of northern Harney county.

Along with him the court found H. H. Hottel and Carey Thorburn in contempt also.

The latter two are ordered to immediately remove dams they built in the river, and Hanley in addition is ordered to pay the Pacific Livestock company $250 damages, pay its cost of action, and is enjoined from use of its dam known as the Young and Lull dams.

The decision today is a result of a suit brought by the Pacific Livestock company recently in which it alleged Hanley and several other co-defendants were guilty of contempt of court because they erected the dams in question and diverted the waters of the river to their own lands, in violation of a federal court decree handed down several years ago, which granted the plaintiffs a certain amount of water for their lands below Hanley's holdings and limited users above.

Bryan Is Coming To Portland Soon

Former Secretary of State Says He Has Several Chautauques Dates in Oregon and Washington in View.

Hermosa Beach, Cal., July 12.—(U. P.)—Barefoot, clad in a dripping bathing suit, over which a light duster draped and with an old felt hat on the back of his head, William J. Bryan, former secretary of state, greeted a big delegation of admirers at the edge of the sun-bare hills at Hermosa.

The "Commoner" cordially shook hands all around, while his two grandchildren clung to the skirts of his coat. It was one of the most informal receptions in his career.

Just before meeting the delegation Bryan took a surf bath in the presence of several hundred spectators. Despite his assertion that he would not go in bathing "with a band," the shore was black with people when Bryan came in an appearance that he dropped hat and coat on the beach and plunged boldly into a comb.

There was an immediate outburst of handclapping from the spectators. Glasses were leveled at the Nebraska, while he swam, and kodak flashes lurked nearby.

Asked if he planned to make Chautauque speeches in the northwest, Bryan said he would go to Portland after visiting San Diego and seeing San Francisco again and then to Chautauque dates in Oregon and Washington were under consideration. "No definite arrangements have been made yet," he said.
