

What Society is Doing

BY NONA LAWLER

MRS. J. B. MONTGOMERY has arrived in Portland after her extended travels east and south and is now stopping at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Walter F. Burrell. Mrs. Burrell is visiting her cousin and Mrs. Bernard Kelly, wife of the British consul, at Seattle for a few days.

Mrs. Montgomery has been away from Portland since the middle of December, when she went to New York to join her daughters, Mrs. Rufus F. Zogbaum and Miss Montgomery. In February she sailed for Panama in company with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Wood, of New York. Returning to New Orleans they visited the southern states and came to California, enjoying 1800 miles of motoring through the south. They visited the Grand Canyon, Los Angeles, San Diego and returned north to San Francisco, where they passed much time in viewing the exposition. Mrs. Montgomery will probably remain in Portland for the summer. Her daughter, Mrs. Zogbaum, is passing the summer at Newport, R. I., at "DeBlois Cottage." Her husband, Lieutenant Zogbaum, was assigned early in June to command of the government transport Caesar, which is plying the Mediterranean with supplies for the two American naval vessels which are stationed there and is now in the Mediterranean war zone.

Cakes Streaming In.

For the French Red Cross benefit, which is to be a cake sale at Gearhart Park July 17, cakes are literally streaming in. Contributions of the rarest and best are promised by the society women of Portland and the women who are summering at the beach. Gay posters have been done by a group of society girls, including Miss Shanna Cumming, Miss Marjorie Hoffman and Miss Lesley Smith, to advertise the affair at Gearhart. The summer visitors at the beaches near about there are keenly interested in the event, which will be held at the cottage of Mrs. David T. Honeyman. Cakes and cookies will be sold there during the afternoon and tea will be served.

All who are interested in contributing to the cause of the French Red Cross and wish to donate cakes or give orders for them, are invited to communicate with Mrs. J. Andre Foulhoux, in Portland, or Mrs. Honeyman at the beach.

Mrs. Schofield and Daughter Here From Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Richard M. Schofield, wife of Colonel Schofield, of the quartermaster's corps at Washington, arrived in the city last Thursday accompanied by her daughter, Miss Margaret Schofield, and plans to pass the summer here with her mother, Mrs. George D. Smith, and her sisters, Mrs. Ned Ayre and Miss Laura Smith. The Smiths have given up their home on Westover Terrace and will be located at Mrs. James Zan's residence on Pettygrove street, until their new home at Twenty-fifth and Irving is completed. Mrs. Zan and her children have left for Gearhart Park for the summer.

Much entertaining will doubtless be done for Mrs. Schofield during her stay here. Miss Schofield is passing a few days at the home of Mrs. Mary Campbell.

Miss Mary Ashe Miller, Portland Visitor.

Miss Mary Ashe Miller, of San Francisco, who made many friends in Portland when she was here a year ago, made her return to Gearhart recent, has been a Portland visitor for the past few days and will leave today for Tacoma. She is doing advance work for the Chicago Little Theatre company, whose artistic performances of "The Trojan Women of Euripides," at the Festival Hall at San Francisco, recently created a sensation in the society set of that city, under whose patronage the production was given. The play will appear here on Friday and Saturday at the Heilig. Miss Miller expects to return to Chicago with them.

Everybody is invited and admission to the grounds will be free. The club members include many prominent matrons and men who are managing the event.

MRS. CAMPBELL'S ART IS FINELY SHOWN IN STRONG PINERO PLAY

"Second Mrs. Tanqueray" Is Well Done by English Players at Heilig Theatre.

By Rex Lampman.

Against social barriers as inexorable as cliffs that front the sea, Paula, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," is beaten and killed like a bird by the storm.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, in the title role, played the great play at the Heilig last night, revealed her transcendent powers as an actress of tragedy. With the utmost sympathy for the character, with Paula, a woman with Campbell exercises the finest restraint at times when perhaps an artist less honest would forget the part just a little. But restraint is not the word for Mrs. Campbell's fitness. She does not restrain herself. Rather, she works with that high surety which beyond doubt and fear.

Shadings as delicate as those of a cloud whose grayness is varied by the light that sifts through—these are hers.

Contrasts as sharp as the blade of lightning against the midnight—these are hers as well.

Teacher of the science of psychology could go to school to Mrs. Campbell, for in her "Paula" she reveals the mind's most secret and sudden changes, that at a heaven or a hell may be contained.

The story of the play is that of the marriage of Aubrey Tanqueray, a young man who returns to live with him and her stepmother, who is left alone by society as though unclean. The girl, sensing what her stepmother has done, cannot care for her, although Paula tries to win her affection. Mrs. Tanqueray finds that they cannot either live for themselves alone or without the presence of other people. They are wretched. A neighbor condescends to call and then takes the daughter on a trip to Paris. The daughter falls in love with and is betrothed to a young captain, who turns out to be an old flame of the stepmother. From this discovery the play moves rapidly to its culmination in the suicide of Paula.

Mrs. Campbell's supporting company, every one of them, are worthy to appear with her, and their work blends with hers in a perfect harmony. Pinero painted when he wrote the play.

Mr. Herbert as Aubrey Tanqueray, it would seem, approaches perfection. Perhaps another might play the part differently and as well, but surely not better.

Mr. Bateman, as Eileen, the daughter, achieves distinction in a difficult role. She is delightful.

Edgar Kent, as Carlye Drummond, the good friend of the Tanquerays, makes friends for the part and for himself with his strong, sincere rendition.

Mr. George Orreyed, a gentleman "goose" is very in love with and is betrothed to by George Frederick and Lady Orreyed, his vulgar consort, is equally well done by Gwladys Morris.

Madeline Meredith as Mrs. Cortez, you is to be remembered for the clear character she creates, and J. W. Austin as Captain Ardale fills a minor though important part very cleverly.

"There is nothing obtrusive in the production. All is well balanced and complete.

It is to be regretted that "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" is not to be repeated. "Pygmalion" will complete the week.

Suburb of Detroit Shows Big Growth

Automobile Factories Cause Village Population to Increase Over 500 Per Cent in Five Years.

Washington, July 14.—A special census of the village of Hamtramck, Mich., made at local request and expense, shows the population of that village on June 28, 1915, to have been 21,520. The increase since 1910, when the population was 3559, has been 504 per cent. The present population comprises 21,342 whites and 278 negroes. The census was taken by local enumerators under the supervision of an official of the bureau of census, Eugene F. Hartley.

Hamtramck is a suburb of Detroit, lying just to the northeast of that city. Its remarkable growth is due in great measure to the presence of large automobile factories within and near its borders.

Jews Flee, Fearing Starvation.

New York, July 14.—(U. P. N. S.)—Nearly 1,000,000 Jewish men, women and children have been driven from their homes in face of death or starvation in the European war zones, the American Jewish relief committee announced today in its latest bulletin.

"The expulsion of Jews from the Russian provinces during the last month has been appalling," the bulletin says.

BREEZY VAUDEVILLE AT EMPRESS STARTS

CRITIC LIMERICKING

Dorothy Herman, With New Tune, Is Hit of Show; Other Numbers Good.

By Rex Lampman.

That lovely girl, Dorothy Herman, is the hit of the show, we determine. She has only one tune, just a swinging, snappy croon—but there's other good stuff in this program.

There's a don and a lady from Spain, whose dancing is perfectly sane. The beholder's amazed; and their pay should be raised every week or two—that much is plain.

There's a couple young fellows who sing as if 'twere the easiest thing. They have volume enough to tip over a bluff, or stop a fast freight on a wing.

Three girls and three boys in a skit, talking, singing and kissing a bit, show those dear college days in the craziest ways—'tis enough to give father a fit.

Louise Cox cuts out pictures from paper—in fact, he cuts many a caper. Shadows thrown on a screen—if you know what we mean—whatever it is, he can swing it in easy. What, you say that the whole thing is wisecry? Well, the show is all right. At the Empress last night, we saw the whole thing, and it's breezy.

Strange Woman Acts Mysteriously

Residents of Barton, Clackamas County, Suspect That Wanderer in Woods Is Actually Unhappily Married.

Residents in the vicinity of Barton, Clackamas county, have been mystified and somewhat worried by the appearance and actions of a strange woman, who called at the home of Mrs. Fred Turner last Friday. She is described as a fine looking woman, with long, beautiful black hair hanging down her back, and wearing a thin brown skirt, light waist with a torn grey veil for a shawl, an old white knit shawl and a red silk rag over her head.

At the Turner home she inquired the way to Baker's ridge. She was seen later near the Tackerman home, and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas on the Damascus road. After leaving there she met Mrs. N. A. Grayman and her guests, the Misses Zong and Gessner of Portland, who were on a picnic stroll through the woods. In an excited manner she asked to tell their fortunes. It is suspected her mind is unbalanced.

TELEPHONE BOXES IN DOWNTOWN STORES ROBBED OF CONTENTS

Police Suspect an Organized Gang of Thieves Is Making the Raids.

An organized gang of telephone box thieves is believed to be at work in Portland as a result of the discovery that telephone boxes in a number of downtown hotels and department stores have been broken into and robbed within the past few days. Detectives Goltz and Abbot are now working on the case and believe that they know the identity of the robbers.

According to the report made to the police the boxes of telephones in the Perkins hotel, Portland hotel, Major Frank department store, Olds, Wortman & King store and the Oregon Electric depot were robbed since Saturday. It is believed that a number of other places have been robbed of which no report has been made to the police.

All of the telephone boxes robbed are located in booths where they may be broken without being seen by anyone outside.
