

THE JOURNAL

Published every evening except Sunday and every Sunday morning at the Journal Building, 222 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Telephone 1000.

Liberators are spending money in like proportion, and M. Sembat asks: How will it be possible to pay the debts contracted or the interest on the loans and at the same time keep up costly wars, and debts on the past without accumulating expenditures for social reforms which impose themselves today upon all civilized peoples?

IN UNION

Why does not the Columbia river get its full share of commerce? Inquiry is to be made. It will be a formal and searching investigation of the question.

THE AMERICAN NOTE

There is a generous change of position by Washington in the note to Berlin. A willingness is manifest to offer no further objection to submarine warfare provided that warfare be conducted according to international usage.

AFRAID OF THE PEOPLE

Extreme conservatism tending towards the reactionary seems to be the dominant note in the proceedings of the convention formulating a new constitution for the state of New York.

CHICAGO AND LIQUOR

Growth of the temperance sentiment is illustrated by the fact that next April Chicago will vote on the liquor question. There is actually to be a test between the wets and dries in the country's second city.

OUR NEW SUBURB

A forerunner of what the Columbia River highway means is already being recognized at Hood River, says the Hood River News.

WHO WILL PAY?

Marcel Sembat, French minister of public works, says the war is costing France $10,000 a minute. That is $14,000,000 a day and $256,000,000 a year.

Some central body instead of in local boards as at present. There has been some agitation to have the state convention restored by constitutional mandate as a vehicle for party nominations.

LOW PRICED TEXT BOOKS.

The state of California prints its own text books for the schools. In round numbers, last year the saving over what would have been paid if publishers' prices were $257,000.

California has been printing text books since 1886, and has been supplying them free to pupils since 1913. Originally the teachers in California public schools wrote the text and the state printing office produced the books.

In such homes the wife does not think of pay for working overtime. There is no demand for an eight-hour day and advance of wages. The home is a partnership, the efforts of both husband and wife are a cooperative society with equal division of profits for the stockholders or member units.

When woman comes to realize that the home is the ante-room of her husband's business office, and that she is a help or hindrance to that business, she is not a wife, she is a servant.

At the general election in 1912 the constitution of the state was amended to reorganize the state board of control and to establish a system of free text books. The free text book system became operative January 15, 1913.

During the fiscal year of 1913 1,379,154 were distributed and 13,516 were sold to dealers, private schools and others.

It will bridge the present gap between Prindle and White. Henry James writes letters about ambulance funds in England.

WHY THE CLOCK OF THE ARTS HAS STOPPED

A modern composer once wrote a music drama in the strain of northern mythology to show people how "the old order changeth" and how the great heroes and demigods who once inspired men's deeds and kindled their imaginations are sooner or later overwhelmed by new events, new heroes, a rising generation.

THREE FRIENDS

How seldom, Friend! a good man inherits Honor or wealth, with all his worth and pains. It sounds like stories from the land of spirits. If any man obtain that which he merits, Or any merit that which he obtains.

THE LORD'S PRAYER'S PLURAL PRONOUNS

Charles Stealie in Philadelphia North American. Today, in thousands of churches throughout the land, millions of men, women and children will repeat the Lord's Prayer. They have been doing it for many years.

THE MAJESTIC WOMAN

Shall a wife be paid a salary for her services in the home? The question is answered in a leading article in the August Mother's magazine by Darra More, whose career as a writer began on The Journal.

A true wife is not dependent upon her husband. She does as much toward the making of the joint income as he does, and she receives a fair division from the profits of the partnership.

Women who turn their homes into beautiful laboratories, who do not without husbands may find peace and inspiration; women who keep their husbands up to the mark mentally and physically, who do not let their failure or disappointment come help men to accept it as an incentive to greater achievement.

When woman comes to realize that the home is the ante-room of her husband's business office, and that she is a help or hindrance to that business, she is not a wife, she is a servant.

IT SIGNIFIES MUCH

From a commercial standpoint Skamania county, Washington, is tributary to Portland, and for that reason there is considerable local interest in the fact that the county has recently voted to issue bonds in the sum of $210,000 for the purpose of constructing a highway along the Columbia river connecting with the road systems of its neighbors.

When the road is completed a large territory will be brought in closer connection with Portland over the interstate bridge.

It will bridge the present gap between Prindle and White. Henry James writes letters about ambulance funds in England.

THE ONCE OVER

Since last Sunday when I told the little story about a big girl who was as far in arithmetic as the guzzintans many little stories have come to me about little boys and girls.

For instance—there was the little girl who had a dream-very little dream—in which she and her Aunt Nellie were the principal actors.

And there's the little girl who lives out at Oak Grove and plays with Buddy and Jean.

PRO-FREEDOM

The difference between America and the larger part of the world is that the larger part of the world has never trusted the individual to self-government, and by self-government is meant not merely the right to choose one's political officials, but the right to govern one's own career according to one's abilities or conscience.

THEY TAKE THEIR CHOICE

From the Philadelphia North American. "The city manager" system is gaining in America, but some cities seem to be content with having a city broker.

INDEX OF ADVANCING TIDE OF PROSPERITY

From the Chicago Herald. General business in the United States keeps on gaining. Led by the steel, iron, copper, lumber and cotton industries, the whole country is showing a steady evidence of further expansion.

THE OREGON COUNTRY

John T. Todd lives at Roseburg. A day or two ago we sat on a bench together where a crowd of thousands of oak covered knolls north of town.

When I was 18 I went to work for a firm in Missouri that manufactured furniture. I was well paid for my work for them till the spring of 1850 when, with three other young fellows, I went to California to work for the California Iron Works.

Oregon. I came to Astoria on the Columbia and from Astoria to Portland. I came on the "Lot Whitman" to Portland.
