In addition to this event, there will be the Waverley bowl competition for men and women on the Waverley links and the weekly ball sweepstakes of the Portland Golf club,

Next month promises to be the busi est of the past several seasons, the feature competition being the team matches between the Waverly Country club and the Portland club players. The monthly Waverley now! matches will be played and the Waverley Country club handicap committee is trying to make arrangements to play its return match with the Eugene Country

The Portland Golf club will stage handicap tourney next month under the Root system of bandicapping for special trophy donated by the Golfers Magazine. The Heitkemper trophy tourney, for players whose handicaps are over 12, will be staged next month, as will the tournaments for the Gross handicap cup for men and the H. L. Keats ladies' cup.

The handicap committee of the Wav-erley Country club will stage its medal play competition to select its team, which will battle with the Portland Golf club representatives September 1. The date of the qualifying round of the Portland club team has not been set, but it will likely be held some time this month, probably during the week of the 15th.

Much interest is being displayed in the coming match between the Waverley Country club and the Portland Golf club players. The first of the matches will be staged on the Waverley links Saturday, September 4, and the second match on the following Saturday. If a third match is necessary it will be played September 18. Portland Golf club members desiring to participate in the Golfers' Magazine trophy tournament will have to turn in their five best cards (18 holes) on or before August 31.

The system of handicapping for this ourney, explained briefly by "Chick "The very simplicity of the Root system should appeal to golfers, as the handicap at the home club, if from par, applies at all other clubs, no mat-ter what the different pars may be. The same scores made over different courses are not the same games, rela-tively speaking. That is, an average score of $1 made on a par 71 course is not as good golf as the average of $1 made on a par 75 course. So a man handicapped on 81 over man handicapped on 81 over a par 7: course would get 6 strokes, medal play, under the Root system, and this would also be his handleap when he played at a 75 par course. The man who averaged 81 on a 75 course. who averaged 81 on a 75 course, playing nearer to the par, would get a handicap of four strokes there and would apply this on all other courses, no matter what their par figures are.

The following interesting article rom the Chicago Evening Post bears out the theory of a number of well known specialists in nervous disorders, who have been recommending golf to afflicted persons.
