SICILIAN BUTTERCUP AN EXCELLENT BREED

By C. H. Unwin.

Frequently I am asked which is the best breed of egg material to keep. If the inquirer means the breed from which he will derive most profit and pleasure I answer without hesitation, the Sicilian Buttercup.

Their unrivaled laying powers, coupled with their beauty and tameness, and last, but not least, their small feed consumption are rapidly making them the most popular breed in the western states.

They are best described as all-the-time round layers. No weather conditions daunt them. No matter what the weather—bitter winds, icy rain, frost or snow—you can always rely on a good supply of eggs in the Buttercup nests. Even when in their fullest molt their wonderful vitality enables them to keep on steadily laying.

They are easily handled, the most valuable characteristic that a breed can possess, vitality. The very day they are hatched they commence to grow their wing-feathers, and are ready to pick on hatched can be reckoned as cockerel or pullet grown, but accidents, for their vitality makes them practically immune to the various ailments that carry off so many chicks each season.

They are the most beautiful of all breeds. The neck is broad and curved with long, curved tail feathers and handsome spreading comb, and the hen of golden buff plumage, with black spangles, make a pair that cannot be equaled for beauty.

Their appetites are surprisingly small, they will do well on half the ration of corn needed for Leghorns, and they are excellent foragers, and if allowed free range, will find the greater part of their food for themselves. With feed at present price, this quality of theirs largely accounts for their popularity.

CHILDREN KEEP MOTHERS YOUNG

animal meal in the ration for ducklings will make a gain of about three to five per cent, and the whole is vegetable; that over 20 per cent more food is required to make a pound of growth on a vegetable diet than with a diet having a mixture of meat; that 'crowded yards are the source of most of the evils to which poultry are liable; that a dust bath is as profitable for their weight as any other food; that the buying of cheap or imperfect birds with the intention of 'breeding up' is not profitable; that a rapid purpose hen is not come yet, but the Houdan Wyandottes are in the lead now; that

"For forms of government let fools contest; That which is best administered is best."

But if we substitute for "forms of government" the word "different breeds," the maximum will be as pertinent in poultry as in politics.

Disease Poultrymen Do Not Recognize

That many poultrymen are mistaking a disease known as aspergillosis for bacillary white diarrhea is the belief of Helen Dow Whitaker, head of the poultry division of the State College of Washington. The confusion more readily is made by those who are affected with either disease show diarrhea. In both cases affected birds move about with drooping wings, are very weak and wish to drink constantly.

Aspergillosis, or brooder pneumonia, as the disease is called when it affects very young chicks, is a disease of the respiratory tract and is a fungus growth which develops in the membranes of the nostrils, mouth and throat, finally affecting the lungs. It may in time extend to the digestive system, producing whitish or yellowish nodules in the tissues of the liver, and even the intestines. Sometimes these spots are flat and slightly greenish in color, due to the growth of the mold on the surface of the diseased area. From the beginning the breathing of the young chicks is difficult. Death results from exhaustion or suffocation.

The disease is caused by eating moldy or moist food. The spores are most often found in straw litter or other material that has become moldy. In the case of brooder chicks which are given to scratch on the floors of their brooder, or in decaying vegetation, or in spoiled corn or corn meal. If there is an old hen or yellow hen in the rubbish heap in which fowls have access, the disease is likely to develop and one bird will transmit it to another. It is a disease difficult to cure, and it cannot keep young without children. It is the children that keep a woman ever youthful and make her retain her beauty in youth. Mrs. Barr has five children, nine of whom are still living.

MRS. AMELIA BARR

Jamaica, L. I., Aug. 28.—Mrs. Amelia Barr, the famous novelist, who at the age of 86 is writing her sixty-eighth novel, stopped long enough in her literary labor at her home here to give a few views on women in general.

"America is likely to develop a race of prematurely old women," said Mrs. Barr. "Business women grow old in mind quickly and it shows in their faces. Women are not built for business primarily, and when they enter it, they are likely to become masculine, more coarse in their manner and feelings."

Mrs. Barr deprecates the lack of Christian faith among the modern women. "It is appalling," she said. "Men may do without God, but women cannot. Her crowning remark was that women cannot keep young without children. It is the children that keep a woman ever youthful and make her retain her beauty in youth. Mrs. Barr has five children, nine of whom are still living."

FIRES NEAR MOUNT HOOD CALL OUT BIG FORCE OF FIGHTERS

Lightning Started the Blaze Which Has Spread Into the Green Timber.

SANDY DESERTED VILLAGE

Area of 2000 Acres Has Been Burned Over—Believed to Be Under Control.

Sandy Is Deserted.
Sandy, Or., Aug. 28.—Sandy is practically deserted, every able bodied man and boy, and many women and children having gone to fight the forest fire in the mountains back of this city.

Men from the surrounding country who are passing through on the way to the fire.

There is an unconfirmed report here that a number of berry pickers, shut off from their wagons and camp outfit, have perished in the flames.

The fire started yesterday noon and this morning the forestry department had 50 men there fighting, and by this afternoon 25 or 30 more were added to the force.

The fire which was started by lightning on Saturday night, started in burned over timber, but has spread to green timber.

For several days large fires have been burning, one 10 miles east of Mount Hood, White River, and another 20 miles south of Mount Hood, on the headwaters of Clackamas river. The one on the Clackamas river, near Shel Rock, is reported to be under control.

It burned a little less than 1000 acres. The one on White river has covered about 1000 acres. It is believed under control. Fifty men are fighting it.

All the fires were started by lightning.

Tygh Valley Sends Help.
Tygh Valley, Or., Aug. 28.—Four automobile loads of men left Tygh Valley Tuesday and Wednesday to fight forest fires that are now burning near Clackamas lake.

Latest reports are to the effect that at eight different places the fire is getting a big start. When an order was given for the Tygh valley to send Tygh Valley turned out all that could go, even those that had business at home.

Trout Lake Is Threatened.
Hinsum, Wash., Aug. 28.—The forest fire a few miles west of camp 5 has been put partly under control by a crew of men in charge of Assistant Chief of Forest Supervisor of the Columbia forest reserve.

Mr. Cohoon and his crew of 15 fire fighters left for Trout Lake. Two other men with two different forest fires are raging, threatening the town and settlers in the upper valley section of the White Salmon river.

Men from Housum and White Salmon have also left for Trout Lake to fight fire.

Prospector Connel Drowned.
Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 28.—(U. P.)—W. B. Connel, prospector, was drowned while attempting to swim across the Koyukku river. He was an old time miner.

Trips to Steal Piano.
Fresno, Cal., Aug. 28.—(U. P.)—Not satisfied with having stolen two truckloads of household furniture from the residence of the late Mrs. A. F. Ooms, an attempt was made to get away with an $800 piano and was caught.

Trial Divorce This Time.
San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 28.—(U. P.)—The wife is understanding that she would take her husband back at the end of a year if he behaved, Mrs. Bessie Judge was given a divorce.

Crippled for Life.
From the Pathfinder.
Speaking in favor of increased armaments at a luncheon in Washington some time ago, Representative Anthony C. Bonfante, of New York, was asked by the opponents of armaments to understand present day conditions as little as the English had understood war, in one of the streets in the town where the fire occurred the day he heard about Jim? He's been wounded by the Germans. Ain't it terrible?"

"How's he been wounded?" asked a girl.

"It seems," the boy explained sadly, "the Germans have cut off his retreat."

Secret Chambers.
David Grayson in the American Magazine.

It is a curious thing how people surprise us. In our vanity we begin to think we know them to the uttermost, and then one day, possibly by accident, possibly in a moment of emotion, a little secret door springs open in the smooth panel of their visible lives, and we see within a long, dark corridor with other doors and passages open away from it in every direction the vast secret chambers of their lives.

When Sending the Eggs to Market A Few Essentials To Insure Success

Producers of eggs, perhaps, know as little of their distribution as consumers do, says the Iowa Farmer. To producers and consumers eggs are of two classes, the most popular being the man who stands between the poultry yard and the breakfast table, eggs are graded as fancy, fresh, fresh gathered, storage packed, limed, known marks, first, seconds, dirties, checks, rots, etc.

In marketing eggs, remember that quality makes the difference between a selling price and a buying price. Insist on the quality basis, otherwise you have to make up to your dealer for his loss on your neighbor's eggs.

Market your eggs as often as possible. It is not profitable to hold them for better prices. Fresh eggs always command the most price. Eggs should be held in a warm place, heat and shrinkage will cause a loss. If held in a damp cellar, rots, molds and bad odors will reduce the price. Eggs should absorb odors. Keep them away from decaying vegetables and fruits, oils, greases, etc.

Clean Eggs.
The poultry man finds at times that he can not wash every stain from his basket of eggs with water but by rubbing the stains with home made elder vinegar every trace of the bluish will be removed and leave the egg clean and shining. He should always be careful that his water is clean, and he takes time to market. If he does not receive a higher price for clean eggs than for dirty ones, he certainly ought to.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Eggs in Salt.
To the Editor.—Please tell me how to pack eggs in salt for winter use.
MRS. A. L. A.

Salt is a very poor substance to pack eggs in, being but little used to preserve them. It is better to use the egg should be packed small end down. Use the waterglass method, which has been given many times in The Journal.

White Chicks Among Blacks.
To the Editor.—I have five Black Langshan hens and a Black Langshan cock. I have also five white Plymouth hens. I set one nest with eggs laid by my own hens. Have one nearly white chicken with a few black spots on its back. The other chickens perished. They all lay brown eggs, but one egg I set I remember was quite white. How can I get white chicks perished. The black rooster runs with all your hens. Think it probable that there is a strain of white blood in one of your Black hens. It is very common to find a white egg in a nest of Black eggs. I have seen this in the past, and that a harking to this "sport" chicken.

Corrosive Sublimite for Mites.
To the Editor.—You recently published directions for using corrosive sublimite for killing mites on poultry, and I have lost the copy, so would appreciate having you re-publish it.
W. C.

Corrosive sublimite is very poisonous and you must be careful with it. Use one part to 1000 parts of water. Spray on the walls, roosts, floors and nests once a week. It is very what is commonly called chicken mites or chick ticks. For lice we found nothing better than Lee's or Lilly's lice powder. It is used according to directions on can.

Poultry Hints.
Feeding your chicks is important, but the importance than the care they have.

The Leghorns, Minorcas, Black Spanish, Anconas and Houdans are white eggs.

Many prefer 2-year-old hens for breeders. At least have yearling hens well developed if they are the breeders. Eggs from old hens are not so good as better than a whiter usually sets the quickest and best.

The coming of hens to prevent their flying over the fence will have no effect whatever on egg production.

Eggs to feed the table scraps to the fowls. Milk is one of the best feeds for egg production.

In building a foundation for a poultry house, that will keep out rats, it is best to go about two feet below the surface of the ground.

The early birds are the hens that find a market willing to take them at a good price.

A hen house without a south window is a mistake, and will not give satisfactory results.

Diarrhea in Chickens.
The best way to treat intestinal troubles in chickens at this time of year is to prevent it. If the birds must be confined in a yard, keep the ground under their feet as clean as possible. Have all the drinking vessels and feed troughs thoroughly washed with hot water at frequent intervals. It is best to keep a few drops of turpentine in the drinking water, so as to make a good intestinal disinfectant.

Some of the advertised chicken remedies are good.

Another Poultry Pointer.
A poultry note from a Kansas paper: "You can always tell whether a hen will lay by the color of her tongue, as claimed by Herlin. The forties, if said tongue is pink, let the hen live, he advises, but if it's whitish and spotted, let the chicken have the ax. There's nothing to her but a good fricassee."

Don't Breed From Diseased Birds.
No fowl should ever be used in a flock that has been diseased. If a bird has life had a contagious disease, but no harm can come from using birds that had been afflicted with slight colds or frozen combs.

Meets Brother, After 40 Years.
Richmond, Cal., Aug. 28.—(U. P.)—"Ours is the longest family reunion," said a man over the fence, to Dr. J. Riley, at work in the yard. The doctor didn't know his brother whom he had not seen in 40 years.

GENERAL PERSHING IS SPEEDING NORTHWARD TO CLAIM HIS DEAD BODIES OF WIFE, THREE CHILDREN BURNED AT PRESIDIO BE INTERRED AT CHEYENNE.

San Francisco, Aug. 28.—(I. N. S.)—While Brigadier General John Pershing was in the military post here for Fort Bliss, Texas, to claim the bodies of his wife and three children who perished in the Presidio fire yesterday, a board of inquiry, appointed by Major H. P. Whitney, was busy continuing its investigation of fire hazards at the army post.

Major Whitney, commandant at the Presidio, has received the following telegram from General Pershing:

"Tell Warren that papa will arrive on the Golden State Limited at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning. I desire to leave for Cheyenne as early as possible thereafter."

Upon his arrival tomorrow, General Pershing will meet only surviving members of his family, his 5-year-old son. The gallant army officer has been prostrated by the tragedy.

Major Whitney has made reservations for the general and his family at the Overland Limited, leaving tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock for Cheyenne. The burial will take place at that city, and will be held at the military post, and Mrs. Warren, parents of Mrs. Pershing, also will arrive here tomorrow morning.

The army board of inquiry, aside from satisfying itself that the fire started from an open grate in the dining room, has looked into the anti-gangster conduct of fire fighting apparatus at the Presidio, the lack of a sufficient number of hydrants and a drilled force of fire fighters.

In this regard Fire Chief Murphy says he will call on Major General Murray, commander of the department of the west, to urge necessary changes in fire protection and fire fighting apparatus at the military post.

Army officers say today that the fire dangers of the Presidio have been reported to Washington authorities on frequent occasions, but without result, as has developed the last two years.

Mrs. George H. Schall and her three small children, the family of an army sergeant, died in the Presidio fire in Tennessee Hollow in almost exactly the same manner as the Pershings did.
