

OREGON FRUITS MAKE GOOD IMPRESSION ON EXPOSITION VISITORS

This State's Exhibitors Are Eagerly Awaiting Findings of the Jury of Awards.

BIG CROWD ON LABOR DAY

Picture Theatre in Oregon Building Filled to Capacity Five Times That Day.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 11.—With fresh fruit, peaches particularly, coming in in good shape, Oregon's exhibitors are watching with a lot of expectation for the findings of the jury of awards which will be announced in a few days.

C. N. Ravlin, chief of the horticulture exhibits for Oregon, has watched the shows of California, and other growers, and believes that the shipments which have been coming from the Rogue River valley are due for an award. Oregon fruits have been showing up at their best, large in size, yet consistent and good in flavor.

The pears from the Rogue River valley are believed to be especially desirable. H. C. Frolach, representative of the southern Oregon districts, has one of the best fruit displays to be seen on the grounds, which is attracting considerable attention.

O. M. Clark, chairman of the Oregon commission, and president of the Chamber of Commerce, is now the resident commissioner at the Oregon building. With him is Mrs. Clark and their young son.

Over 100,000 people visited the exposition labor day. To those at the Oregon building it seemed as if every person of that crowd came within the doors.

The picture theatre of the building has made quite a name for itself, and on labor day the Columbia river highway and other interesting pictures of the state were shown to at least 1,000 people, which means that the theatre, with its limited capacity of 200 seats and half as much standing room, was crowded to the doors five times.

This is one of the few of the 76 shows on the grounds which actually gets people to applaud and make some show of appreciation. The one that always raises a show of emotion is the Pendleton Round-Up film.

One of the most asked for is that of William L. Finley, state biologist, who shows the fish and game life of the state in its natural haunts.

The biggest day of the month struck the Panama-Pacific Exposition Thursday, when the Native Sons and Daughters celebrated Admission Day. The 100,000 mark was touched and passed again, making it one of the real big days of the fair.

The Oregon building was one of the places where the Sons and Daughters took their lunch. The Oregon commission, noted for its hospitality, had a long row of chairs and tables arranged on the balcony overlooking the bay, where the Californians lunched.

Mias Christopherson, the Portland aviator who is supplying Mexico with war aeroplanes, has just announced the manufacture of a war motor. It is a special type particularly suited to the needs of the present day war machine, allowing it to operate at almost every angle. It has been proclaimed very successful.

Mrs. Charles A. Gray, hostess of the Oregon building, has as her guest Miss Ruth Chambers of Eugene.

Miss Crystal Hyland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Hyland, has as her guest Miss Margaret Rader of Portland. Miss Rader will be with the Hylands for a month.

Portland motorists and those of the Pacific Coast in general expect a lot of good to result from the Pan-American road congress, which takes place in Oakland next week.

A new member on the program is Senator Arthur Languth of Portland, who will speak on the duties of the community towards keeping up the roads. Mayor Albee's representative to the conclave is John B. Yeon.

Milton Infant Dies.

COMES INTO PROMINENCE

Wesley Frost, the young American consul at Queenstown, has probably enjoyed more prominence since the Germans began waging their submarine war than he will again experience in all his consular career. Ordinarily the Queenstown post is quite uneventful, but with three great liners sunk just off the coast and the passengers landing near the town in small boats, there has occurred in the past few months at that point enough striking events to push this young consul to the foreground of worldwide interest. Beginning with the Lusitania and the loss of so many American lives, there came the sinking of the Arabic and after that the Hesperian disaster. Each of these tragedies has helped to make Frost one of the best known men in the whole consular service.

AUSTRIA HAS CONCLUDED TO RECALL DUMBA

Given indirectly by Ambassador von Bernstorff that the German note on the Arabic incident should satisfy the United States and that the "breaking off of diplomatic negotiations" so frequently mentioned in American newspapers could only result in war.

The ambassador denied he had authorized such a statement, but refused to say whether or not it represented his views.

The ambassador was said to have declared his belief that England is striving industriously to embroil the United States in the war and was being aided by the American disposition to "see things through British spectacles."

Dr. Dumba, who had remained in his rooms at the St. Regis hotel all day, save for a brief automobile ride, left this afternoon for his summer home at Lenox, Mass. Bernstorff will go to Washington tomorrow.

Bernstorff's Statement Satisfies. Washington, Sept. 11.—(U. P.)—Reputation by German Ambassador Bernstorff of an alleged interview in New York in which he was quoted as predicting war if diplomatic relations with Germany were broken, caused satisfaction and some show of relief in official quarters tonight. Officials could not believe that the ambassador would directly court displeasure of this government by such a statement.

In diplomatic circles it was pointed out, however, that Bernstorff had frequently stated he would deny and repudiate any and all alleged interviews with him which did not come as formal statements.

Bernstorff's visit here last week, it was understood, is to learn if reports that Captain von Popen, his military attache, was persona non grata were accurate and also to give further assurances regarding his alleged freedom from entanglement in the Dumba affair.

INDUSTRIAL SECTION OF LAND PRODUCTS SHOW IN DEMAND

More Than Half of Exhibit Space Has Already Been Snapped Up by Exhibitors.

OUTLOOK ENCOURAGING

Management Offers 15 Per Cent Discount to Exhibitors Who Take Space Before September 25.

More than 50 per cent of the exhibit space set aside for the industrial section at the coming Manufacturers' & Land Products show has been spoken for and contracts are being signed, according to the manufacturers' bureau at the Chamber of Commerce.

The exhibitors at this year's exposition will include the largest firms in Portland and the northwest and the success of the exposition from the standpoint of a large and varied display is already assured.

"We are meeting with fine success in the disposal of space in the manufacturers' section," says A. J. Kingsley, president of the exposition. "R. B. Bain, Jr., chairman of the manufacturers' exhibit committee," continued Mr. Kingsley. "is meeting with great success. He reports there is great interest in the fall exhibition. There is hardly an exhibitor taking part in the show last year but what will be with us this year and space is in great demand. Then, there are a large number of firms who remained out of last year's show that will be with us this year."

The management of the exposition is offering 15 per cent discount to all exhibitors who take space before September 25. This is the usual commission to professional solicitors. So far no solicitors are in the field and the selling of space has been handled by the special committee representing the manufacturers' bureau of the Chamber of Commerce.

More than a dozen counties of the state have already written for space in the land products section and the agricultural and horticultural display this year will be the greatest ever assembled in the west. Many counties will send their exhibits to Portland direct from the state fair at Salem. A number of communities to exhibit at Salem will prepare special displays for the exposition at the Armory, October 25 to November 13.
