

ISAAC B. HAMMOND, PIONEER MINING MAN, DIES THIS MORNING

Hardships During Life Believed to Have Hurried End of Portland Business Man.

THIRTY TRIPS TO ALASKA

Stories of Mining Camps Never Failed to Attract Hearers; Funeral Arrangements Not Yet Made.

Isaac Barton Hammond, a veteran of every mining boom that the Pacific coast has known since 1858, died this morning at the home of Mrs. J. L. Easterbrook, 146 East Twenty-sixth street.

As head of the Hammond Manufacturing company, dealing in mining machinery, Mr. Hammond had followed the fortunes of every camp in the west. He had made 30 trips to Alaska alone, and had spent two summers in the city of Nome.

Mr. Hammond, due it is believed to the hardships he had undergone in his life, aged speedily during the past year. He was sixty months of age when the end came at 10:20 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Hammond was slightly over 71 years of age. He was born in Lakewood, New York state, May 24, 1844. He spent his early boyhood there and at Kankakee, Ill., where he formed the friendship of H. E. Cowgill, with whom he was associated in business during the greater part of his life.

Came Here in 1888. When the Union Pacific started its construction work out of Omaha, young Hammond was one of the first men to secure a position in the work on that line during the entire period of its construction, and gained a wide knowledge of machinery and its uses, which he later turned into the mining work which he followed during the balance of his life.

After the road was completed he went to the Black Hills at the inception of the mining boom there. He was there till 1888, when he first came to Portland en route to Alaska.

The year later he went to London and secured a contract for installing a 120 stamp mill at Doyon in Alaska. That mill failed and Hammond secured the power plant and reshipped it to Portland, organizing the Union Power company.

The next year H. E. Cowgill and Hammond organized the Hammond Manufacturing company, which still exists at First and Pine streets. Was Good Story Teller. No man could relate more grippingly than Isaac B. Hammond. A nephew, G. E. Byrnes, a contractor, living at 270 East Thirty-ninth north, two others, Dell and Albert Byrnes, of Kelso, a brother-in-law, J. B. Byrnes, of Kelso, a brother-in-law, Ellis Powell, of Kankakee, Ill., and a nephew, I. W. Powell, also in Illinois, are the only relatives known to Portland friends. Mrs. Hammond died eight years ago.

The funeral has not been arranged, but will be with the return of G. E. Byrnes from Kelso this afternoon. During his 25 years in Portland, Mr. Hammond made many friends. He was a member of the Arlington club, and his stories of his experiences in mining camps never failed to attract hearers. A short time ago he published a small book of these experiences, which he presented to his friends at Christmas time.

Rockefeller Dines In "Grub Shack"

Takes His Turn at Single Tin Basin Outside to Perform His Ablutions.

Berwind, Colo., Sept. 21.—(U. P.)—Miners at the "grub shack" of the Colorado Fuel & Iron company still talked today of their meal with one of the richest men in the world yesterday.

That man was John D. Rockefeller Jr.; out on a "get acquainted" trip of inspection of his properties and men for the first time in 11 years.

The young multi-millionaire was democratic. Without any formality he took his turn at the single tin basin outside, the shack and after "washing up" dried his hands and face on the community towel towel.

In shirt sleeves just like the grimy men about him he sat down to a dinner of beans, mashed potatoes, beef with plenty of gravy, bread and butter, black coffee and rhubarb and grape pie. "These look bully," he said, "as he lifted a big dish of steaming baked beans. "I'll start them going."

"You'll have pot luck," said the Irishman presiding over the shack. "That suits me," replied the oil king heartily.

Tony Sordakowski, engineer of an ore train, sooty and attired in greasy overalls, sat at Rockefeller's left. The camp superintendent, Tom Davis, was at his right. Introductions were thus: "Mr. Borovick, Mr. Rockefeller." During the strike, it might have cost Rockefeller's life to enter the shack. Yesterday he was accompanied by no guards, though his private secretary and a company official kept close watch.

Millionaire Accused.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 21.—(U. P.)—W. E. Slaughter, president of the defunct Mercantile National bank of Pueblo, was arrested here today on charges in connection with the wrecking of the institution. Slaughter is reputed a millionaire, and hails from Dallas, Texas.

How to Keep Face Young and Attractive

The way to ward off old age is not to fear it, not to allow one's self to be oppressed by the dread of advancing years, but to take legitimate preventives and avoid trying experiments with preparations not endorsed by physicians. An entire safe and very effective way to keep the complexion young-looking and beautiful is to apply ordinary mercuric wax at bedtime, using it like cold cream, washing it off in the morning. This gradually absorbs the withered, fat, which is replaced by the more youthful, pink-tinted under-skin. One ounce of this wax, to be had at any drug store, enough to completely rejuvenate a worn-out complexion. Crow's feet and other wrinkles, the first signs of advancing age, may be removed by a simple, harmless preparation made by dissolving an ounce of powdered salolite in a half pint witch hazel. It is used as a face bath.—National Hygienic Review. (Adv.)

SHE WILL NOT MARRY PROFESSIONAL DANCER

EUGENIA KELLY

Mackinac Island, Mich., Sept. 21.—Miss Eugenia Kelly, daughter of the New York banker, and recently headliner in all the newspapers because of the suit brought by her mother to restrain the young lady from attending the Broadway dance palaces and squandering her fortune with professional dancers and cabaret artists, has proved herself a real woman, by changing her mind about marrying Al Davis, the professional dancer, with whom Miss Kelly frequented the White Light resorts.

Saturday, Miss Kelly, who is staying with her mother, announced that she would wed Davis, who has recently been divorced from his wife. On Sunday she denied that she would marry him.

BIG GRADER WILL WORK

A good grad demonstration will take place near Hidden station on the Northern Pacific, just outside of the city limits of Vancouver, Wash., tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock. Invitation has been extended to officials of Multnomah, Clarke, Washington and many other counties to be present. The Russell Grader Manufacturing company, of Minneapolis, with offices in this city, will furnish a $800 pound grader for the occasion. A new road, 30 feet wide and about two miles long, will be built. This demonstration will be entirely free to anyone wishing to attend.

ATTORNEY FOR POWER INTERESTS BELIEVES FERRIS BILL ILLEGAL

Measure Declared to Interfere With Rights of States; May Retard Development.

Frank H. Short of Fresno, Cal., a leading attorney for power interests, who looms large in the water power conference, gives the Works bill or a similar measure as his idea as to what legislation should be passed by congress.

This bill provides that the lease of rights of way for power use shall be equal in terms to those granted for waterpowers, and the rental determined upon a value determined in court proceedings like that of condemnation. Regulation he would leave entirely to the state.

His objection, he says, goes not to the tenure of the lease in the Ferris bill, but to the attempt of the federal government to fix any tenure at all, in what he terms is interference with the rights of the states. He maintains that the Ferris bill is unconstitutional for several reasons, and particularly because it bears unequally upon the states containing public lands.

"It is supposed to be a government by the constitution," he declared, "but because some of us insist upon standing by the constitutional limitations and protecting against rule by a federal bureau at Washington, we are denounced. Now, the ideal place is Mexico. There they are not troubled by the constitution and everything is right."

It will be to the interest of the east, he contends, to hold down western development, that might bring competition with eastern industries through cheap power. Therefore, he argues, under the Ferris bill, the tendency will be to charge a high price for government lease of power sites, and retard the development of the west.

Visited the Pipe Line.

Oregon City, Or., Sept. 21.—William Andress, chairman of the South Fork water commission, Mrs. Andress and children, Commissioner M. D. Latourrette and son, Edith, made a trip over the almost completed pipe line to the headworks Sunday. They were well pleased with the progress of the work.
