Several cranberry bogs around Ilwaco. Wash, have been picked and picking is still in progress in several others. Most of the picking has been done on the three and four-year-old bogs, and there were some remarkable yields for so young a class of plantings. The market is reported to be around $10 at harrel. Following are some of the yields: A.F. McAfee from two acress of four-year-old vines picked 93 harrels. The McAfee from two acress of four-year-old vines picked 93 harrels. The McAfee from two acress of more and three fourths acres, has gathered 100 barrels. A.B. Moore, from one and three fourths acres, has gathered 100 barrels. This place was purchased early this spring for $2500 and the net returns from less than two out of the 10 acres in the tract will equal bearly half the purchase price.
