WOMEN OF PORTLAND EXPRESS VIEWS UPON DEFEAT OF SUFFRAGE

Some of Those Interviewed Emphasize Necessity of Federal Amendment.

Portland women are keenly alive to eastern politics, particularly to the situation in the states seeking equal suffrage. A number of women who were prominently identified with the suffrage movement in Portland were asked this morning for any comments they might have on the outcome of the elections in the east with special reference to the defeat of the suffrage amendment.

Dr. Esther Pohl Vejo—The defeat of the suffrage amendment in the eastern states is indeed deplorable and the outlook for future success is not made any brighter by the anti-democratic tactics of the Congressional union. A big vote in the eastern states has been lost by the anti-democratic action of this organization and I cannot help feeling that particularly in Pennsylvania, where the amendment lost by so small a margin, that had the Congressional union not existed and been active there, the women of Pennsylvania might have gotten the ballot. The anti-party tactics are bad and have had only a harmful effect.

Mrs. L. W. Threlkeld—The defeat of state suffrage in the eastern states is a great campaign method only emphasized the political necessity of the passage of the Bristow-Mondell federal amendment as a leverage to successful state campaigns. The enfranchised women should realize now more than ever that it is through the western states that the eastern and southern women will succeed. National and individual publicity work in the east is a campaign is on should be the solemn duty of every enfranchised woman.

Mrs. Frederick Egbert—The majority in Pennsylvania is much less than I expected it would be. There is such a large class of ignorant foreigners in the New England states that the matter of education along political lines progresses slowly; however it is beginning to show marked results. I am sending a suffrage magazine to a friend in Connecticut; she is not yet converted to the cause, but in a recent letter she admitted that "equal suffrage is bound to come." The aggressive and offensive methods of the Congressional union are hampering the progress of the suffrage cause in this country to a greater extent than many people realize. When Miss Mary Garrett Hay, president of the New York Suffrage association, was in Portland last year, she told me that if suffrage had been lost in New York this year, it would be because of the harmful work of the Congressional union.

Mrs. Grace Watt Ross—The outcome is just as I expected, although I was not sure that the progress the movement is making as shown by the big suffrage vote polled. All intelligent people realize now, I think, that it is only a matter of time until the states will all have it.

Mrs. Vincent Cook—I am more encouraged than I can tell you. For New York to lose by only 150,000 votes is marvelous when one considers the great strength of the "interests" in that state. Think of the trusts, the liquor interests, the great manufacturers who have suffered at the hands of women strikers, all these and many others, yet in the face of all this the cause is gaining and is gaining fast. I am well satisfied with the results of the election.

Dr. Florence Sharp Mantion—The crushing defeat of suffrage in the east is a practical demonstration of the futility of state campaigns. The result of this defeat will be concerted action of all enfranchised women and the proponents of suffrage toward the federal amendment. This defeat shows the waste of energy of the old methods and makes the federal amendment a necessity.

Mrs. Emma B. Carroll—Political injustice to women has evidently not yet made men. The election in the east is proof of an ever-increasing premium on the power which tends toward universal justice. In the light of the heroism of self sacrifice that the American women have displayed in their educational campaign to awaken in the minds and souls of their men a consciousness of the rights, powers and purposes as human beings, the election returns are appalling. Preparedness that will build for peace, human construction or conservation cannot emanate from any race or nation which deliberately denies and withholds from its women what it deems necessary and good for its men. The election returns are a reflection of my faith in the federal amendment.

ART IN SANDWICHES

One correspondent, Mrs. A. T. S. of the Dalles, asks for suggestions for making sandwiches for afternoon and evening parties, requesting something out of the ordinary. The hostess who learns the art of sandwich-making is always well fortified against problems when serving an informal luncheon to guests.

Instead of the old-fashioned button bag which was so inconvenient to look over, use the glass jar with a patent top, thus the buttons and beads and such sort which collect may be easily looked over without taking out, and also they will be kept clean and better preserved.

TO CLEAN METAL Some people realize that pieces of brass and copperware are greatly enhanced in beauty if they are kept quite shinningly bright. They should be as carefully attended to as the silverware. If a reliable cleaner is obtained, old tarnish marks are rarely too stubborn to be removed, and thereafter a regular weekly cleaning will keep them in excellent condition.

Pour on milk, season and bake one hour.

THE SHOPPER Of course the will do tomorrow when first thing you do is go shopping. Not only to do your shopping will be to purchase one of those sweet carnations, thereby adding your mite to the support of the Day Nursery of the Portland Fruit and Flower Mission. Attractive women and girls will be stationed in all of the shops and on the streets and my admonition is to stop at the very first one and buy a posy.

ONE OF THE SMALLER "women's ready to wear" shops on Sixth street is offering some exceptional bargains in suits this week. These garments are fur trimmed, braided, trimmed and velvet-trimmed and embody splendid style with excellent workmanship. The summer shop should not be overlooked, for one often picks up something unusual and at prices that are very gratifying.

"DARLING" DOLLS are quite the latest arrivals in dolldom. Not only are these dolls exceptionally beautiful with eyes that close and soft silky hair, but they speak in a natural voice.

PILLOWS OF SWEETNESS I don't know if that is the regular name, but I shall call them that, for they are filled with lavender, rosemary, cedar and rose petals. Can a more wonderful combination of sweet scents be imagined? They come in the form of medium-sized sachets encased in heavy chiffon and are the handiwork of an elderly Portland woman. They are to be found in the toilet goods department of one of the big shops.

BARGAIN BASEMENT SHOPPING is the most interesting and profitable thing imaginable. One who is not a structuralist or a conservationist can't emanate from any race or nation which deliberately denies and withholds from its women what it deems necessary and good for its men. The election returns are a reflection of my faith in the federal amendment.

ELEVATOR MAN DEAN OF HIS CALLING IN PORTLAND

E. F. Joost Has Run Car in Labbe Building Since Year of 1887.

Edward F. Joost.

So far as he knows, Edward F. Joost of the Labbe building, Second and Washington streets, is the oldest elevator man in Portland in point of continuous service.

Mr. Joost has run the elevator in the Labbe building since August 12, 1887. He started in as an elevator man in Chicago in 1882, in the Morrison block, 125 Clark street. It was a steam crane elevator. Mr. Joost ran it for three years, and then came to Portland.

Mr. Joost worked as a bridge carpenter on the Portland-Vancouver railway line in 1886, when it was under construction by the late Frank Tuckum. Later, and before going to the Labbe building, he worked on railroad construction between Albany and Corvallis and between Wallula and Pendleton.

The Labbe building was built in 1882 and was then the finest office building in Portland, with the first passenger elevator in the city. It was operated by hydraulic power, which was changed about 10 years ago to electric.

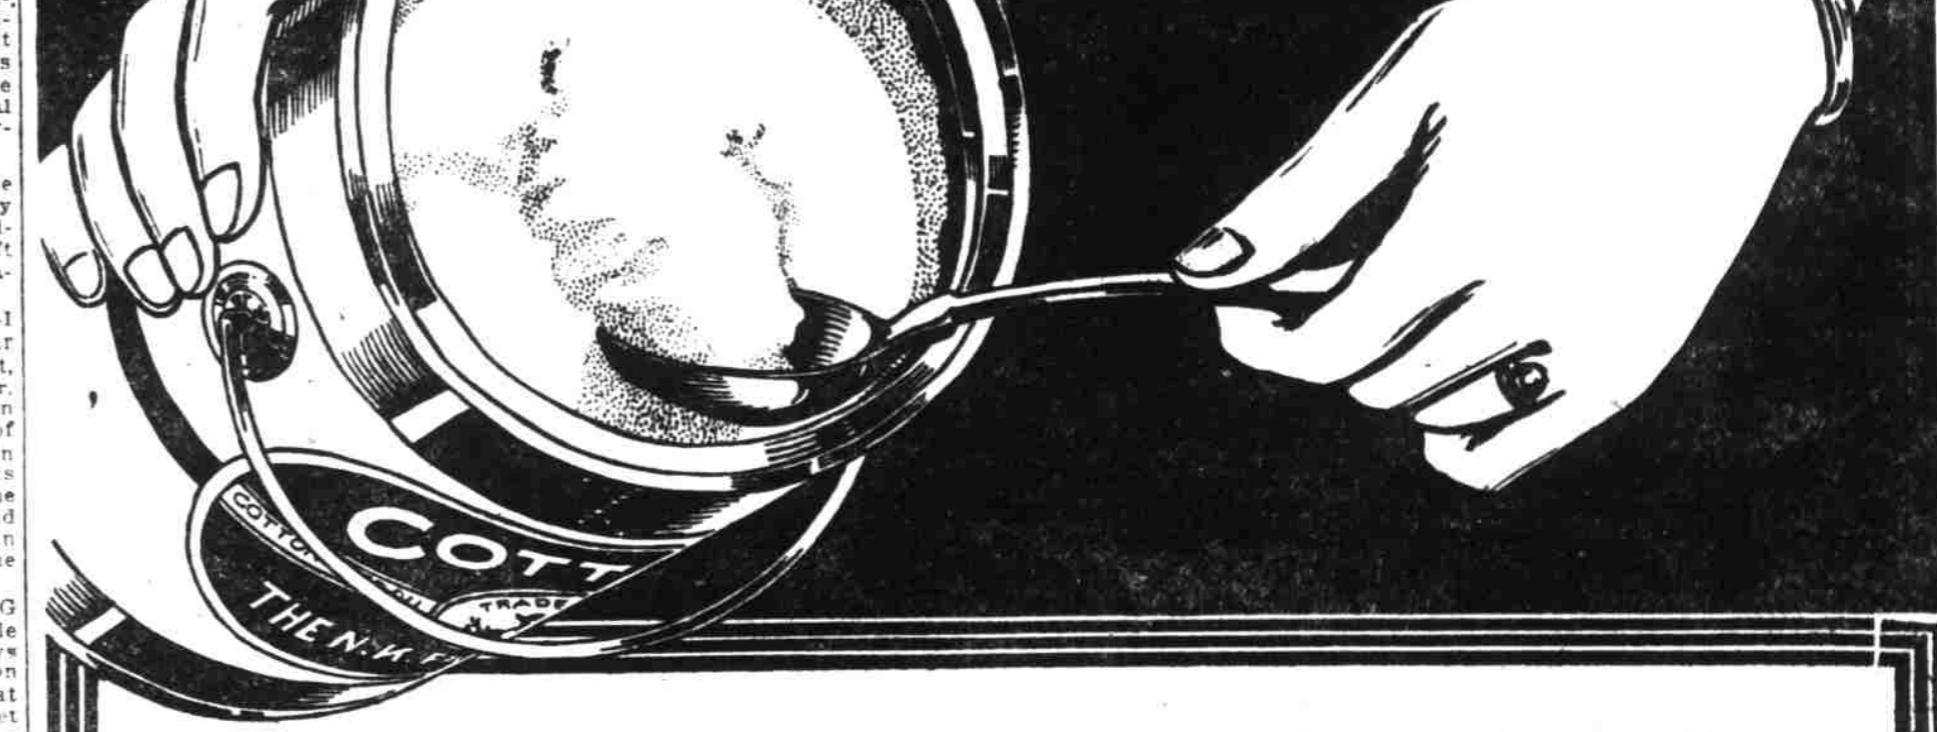

Besides operating the elevator, Mr. Joost acts as virtual superintendent of the building for the owners, Labbe brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Joost live at 732 East Ankeny. They have a son 20 years old, who burnt the wings off the flies.

"Oh, that's nothing to the heat in Ireland. Why, they have to feed the hens on ice cream to keep them from laying boiled eggs."

The answer to your questions about Cottolene

Every housewife who uses it knows by experience that no other shortening produces such splendid biscuits, pastry etc., or fries foods so deliciously and so digestibly as does Cottolene.

The reason for this is in its extreme purity and unflinching quality, and in the fact that this exact combination of the purest refined cottonseed oil and choicest beef stearine seems to create just those cooking elements which are necessary for the ideal shortening and frying product.

Cottolene

Because of its purity and quality you do not need to use so much of Cottolene. Use one-third less than of butter or lard. Heat it slowly for frying. Follow these simple instructions and the results will more than please your family.

It is packed in pails of different sizes, for your convenience. Arrange with your grocer for a regular supply. Write to our General Offices, Chicago, for a free copy of our real cook book — "HOME HELPS."
