Bobbery Was the Motive. According to evidence introduced at the time of the murder, robbery was the motive and Dodson and Ingram had twice visited Dunlap's cabin in Josephine county with the intention of killing the miner. The killing occurred on the occasion of the third visit. Ingram's son became suspicious of the actions of his father and Dodson and watched them. When his father learned that the boy knew of the murder he made the boy return to the shack and search the dead body, hoping in this way that he would not tell the authorities. The youth kept silent for a year and a half and it was his confession that sent his father to prison with Dodson.

A Cold Blooded Affair.

The murder was a cold blooded affair. Dunlap had entertained Dodson McMinnville, Or., Dec. 8 .-- Unable and believed him to be his friend. He was shot down without warning.
