LIND'S SISTER AND BROTHER ARE HEARD FROM

of Lind's in San Francisco, saying that Lind had left for Portland, three or four weeks previous, in company with another man. It is presumed that this man was Bartholomew. Lind had not written to his San Francisco friend after his departure for Portland, but it was known he came north for his health.

Lind Was 53 Years Old. John Lind, according to his brother, was 53 years of age, 6 feet 4 or 5 inches tall, and weighed 160 pounds. He was of sandy complexion and was bald on top of the head. He had a Roman nose and a hairlip.

The Portland police description of Lind given out at the time of the murder gives his height as 5 feet 8 inches, weight 138 pounds, slightly bald and with a hairlip.

The green trunk in which the body was found bore a Scandinavian-American label showing that it had been dispatched from Varberg, Sweden, through Copenhagen to the United States. It was undoubtedly sent on an earlier visit to the old country in 1911.

All of these facts go to make Lind's identification complete. AL LIND—PACIFIC ONE—6

As yet no definite trace has been found of Bartholomew, charged with the murder. There is a reward of $500 standing for his apprehension.

MARCELLUS DERELICT IN HIS OFFICIAL DUTIES, SAYS STATE OFFICIAL

Logan appeared as attorney for Dr. Marcellus. The investigation comes as the result of the dismissal of Ira T. Beeman, chief of quarantine for the city, and generally considered one of the most competent of city employees.

Dr. Marcellus was first put on the witness stand to give his side of the leprosy case discovered in Portland September 23, and which later resulted in the death of the leper at the isolation hospital.

Dr. Marcellus told how Dr. Ben Wade had notified his office of the discovery of the case, and how a blood test was made to show that the disease was leprosy, and how the man was later taken to the isolation hospital by Chief Quarantine Officer Beeman.

"Did you regard it a dangerous case?" asked Commissioner Daly. "I did," replied Marcellus, "but I can't give my personal attention to all cases."

"Didn't you leave the city for the coast the next day after the case was discovered, or on the Saturday following, before the man was taken to the hospital, and remain away for several days?"

"I left Saturday and returned Monday. You left the work for Beeman?"

"I left it for Dr. Wolf and Beeman," replied Marcellus. "Is leprosy considered dangerous?" asked Commissioner Laker.

"Was that case dangerous?" asked Commissioner Bigelow. "I should say that it was," answered Marcellus.

"Were you reported to daily?" asked Attorney Logan. "Yes, by Beeman and Wolf."

"My attention is," said Daly, "that this was a dangerous case, and should have warranted Marcellus' personal attention. He did not give it his personal attention. If he's only an executive officer, that's different. I always

LAYMEN MISSIONARY CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED IN PORTLAND TODAY

Committee of Fifty Ministers and Laymen Named to Have Charge of Movement

FEBRUARY 13 TO 16 DATE

Portland Meeting to Be One of Series to Be Held in United States Next Year.

The campaign of preparation for the convention in connection with the laymen's missionary movement to be held in Portland next February 13 to 16 was launched today with great enthusiasm at a meeting held today noon in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

A committee of 50 ministers and laymen was appointed to have general charge of the campaign, and a committee of eight was selected. The laymen's missionary movement is considered one of the biggest things along the lines of missionary effort of recent years.

E. L. Thompson presided at the luncheon meeting. H. H. Kelsey of San Francisco and C. C. Vickrey of New York, workers in the movement, were the first speakers and briefly outlined what the movement is and what it has accomplished in the six years since it swept the country in a series of annual conventions which were held in all corners of the nation.

The convention to be held in Portland in February is one of a series of 25 conventions to be held in the United States next year, and which will culminate in a great national convention in Washington, D. C., in March.

W. H. Lewis, chairman of the committee on education and registration, outlined plans for organizing a convention committee in each church in the Oregon district. The movement is international and all protestant churches are affiliated in it.

Dr. E. H. East, chairman of the committee of prayer, is preparing to organize a prayer league in the movement that will promote the prayerful interest of laymen.

John A. Godell is executive secretary of the movement in Oregon. The members of the executive committee are E. L. Thompson, chairman; A. S. Pattullo, T. S. McDaniel, W. H. Lewis, H. W. Stone, D. C. Burns, Emery Oimstead and Dr. E. H. East.

The members of the general committee of 50 are:

thought that he had to give some of the cases his attention." Marcellus stated that the leper had been in a local hospital three years ago and was diagnosed as Grant they leprosy.

Dr. Roberg was called and explained how he was notified on October 2 of the case of leprosy.

"On October 2, seven days after the man was taken to the hospital, our office found that it was leprosy," he said, "and that the patient was not protected from files."

"My visit was repeated on October 3, and found the case the same, with the exception that bandages had been placed on the man's legs. Conditions were the same on October 4, and there were no screens to keep out the files."

"Making three visits and finding no protection against files, I wrote a letter to Marcellus, suggesting that the necessary precautions be taken. On October 5, the patient was protected. From September 23 to October 5, the patient was a decided menace to the public."

"The public should have been protected. The case should have been isolated."

"A letter written by Dr. Marcellus by Dr. Roberg, written October 4, was introduced, which suggested that screens be placed around the tent in which the patient was kept and concluded with the statement that 'unless every precaution is taken the board will be compelled to prefer charges against you.'"

"Dr. Marcellus' letter in reply was also introduced."

"Another letter written by Dr. Roberg on October 6 says 'that it is astounding to get your letter to the effect that all precautions have been taken.'"

"Then Dr. Marcellus made a false report to you when he said all precautions were taken to protect the public," asked Daly.

"Absolutely," was Roberg's reply. "An efficient health officer takes no chances whether doctors agree or disagree. The taxpayers are entitled to protection."

Answer Termed False. "Then Dr. Marcellus answer to you was false?" emphasized Daly.

"Yes," Dr. Marcellus attempted to show that the matter of protecting the patient from files had been discussed before the letter was written, but that the screens had not been installed in compliance with his instructions.

Daly introduced telegrams sent Dr. Marcellus while on an Oregon National Guard encampment near Tillamook in July, 1913, by Dr. Calvin S. White, then state health officer. One telegram read:

"Smallpox demands your attention here; better come home."

Dr. Marcellus replied with a telegram to the effect that he was in no touch with the situation in Portland and that he was then looking after the sanitary condition of a camp of 500 men.

In reply to Dr. Marcellus' telegram Dr. Calvin S. White wired: "Either come home or resign." "Have you any private practice?"

asked Daly when Marcellus again went on the stand. "Did you get any cases through your work as consultant for the city?"

Marcellus denied that he had gotten any private practice as result of his work as health officer. "You attended I. M. Andrus and C. Hastings in 1913 for typhoid fever and presented one with a bill for $200 and another a bill for $145," said Daly. "I'm not sure of the names?"

"Did the cases follow as result of your being health officer?" "No they did not. I remember that I got the Hastings case as Hastings had private practice for his family physician. I got the other case through him."

"In the court case following, you stated on the stand that you didn't know the difference between 'colon bacillus' and typhoid germs."

"I found out the difference later," "How?"

Handed Cases After Hours. "I learned it from city bacteriologist Permot. I probably knew but had forgotten the difference," was Marcellus' reply.

"Didn't you pledge the council that you would handle private cases after the council had raised your salary a year ago?"

"Only during office hours. The agreement was to handle private cases after office hours."

"Did you live up to the agreement?" asked Commissioner Dieck. "When I had three or four cases since," admitted Marcellus. "Were you not called in by Dr. Etteson as consultant in your capacity as city health officer after diagnosing the case and sending a bill for $5 to cover your services?" asked Daly.

"He called me between 12 noon and 2 p. m., outside of city hours, and I went to his office and he said he would see that I got a consultant's fee."

"Then you only did consulting outside of office hours when you received pay for the movement, and what of your previous statements that you worked for the city after hours and at nights?"

Beeman Gives Evidence. "I did much after office hours work and got no pay for it."

Former Chief Quarantine Officer Beeman was called and told how he had handled the copy case. "I got an instruction to call all from Marcellus," he said, "and to the best of my knowledge Marcellus did not see the case from the time it was discovered until seven days later."

Beeman explained in detail how he handled the case "to help out Dr. Wolf."

"I had been instructed by Dr. Marcellus to diagnose no more cases, although I had been doing it for six years. I only went to work on the leprosy case when Dr. Wolf asked me to help him."

"Did Marcellus did not know of my work in many cases until he looked up the records the next day?" "Did you ever take Dr. Marcellus out in a city machine on private cases?" asked Daly.

"I may say for sure. When we responded to reports of contagious cases Marcellus always took me into the house with him. When I didn't go into the house I was taken to the house where they were the doctor's private cases."

"How many times did you do this?" asked Dieck. "Possibly 12 times in the past 18 months."

Attorney Logan attempted to show that most of the cases referred to occurred several months ago.

Dr. Calvin S. White was sought as he had refused to come at the request of City Attorney La Roche, and at Mayor Albee's instructions he is to be subpoenaed and be required to attend the hearing this afternoon.

FORD SENDS A PEACE APPEAL TO KINGS OF WAR-MAD COUNTRIES

wrought. The time has come to stop the bloodshed and save the people from further slaughter, and civilization from anarchy and ruin.

"He not only has been tried for 16 months? Is it not proven that war cannot solve the problem, but leads only to loss and misery? Must more lives and limbs be preserved? Must we recognize that Europe is bleeding to death, and that the wound must be staunch?"

"The rising desire of the people of neutral nations to convert barren disinterestedness into active good will has prompted the citizens of America to sail to Europe on the ship Oscar II, with the serious purpose of joining European efforts in an organized effort to help restore peace upon an honorable and just basis."

Peace Proposals Planned. To facilitate direct negotiations between you and other warring nations, we suggest that you join in a conference which will without delay form and submit to you and the other belligerents proposals as a basis for a discussion leading to a final settlement. "Therefore, we earnestly entreat you and the rulers of other warring nations to declare an immediate truce. Let the armies stand where they are. Then let negotiations proceed that the soldiers may be delivered from their bitter winter in the trenches, and be sent back to their labor and firesides. As there is no other way to end the war, except by meditation and discussion, why waste another precious human life for the sake of humanity?"

"HENRY FORD."

War Breaks Out on Peace Ship. ABOARD THE PEACE SHIP OSCAR II, by wireless to Land's End, England, Dec. 13.—(U. P.)—War has broken out aboard Henry Ford's peace argosy.

Several of the delegates, whom the Detroit automobile maker asked to help in stretching out Europe's war tangle, are preparing to quit the ship at Christiania, Norway, and return to America, because, they allege, the extreme pacifists have adopted a dissolving attitude toward those upholding President Wilson's preparedness doctrine.

Ford himself is trying hard to prevent an open break between the responsibility for "steamroller" tactics, employed by the extremists.

As a matter of fact, the accusation is not directed against Ford, but chiefly against Rev. Dr. Chas. F. Aked, of San Francisco and Jenkin Lloyd Jones. A complete split is imminent.

HENRY BROPHY, ONCE STATE PEN WARDEN, ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

Victim of Shotgun Was Formerly Well Known Politician With Many Friends.

Salem, Or., Dec. 13.—Henry B. Brophy, warden of the state penitentiary from 1895 to 1899, under Governor Lord and prominent in Republican politics of the state, was accidentally shot and killed this morning while closing a gate on his farm in Polk county, a mile west of Salem.

Brophy had gone to the pasture with a cow and took his shotgun along to shoot ducks. He had turned the cow loose and was evidently closing the gate when his shotgun dropped down and the trigger caught on a projection on the lower part of the gate. The charge of shot entered under Brophy's chin and tore his head off.

The body was found about an hour later and the coroner investigated the case. He was satisfied that the shooting was accidental.

Brophy evidently had difficulty in closing the gate and in his efforts, dropped his gun, the coroner says.

Brophy lived with his son John and wife and they were interested in the hop business together. Besides his son, he is survived by his wife. He was 63 years old.

At one time he was head janitor at the state capital and he had a wide acquaintance in the state. His friends say that he was one of the best wardens the state has ever had. He held the place of warden when A. N. Gilbert was superintendent.
