Differ on Proposed Plans.

The question as to the extent of the defense brought plans ranging from a program somewhat short of figure you most admire. It is simply that proposed by President Wilson to a question of choice. No drugs can proposals for four and five and six battleships a year. The bulk of the legislators, however, were prepared to leave the extent of the program to the congresional committees or the military experts

Among the Democrats a sentiment favoring submarines mines and aircraft in preference to battleships developed, and in several cases increases n the army were deemed subordinate to augmented naval strength.

Here is the way, according to the poll, that congress stands on the issue Of the Democrats in the house, 143 are in favor of the increase, while but 17 were registered against it. The Republicans aligned themselves 121 for and four against it. Thirty-one Demotrats and 46 Republicans were absent and 37 Democrats and 28 Republicans were non-communicative.

The Socialist congressmen stood one for and one against it, while the only Prohibitionist declared himself to be opposed to the increase.

In the senate 40 Democrats were for the greater measure of preparedness, with one vote against it, eight appearing as absent and seven declining to voice their views. Twenty-three Republicans were in favor of the increase with no dissenting voice, while 12
