practically sang themselves around the world, and have been together for nearly twenty years, which is sure some record for vaudeville performers. It is probably worth something to Tally & Mayo to hear themselves "work," and after getting into Port-land introduced themselves at Graves Music Co. 131 4th st. Wanting to hear the New Edison records and didn't mind listening to themselves. When Mr. Graves brought out "At the Ball. That's All"—then it hap-petred. They sang with the record and without the record, they broke in here and there with a little tenor, then a little bass, and told a riddle or two—and those in the room simply could not tell the difference between the voice and the records day from Constantinople.
