

BATTLE IS PROMISED IF NEW GOVERNMENT SCHOOL IS PROVIDED Oregon, Washington, California and Minnesota Each Want Academy.

TWO HAVE BILLS ALREADY Resolution Calling for Investigation of Need and Advisability of Institutions Still Has a Chance.

Washington, Jan. 12.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL.)—It is evident that if a new naval or military academy is to come from the preparedness agitation, there will be a battle royal for the location. While enlargement of the West Point or Annapolis institutions will be urged by members from the east, western members are already arguing that better results will come by training part of the warriors west of the Alleghenies. While Senator Phelan has a bill calling for $10,000,000 for a naval aviation academy at or near San Francisco, Representative Miller of Minnesota has another for an equal amount for a military school on the Fort Snelling military reservation in his state. The Washington delegation is prepared to back Seattle for the naval academy and the Oregon members stand behind Portland. Doubtless other states will present claims whenever it shall appear that there is a real chance for action. It is extremely unlikely that the present congress will authorize the building of a new academy, either naval or military. Secretary Daniels of the navy has made it plain that he does not at present favor expanding the West Point. Although the contrary impression was at one time extant, and Secretary Garrison is on record as favoring a small addition at West Point to care for emergency needs. Representative Kent's resolution calling for an investigation by the heads of the war and navy departments as to the necessity and advisability of establishing new schools yet holds a chance of success, and is much more promising than the bills in question and appropriating funds. The Kent resolution, if enlarged to include the entire Pacific coast in the scope of investigation, will receive more consideration than any other.

Cannot Accept Bounties. Washington, Jan. 13.—Government trappers cannot be permitted to accept state bounties for killing coyotes, in addition to their regular pay, because this would offer inducement to trappers to go where coyotes are most plentiful and not where they may always be most useful. This is the information received by Congressman Sinnott from the biological survey. During a trip in eastern Oregon last summer Mr. Sinnott was urged to see what could be done to get more money for the trappers.

Creel Visits Washington. Washington, Jan. 13.—C. W. Creel, who is stationed at Forest Grove, Or., in charge of government work on the bureau of entomology for eradication of insect pests affecting cereal and forage crops, is a visitor in Washington, preparing for a small campaign against the insect legions of Oregon the coming year.

Added Service Not Approved. Washington, Jan. 13.—Senator Lane has been advised by the postoffice department that it does not regard favorably the petition presented by the senator for increase of mail service from two to three times a week between Prineville and Elsie, 76 miles, as the cost is now $4800 a year, and it assumed that another delivery would add $2400 to the cost. The department promises an investigation, however, by a local inspector.

Washington Wants Highway. Washington, Jan. 13.—Following the lines of the McArthur bill for a connecting roadway around Mount Hood, Congressman Johnson of Washington has presented a bill for construction of a road approximately 60 miles long between Quinalt and Forks, in and adjacent to the Olympia National forest, in Washington, to be called the Olympia highway. The appropriation proposed is the same as in the McArthur bill, $100,000, and the method of payment the same. It is proposed in each case to reduce the state's share of national forest revenues until the difference equals the cost of the road. Senator Jones of Washington is author of a bill for a fish hatchery on Quinalt river or its tributaries or Lake Quinalt at a cost of $25,000. Representative Kahn of California has a bill appropriating $100,000 for purchase of a target range on the Pacific coast, the site to be chosen by the secretary of the navy.

Novel Road Bill Introduced. Washington, Jan. 13.—A new federal aid bill for road construction has been introduced by Senator Swanson of Virginia, embracing some original ideas. The bill authorizes a federal expenditure of not more than $25,000,000 in any one year, the state highway departments making such surveys and estimates as may be required by the secretary of agriculture. That official is to approve the plans, including the type of road, but the work is to be done under supervision of the state authorities. Apportionment of funds to the states is not made contingent upon any expenditures by the states, but is provided for payment of one-third in the ratio that each state bears to the total area, one-third in its ratio of population, and the other third in its mileage of rural post roads as compared to the total mileage. The bill directs administration of the work with the object of developing a general system of roads leading from towns and railroad stations into adjacent farming communities in such way as to facilitate the transportation of rural mails and marketing the products of the farm. To Call Architects Soon. Washington, Jan. 12.—While the architect who prepared plans and specifications for the postoffice building in Portland, has not yet been called to Washington from his office at San Francisco, it is considered almost certain that he will soon be asked to come here to talk over suggested changes in the plans. These changes have relation to keeping the building within the cost limit fixed by the appropriation, and also to questions of allowances made for structural strain. It is understood that this does not involve any reflection upon the competency of the architect, as requirements of the supervising architect for public buildings are often misunderstood by outside draftsmen. Some time will yet be required to completely check over the plans, and to decide just what changes should be made so they will conform to the government standard. What must be done, if anything, in the way of changing the materials to be used is also an undecided question.

Rabies Prevention Urged. Washington, Jan. 13.—Because of the menace to livestock from the spread of rabies, several congressmen from the far west will urge legislation for direct federal assistance in killing off coyotes. The field force of the forest service has already been instructed to give particular attention to the destruction of coyotes in Idaho, Oregon and California. Congressman Smith of Idaho has a bill appropriating $100,000 for the destruction of coyotes, this to be in addition to the sums set aside for the destruction of predatory wild animals.

RUSSIAN FORGER IS CONVICTED; REFUSES TO PUT IN DEFENSE Nick Zenebek Ignores Both Court and Attorney Appointed to Protect Interests

Pendleton, Or., Jan. 13.—Refusing to plead or defend himself, ignoring all questions from the court and refusing even to talk to an attorney appointed to protect his rights, Nick Zenebek, Russian, and said to be a clever forger, resolutely maintained stubborn silence through his trial and was convicted in a short time. Zenebek was charged specifically with having passed a bad check for $50 which had been forged the signature of W. P. Bowman, a prominent Echo farmer. At his trial a half dozen other checks to which had been forged signatures of former employers of the defendant were produced. When the state rested the judge asked if he desired to make a statement. He paid no heed and his attorney was unable to offer any defense. The man operated in Wasco and Morrow counties and his bad checks, cleverly forged, ranged all the way from $100 to $500.
