"Come Ye Apart and Rest Awhile"

By the Very Reverend H. M. Ramsey, D. D., Dean of St.

Stephen's Pro-Cathedral. In an age like ours, with its many activities of mind, much that is valuable is los: through lack of reflection. The importance of being "busy" has become a fixed idea, so we feel if we do not hear and see the last that is offered we fail utterly in our duty to ourselves. A result of the constant procession of assertions, appeals and programs through our minds without reflection is to be found in the fact that people content themselves with "views" of life and morals rather than with principles and beliefs. It leads to the absurd condition where one can discuss with learning what everyone else thinks, while one's own mind remains a no-man's land. Forethought and meditation are words you seldom see: reflection is too often associated with declining years when its usefulness is comparatively limited. "Know thyself," is a maxim with the highest philosophic authority. When Jesus said, "Come ye yourselves apart and rest awhile," he was not speaking exclusively to the needs of his own generation.
