

SOCIAL HYGIENE TO BE THE SLOGAN IN A WIDE CAMPAIGN

Splendid Gold Medal Exhibit Which Was Magnet at San Francisco Brought Here.

OREGON HAS A BIG LEAD

State Has Made Marked Progress Along Lines of Promoting Hygienic Methods Among People.

With Portland as the starting point, the American Social Hygiene association has inaugurated a nation-wide educational campaign for the purpose of enlightening the American people concerning the many grave problems of "social hygiene."

The exhibit will be open to every man, woman, boy and girl of the city and will be in direct charge of Dr. Thomas D. Elliot, in charge of the Pacific coast division of the American association, who, until two years ago, was field secretary for the social hygiene movement in Oregon.

Kindred View Exhibit. The first exhibition was made yesterday and hundreds of persons, young and old, visited the exhibit prior and studied the fine array of charts, maps, models, albums, pictures, etc., that make up the display.

It was largely because Dr. Elliot is a former Portlander that the Oregon society secured the first chance to place this elaborate system of social hygiene studies on view here.

"Oregon stands so far ahead of most of the states in the progress made in this vitally important movement," said Dr. Elliot yesterday "that the American association thought it would be wisest policy to start the exhibit on its swing around the country here in Portland, where the most systematic and effective pioneering in this comparatively new field has been done."

Not only is it a very complete exhibit, but it is attractively gotten up and artistically presented. It takes up the fundamental problems of the human race and one of its vital departments is devoted to the home, under which head it deals with marriage, parenthood, the family and a certain phase of the social evil.

Other subjects related to our social hygiene campaign, which are covered, are biology, eugenics, hygiene, medicine, public health, sociology,

PUPILS SOLVE MUNICIPAL PROBLEMS

Officers of Richmond school government, patterned on commission plan.

Robert R. Steels, principal of Richmond school, believes that the time to teach good citizenship comes during school days. Practical experience is not only the best method of instruction, he further believes, but is valuable to the discipline of the school itself.

Nor does he think the course of study so burdened that the extracurricular activities will be neglected. The duties of municipal administration are unreasonably.

Pupils' self-government in Richmond school city has, therefore, been organized. Inspiration and pattern were found in the commission plan of Portland's administration.

A mayor, commissioners and clerk were elected by vote of the "school citizens." The officials were ceremoniously installed. They were: Miller Jacob, mayor; Adaline Blessing, clerk; James Leak, Gentry Phillips, Ruth Levant ethics, religion and government, all of them of great value in the general field of our operations.

"Hereditary, social diseases, sex hygiene, recreation, employment and other phases of the movement are treated in a clear, intelligent and forceful manner in the exhibit.

"The economic burden which city, state and nation must bear through the prevalence of some of the specific evils we aim to reduce is simply appalling, and our exhibit teaches some very striking lessons on this side of the subject."

While the exhibit is in Portland, the Oregon Social Hygiene society will extend invitations to the members of business organizations, societies, clubs and other bodies to visit the display, and vigorous effort will be made to have every father and mother in the city see it before it moves on to its next station on its swing around the country.

Wedding March at Funeral. Dallas, Texas, Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—Mendelssohn's wedding march was played at the funeral of Miss Pearl Castle, 27, at her own request. She believed that death was a "spiritual wedding" with God.

REPEAL OF SUNDAY BLUE LAW IS URGED BY NEW CANDIDATE

Barnett H. Goldstein Announces Self as Candidate for State Legislature.

Barnett H. Goldstein yesterday announced himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for representative in the legislature from Multnomah county.

The repeal of the Sunday blue law is the first plank in Mr. Goldstein's platform, and his slogan, to be printed after his name on the nominating ballot, is:

"Repeal of all Sunday closing laws. More common sense and less fanaticism."

Mr. Goldstein is an attorney attached to the office of Joseph & Haney in the Corbett building. He is 28 years old, and came to Portland in 1912 from New York, where he practiced a year. Before that he was three years in government service at Panama.

Mr. Goldstein's platform follows: "If I am not nominated, I will not accept the nomination or indorsement of any party other than the one in which I am registered.

"If I am nominated and elected, I will, during my term of office— "Advocate the repeal of all legislation involving the restriction of personal liberty and enjoyment on Sunday.

"The blue laws of three centuries ago have no place in this enlightened age, far removed from religious prejudices and compulsory religious observances.

"Legislation that compels abstinence from labor and interferes with recreation on Sunday is an echo of Puritan theology.

"The fundamental principles of our constitution are religious tolerance and the guarantee of personal liberty. Sunday closing laws are in direct violation of these principles.

"The purity of religion is best preserved by keeping it separate from the state.

"Slogan (to be printed after name on nominating ballot): 'Repeal of all Sunday closing laws. More common sense and less fanaticism.'"

Catholics Will Join In With Protestants

Union Chapel Will Be Constructed at Altos; All Denominations to Use Building.

Altos, Pa., Feb. 12.—Work is soon to be started on the union chapel on the grounds of the state's tuberculosis sanitarium at Crescon, the plans of a Pittsburg architect having been approved and the contract let, at the bid of $13,500. Part of the money will be contributed by Protestants and the remainder by Catholics.

The committee in charge has agreed to give the Catholics the use of the chapel on Sunday mornings, and on holy days from 9 to 10 a. m. and on Friday afternoons, and other religious bodies may use the chapel at such other times as desired.

Lure of Buried Gold Entices Patrolman

Los Angeles Officer and Mexican Go to Cocos Islands to Seek Treasure Buried During War.

Los Angeles, Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—Patrolman Walter J. Bunker is enroute to the Cocos islands, off the coast of Peru, today, to dig for buried treasure. He sailed on the yacht Sweetheart with J. Bender a Mexican capitalist. They expect to remain three months. The gold is reputed to have been buried on the island during a war 200 years ago between South American tribes.

COUNTRY LIFE IS IDEAL

Corey Country home at Mountain Dale, Or.

"Country Life in America," and similar publications devote columns of space to the ideal country home but for coziness, genuine comfort and location few equal the Corey home at Mountain Dale, in Washington county. Situated on the old Corey homestead place of 600 beautiful acres it is the acme of substantiality and comfort, with some of the best fishing and hunting in Oregon only a stone's throw from the door.

Many well known Portland men come to Mountain Dale for the sport that is to be found there, among them Drs. Charles H. and David Rafferty, and Alexander Donaldson, superintendent of the Portland street cleaning department. For scenery Mountain Dale is beyond compare and the Corey place is one of the most beautiful spots in Washington county. Three hundred acres of the Corey farm are under cultivation and its agricultural worth is attested by the fact that Miss Pearl Corey won the blue ribbon for corn at the last state fair, exhibiting corn stalks 24 feet high.

Ladd Extols Work Of Local Y. M. C. A.

Help to Help Yourself Idea Prevalent in All of the Aims of the Local Association.

"How a debit account of the taxpayer, labor, capital and government is converted into a credit by association work," is interestingly told by W. M. Ladd, just entering his twenty-first year as president of the Portland Young Men's Christian Association, in the last issue of "Association Month," the international organ of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Mr. Ladd's article shows several pictures of the Portland association, including a birdseye view of the business district from the roof of the building.

"The thing that appeals so strongly to me about Young Men's Christian Association work," says Mr. Ladd, "is the help to help yourself idea that dominates the organization. In our Portland association each season hundreds of young men of limited opportunities, education and resources come to us and are started on the way to self improvement and advancement.

JAMES O'SHEA Chief of Police... F. A. TURNER Captain of Police

John Carter (Wilfred Lucas), who is a bookkeeper in an insurance company in a small town, is arrested on a charge of murdering Charles Ryder, a cashier. Afterwards the night watchman is arrested for fighting and deprived of the "dope" he is addicted to, he confesses himself guilty of the crime. Then Carter finds that the president of the company will not reinstate him in his old position on account of the notoriety he has gained. In spite of all his efforts, Carter cannot get a position and his family is reduced to want. He leaves a note on the table in his home, saying that he has gone to a hotel to kill himself. His motive is to provide for his family by his insurance. Nellie, his little daughter, strays into the yard of Ira Wolcott, the president of the insurance company. He finds out from her the destitution of the family and rescues Carter. A scene is shown of the family a few weeks later. They have been restored to their former modest state of prosperity and happiness. Ned Fowler, a clever young reporter who has aided Carter, becomes engaged to the pretty daughter of the house, Helen.
