

PRINCE TESTIFIES HIS WIFE REALIZED THEIR UNION WAS MISTAKE

Says She Repeatedly Accused Him of Love for Pretty Foster Daughter.

LOVE FOR GIRL FATHERLY

Final of Separation Case of Princess Miskinoff and Mrs. Aimee Crocker Gouard Is Resumed in New York.

New York, Feb. 23.—(U. P.)—The separation suit of Princess Miskinoff and her wife, former Aimee Crocker Gouard of California, came to an abrupt halt here today. Although an announcement was made that the case had been adjourned until Friday, it was reported that a statement out of court was imminent.

New York, Feb. 23.—(U. P.)—That Mrs. Aimee Crocker Gouard, wealthy former Californian, realized the folly of mating with youth almost before her gay honeymoon was ended, was the claim of her husband, Prince Miskinoff, today in returning testimony in their separation case.

She had repeatedly accused him of loving Yvonne Gouard, their 15-year-old foster daughter, he said, and finally in Switzerland the princess had burst out:

"Oh, why did I ever marry you, when I was so much older than you are! How much better it would have been if you had married Yvonne!"

Always Kisses Hands.

On re-direct examination, the prince testified that his love for the girl had been fatherly, rather than that of a suitor, as he had been pictured.

"I only kissed her hands, but that is nothing," said the prince, with a shrug of his shoulders. "I always kiss the hands of all the ladies in the room."

The blue eyed child, however, was of a very jealous disposition, the prince admitted. Indeed, she was so much so that he discovered her listening to quarrels in the room at the Hotel McAlpin here, but he took steps to see that she should not have a connecting room where she could eavesdrop.

Fays Wife Tribute.

The prince reiterated that, in a spirit of noble sacrifice, Mrs. Gouard consented to renounce their wedding so that he might be happy with the foster daughter.

"Leave it to me," he quoted her as saying, "I know lots of boys who divorce—more than the lawyers do—because I've been divorced twice."

As for the baby he believed his wife had, the prince testified he did not know where the child was, though he believed it to be with Mrs. Gouard at the Hotel Netherlands.

Attorneys for both sides declared that their witnesses will testify that the prince and Yvonne were much together while at Edgemere, L. I., and that when she appeared in a bathing suit with the swarthy skinned nobleman, the couple were the center of the talk of the fashionable colony there.

Admits an Engagement.

Prince Miskinoff finally admitted that his attachment to Yvonne grew and that they became engaged before the divorce suit started.

"The princess and I," he said, "were to be divorced, and the Yvonne and I were to marry and go to Cuba to live."

Miskinoff then declared that Yvonne showed letters under the door of his apartments at the Hotel McAlpin, and that these letters were introduced as evidence. Asked if those were all he had received, the prince answered:

"No, I should have to employ the services of an express company to bring them all into court."

street. At the middle of the block Ah Loy saw the policeman, and throwing his gun into a doorway, swung around a light pole and doubled back, then ran south on Third to Morrison.

Willitt caught an automobile and as Ah Loy ran down the middle of the street the policeman leaped from the running board and with a 240 pound weight knocked the Chinaman out. He was practically unconscious for several minutes. The capture was made at First and Morrison streets.

C. G. Balsam, taxicab driver, of 403 Hancock street, witnessed the shooting. He chased Ah Loy to where the latter encountered the policeman, and when Willitt gave chase Balsam picked up the automatic revolver the Chinaman had used, and later turned it over to the police.

Ah Loy Remains Silent.

Ah Loy said he was 40 years old and a canneryman. He speaks English well, but refused to make a statement. He is charged with murder.

The shooting occurred only a few minutes after a temporary truce had been effected, following a meeting of peace delegates and representatives of the warring tongs and the Chinese Benevolent society of local merchants.

This meeting was held at 285 Everett street and was heavily guarded by the police. Police met the peace representatives at the saloon and escorted them to the meeting-place.

The body of Yin Luck is at the morgue, alongside the body of Wong Sin, the Chinese victim of Monday, which has not yet been claimed by his tongmen.

Another development of the tong troubles here was the discovering of the fact that several north end pawnbrokers and second-hand dealers belong by courtesy to one or another of the warring tongs. The membership card is given them when they show that they can provide guns at good prices to the gunmen, and keep the knowledge to themselves.

Sales of guns being forbidden in the state, it is said the pawnbrokers go with the customer to Vancouver, there transfer the gun and receive the money and return to Portland.

District Attorney Walter H. Evans took before the grand jury this afternoon evidence against the Chinese involved in the tong war.

Two Chinese are in custody against whom the district attorney asserts the evidence is positive of their guilt.

One, Ah Loy, is charged with murder. He was captured this morning by Patrolman Willitt a few minutes after he was seen to shoot and instantly kill Yin Luck, a Hop Sing tong man, at 13 1/2 Third street.

The other, Lo Gong, is charged with murder, with intent to kill. He was captured by Patrolman Willitt, 216 captured by Patrolmen Nelson and Schupples last Thursday night at Third and Couch streets, after he was seen to shoot two Chinese, one a Hop Sing member, seriously.

A third Chinese, Julian Alabara, of Filipino extraction, is also held on what will probably be a murder charge. He has been partially identified by white men as one of the three tongmen who Monday fatally shot Wong Gin at Fifth and Flanders streets.

Hearing in the cases will be rushed through at once, Mr. Evans said today, and the trials will be expedited if they are indicated.

HUNDRED TONG MEN FLEE TO TACOMA AS A PLACE OF REFUGE

Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 23.—(P. N. S.)—Hop Sing tong members are pouring into Tacoma from Seattle and Portland to escape the war in which their tong is engaged with the Bow Leong tong. Fully 100 Hop Sings have taken refuge in vacant Tacoma stores and have appealed to the police for protection. To prevent an outbreak of the war here, the police are issuing strict warnings against the carrying of weapons and are closely guarding the small Chinese district in this city.

GUNMEN SUSPECTS ARRESTED IN SALEM; MEN FULLY ARMED

Salem, Or., Feb. 23.—Charley So and Sing Bong, Chinese, were arrested by the Salem police this morning while en route on a Southern Pacific train from Portland to Albany, on suspicion that they are gunmen. Both were armed with brand new Smith & Wesson revolvers.

On their persons was found a list of the tong headquarters in Stockton, San Francisco, Sacramento, Los Angeles and Fresno. They evidently belong to the Bing Kong tong.

The men were booked on a charge of carrying concealed weapons and Chief Welsh said that he was in communication with the Portland police and would turn the pair over if Chief Clark wanted them. It is understood they will be taken to Portland tonight.

Seventh Is Not Luckiest.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—(U. P.)—The seventh son, or the seventh daughter, is not the lucky member of the family, as the old saying goes, according to Dr. Anna M. Blount, who told a eugenics society that the first born is the first in health and rank.

Chinese Accused of Murder.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 23.—(U. P.)—Murder charges were filed this forenoon against Yee Bow, a Hop Sing tongman, for the alleged murder of Y. U. Park, the first Seattle victim of the coast tong war, shot down six days ago. Deputy Prosecutor Hessel signed the complaint. Hop Sings say Bow is being made the "goat" for a crime committed by the other faction in the tong war.
