BY NONA LAWLER

MRS. L. ALLEN LEWIS will be a luncheon hostess Friday at her home in King street, honoring Mrs. Marion P. Maas.

Mrs. Griffin Returns. Mrs. Lenora Vail Griffin, a well-known newspaper woman of the city, returned home Saturday from east, where she has been visiting since last September. She went first to her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Vail, at Lima, Ohio, where she stayed for several months, and then went on to New York, where she made an extended visit with Mrs. Friend M. Alken at her residence on Riverside drive. Mrs. Alken started west with Mrs. Griffin to visit her in Portland, but was taken sick at Muskogee, Okla., where she is now convalescing, and will later join Mrs. Griffin here.

Dr. and Mrs. Vail and their daughter, Mrs. George Bayly, have been at Honolulu during Mrs. Griffin's sojourn at New York, and met her here Saturday, when they went on to their eastern home.

Visitors on Wedding Trip. Many informal affairs marked the visit in Portland of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford S. Wolfe of San Francisco, who left yesterday, after a week's sojourn in the city. Mr. Wolfe is a nephew of Adolphe Wolfe, prominent Portland business man. They were married March 5, and visited first at Seattle with relatives. They left last night for the east and south, where they will travel extensively, enjoying in all a three months' wedding trip. Mrs. Wolfe was Miss E. Holzberg, the daughter of Dr. D. Holzberg of San Francisco before her marriage.

Engagement Announced. Mr. and Mrs. I. Gevartz announce the engagement of their daughter Fannie to Ziegfried Crohn of Seattle. They will be at home Sunday, March 26, from 3 to 5 o'clock.

After cards, the hostess, assisted by Mrs. William Gill, served a dainty repast. The dining-room was decked with St. Patrick decorations. The prizes were won by Mrs. George Feathers and Mr. Davidson. Those enjoying Mr. and Mrs. Davidson's hospitality were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brandes, Mr. and Mrs. William Bloemshine, Mr. and Mrs. William Gill, Mrs. Elva Carlson, Mrs. George Nendel, Mrs. George Feathers, Mrs. McCobb, C. # Bed Time Tales Beauty Chat

BY Clara Ingram Judson

BY Lillian Russell

Mother Raccoon Sends Billy to Bed. "W HATE that funny noise I hear!" asked Flitter one evening as he and Flutter were about to begin playing. "Listen! Hear that?"

"I don't want to be a nice, manly raccoon."

Flutter stopped and listened. So still did she hold herself that she seemed hardly to be alive. Through the woods, silent in the evening dimness, there sounded the strangest noise—like somebody crying in distress.

"Something dreadful has happened to somebody, that's plain to tell," said Flitter, who was very kind and soft-hearted and hated to hear anyone in trouble. "But I cannot tell you who it is! Let's get nearer; maybe we can be of help."

So the two little flying squirrels made their way nearer and nearer to the mournful sound.

As they got closer, they could plainly hear a whiny voice crying, "I'm so cold; and I'm so hungry; and I'm so miserable, oh-h-h-h dear! I'm so cold, and I'm so hungry; and I'm so miserable, oh-h-h-h dear!" Over and over again just that way!

"Who can that be?" whispered Flitter, in distress. "Sounds like some young creature! Why don't its mother take care of it?"

"Let's go a little closer," suggested Flitter. "Maybe, when we find out who it is, we can help!"

So they ran up a beech tree and gracefully flew down nearer to where the sound came from.

And what do you suppose they saw? And what in the world did they hear? They landed on the ground just in time to hear old Mother Raccoon, whose voice they recognized at once, say sternly: "Now, Billy, that's just enough whining for one night! I don't know what I am going to do with you to make you a nice, manly raccoon."

"I don't want to be a nice, manly raccoon," cried Billy. "I want some supper! I'm so cold and I'm so hungry!"

"Now, don't start that story over again," interrupted Mother Raccoon. "If you are hungry, hustle around and get you something to eat—don't depend on your mother, who has too much to do already! And if you are cold, curl yourself up in a tight ball and go to sleep in a hollow tree like I have taught you to—don't whine all night! First thing you know, some of the woods folk will be coming to see what is the matter with you! I'd be ashamed to be found so lazy!"

And without further words, Mother Raccoon went on about her business.

"Think we'd better let him know we are here!" asked Flitter in a whisper.

"Let's not," replied Flitter, "for some day he will be ashamed of his laziness, and then he would wish we didn't know what I am going to do with you to make you a nice, manly raccoon."

So Billy Raccoon went grumblingly to bed and the two little flying squirrels went back to their play. I think it was kind of them to keep still, don't you?

NEITHER men nor women waste the time they spend in studying fashions if they use the information so gained to properly groom themselves. There are well groomed persons—and whether they be men or women—they have a distinct advantage over the careless people. His or her appearance is a valuable asset. It is an asset of great consideration and enlargement.

Changes in masculine fashions are less pronounced than those in feminine styles. I suppose there are women who wish they were men for this very reason. But if the test really came, they would hesitate to give up the pretty things fashion decries as their lot.

Business and professional men who are wise realize that they cannot dress in the fashions of a decade ago and be considered in line with the present-day procession. They know that their success is judged by their personal appearance. Also the clothes they wear and their condition are accepted as evidence of the value they place upon themselves. It is easier for men to succeed when they are well groomed. They make the right sort of impression and their spirits are buoyed up by a feeling of satisfaction in their appearance. They do not need to be afraid of being considered careless and failures, nor being made fun of. This is well understood by the men who succeed. There would be less failures if all men realized the effect of correct grooming.

It is just as necessary for women to follow the changes in styles. Many large and beautiful minds and true hearts pass unnoticed because they are disguised in antiquated and unbecoming dresses and hats. Brilliant women are often unrecognized as such because their brilliancy is dimmed by their costume. Possibly in the and they may have an opportunity to show how bright they are—but often they pass unnoticed.

I suppose there are women who consider a careless attitude toward styles as an evidence of intellectual—at attractive and unique eccentricity. Such women delude themselves. No matter how brilliant a woman may be she cannot afford to ignore the fashions of the day. She slurs and insults her intellect when she considers such a position.

It is not necessary for women to adopt grotesque styles in the follow fashions. Some women in extreme look ridiculous, yet modified current fashions prove very becoming to them. The solution of this problem is found in the application of intelligence. Fashions in dress, after all, are merely basic ideals that permit development and a rather free range. A woman who is quite brainy. Her friends in discussing her frequently mention her unbecoming costumes, and they invariably soften their criticism by speaking of her mental power and capacity. It is not a pleasant position that she holds. A little more attention to her clothing would not detract but certainly would add to the impression she makes through her intellectual brilliancy.

Study the styles by all means. The woman who declares that she takes little interest in fashions is silly. She cannot afford to neglect them. Fashions may not interest her, but it is costly to ignore them. I have found it both pleasant and burdensome to follow the fashions and I would not think of neglecting to do so.

You must not be too busy to dress as well as your purse will allow. It is not always the most costly costume that looks the best. The dress that measures up to the fashion and is selected because it is becoming is the one that is the most beautiful when you wear it.

Study the styles and you will find the lessons worth learning. Live to-day and not a decade ago. The woman who neglects to dress as attractively as possible places her candles under a bushel.

Chicken Pot Pie

The Chef's Favorite

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Some folks think that only "colored mammys" can cook chicken, but a trial of this famous chicken pot pie disproves that assertion. Every member of the family will thoroughly enjoy it.

K C Chicken Pot Pie, Baked Dumplings.

One fowl cut in joints; 1/2 cup flour; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; black pepper; 2 cups flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; 1/2 cup shortening; milk or cream.

Cover the fowl with boiling water and let simmer until tender, then remove to a baking dish. Mix the 1/2 cup flour, salt and black pepper with cold water to a smooth paste and use to thicken the broth. Remove the fat from the top of the broth if necessary before adding the thickening. Pour this gravy over the fowl, until it is nearly covered, and reserve the rest to serve apart. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt, three times; into this work the shortening and use cream or milk to make a dough, less stiff than for biscuits. Put this by spoonfuls over the fowl in the dish, which it should rest upon and completely cover. Let bake about 35 minutes.

When young, tender chickens are scarce, this presents a most satisfactory way of serving old fowls. Veal or lamb prepared in this manner is more appetizing than when served as stew. Try this and the 89 other delicious recipes in the K C Cook's Book, a copy of which may be secured free by sending the colored certificate packed in the 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the JACOBUS BROS. Co., Chicago.
