Oregon City, Or., April 3 .- Development of the silica deposits found on the ranch of Charles F. Terrill on the Within 30 days a refining mill will 10 be erected on the property and employment given to a score of men. Thirty feet of tunnel, cut into the main mass of the deposit has assured Portland engineers that the deposit measures up in purity to Bridgeport silica, which is the standard for the 10 United States, and which is fully equal to the Cornwall silica formerly 10 imported from England. The silica will be shipped to Portland for marketing, and as only Mr. Terrill and a small group of Portland men are interested in the project, and as home labor will be employed at the plant, the enterprise will be strictly an Oregon affair. It is estimated that there are 400,000 cubic yards of silica in the deposit, all of remarkable purity, and all located convenient transportation. The only other known silica deposit in Oregon is located six miles from the building is now the owner of "Trouble," a pure blooded imported Percheron stallion. He purchased the blue ribboned animal several days ago from T. W. Murphy of Eleventh and loyt streets. It is said the purchase price was about $2500. Mr. Baldwin will ship the horse immediately to his stock ranch in eastern Oregon near Stanfield. Troupler was imported from France. So much for the bare facts! Behind the purchase is another story, a recital of the facts that led up to the purchase and sale of Troupler. For the sake of brevity they can be all summed up in two sentences. Mr. Baldwin was seeking a blooded animal. He saw Murphy's ad in The Journal's Classified columns, and answered it. It pays to advertise, doesn't it?
