

PARTY REGULARITY IS URGED BY T. E. BURTON, SEEKING NOMINATION

Candidate for the Presidency From Ohio Is Warmly Received by Large Gathering.

RALPH COLE APPEALS

President McCourt of Oregon Republican Club at Mas. Meeting as "Ohio's Favorite Son."

Theodore E. Burton, former United States senator from Ohio, told a crowd which last night filled the auditorium of the Masonic temple why, in his opinion, the Democratic administration should be beaten in the November election.

After he had concluded, Ralph Cole, former representative in congress from that state and one of the G. O. P. spellbinders in the campaign of 1912, made an appeal to the Republican voters of Oregon to send their delegates to the national convention instructed to support Senator Burton for the presidential nomination. Senator Burton said not a word about his own candidacy.

Given Hearty Reception.
Introduced by President McCourt, of the Oregon Republican club, as "Ohio's favorite son" Senator Burton received a warm reception from his auditors, many of whom were women. Mr. McCourt in his introductory remarks also referred to Senator Burton as "having demonstrated in congress his great friendship for the Columbia river and the Columbia river basin" and went on to say that few men in the United States know so much as Senator Burton about the capabilities of the river.

Urges Party Organization.
Senator Burton started by strongly urging party regularity on the Republicans of Oregon, telling them that party organization is absolutely necessary and that in electing Democrats to office they are doing serious injury to the principles for which they, as Republicans, stand. He predicted defeat of the Democratic administration in November, saying that "Democratic administrations are always ushered in with shouts, and out, four years later, with a universal sigh of relief."

Wants High Tariff.
He used all the stock arguments in favor of a high protective tariff and predicted that after the war the European nations will be unable to compete in our industries in a desperate effort to rehabilitate themselves, making it imperative that a high tariff will be built around the United States. They will be, he said, "like lean kine in parades pasures gazing into fields of clover, America. We must remember that we are for America first."

The speaker next assailed the administration as one of broken pledges and promises, referring particularly to repeal of free tolls through the Panama canal for American coastwise shipping and the single-term plank. The Democrats, he declared, had promised to reduce the cost of living but had merely made it harder "to produce the cost of living."

He attributed the rapid rise of prices during Republican administrations to the fact that the world's visible supply of gold doubled between 1890 and 1915.

Explains High Prices.
The high cost of living he attributed largely to the demand for luxuries, drawing a comparison between the conveniences and amusements when he was a boy and those of the present time.

"I am advocating a tariff commission and repealing the free sugar provision the Democrats seem to be flopping over to our principles," he said, "but don't trust them. They are liable to flip back again."

Senator Burton recalled the temporary use of the Vreeland-Aldrich currency law under the Democratic administration despite the fact its enactment met vehement Democratic opposition and said that it had been made the cornerstone of the federal reserve law now in force.

Diplomatic appointments made by the Wilson administration were criticized on the ground that trained diplomats did not get the appointments. The foreign policy of the government was denounced as vacillating and spineless, and the administration was accused of changing sides on the submarine issue, thus bringing on the present acute crisis which might have been avoided, Senator Burton insisted, had a "Blaine, a Hay or a Root been secretary of state."

The speaker referred to Bryan as the "secretary of peace," who had resigned because the president's preparedness program was too strenuous while Secretary of War Garrison had quit because it was not vigorous enough. He accused the administration of having no adequate preparedness program.

Repe Mexican Policy.
"The vacillating and uncertain" policy of the administration was blamed for the present trouble in Mexico, the speaker vehemently insisting that it was the government's duty to see that American lives and property in Mexico were protected "and not to meddle and fuss with the internal affairs of the country, leaving first to Villa and then Carranza, who, after being recognized, hasn't recognized us to any extent."

Missouri Jewelry Firm Sues Mrs. Leonia Mabee of Walla Walla, for Balance on Goods Purchased in 1911.
Mrs. Leonia Mabee, a widow of Walla Walla, Wash., is the defendant in a suit filed yesterday afternoon by a Missouri jewelry company to collect the balance due on a $10,000 necklace and $1700 set of pins.
The plaintiff is the Mermod, Jacard & King Jewelry company, which is represented by Attorneys Beach, Simon & Nelson. The diamond necklace was purchased April 12, 1911, and $6600 has been paid on the account. The pins were bought in December, 1912, and nothing has been paid, according to the complaint.
It is understood that Mrs. Mabee contends that the necklace and pins were presents from her husband and she is not liable for any unpaid portion of their purchase price.
