

THREE SPECIMENS OF RICH COPPER ORE ON EXHIBIT IN PORTLAND

Come From Mineral Region on South Fork of the Wallawalla River Near Joseph.

MUCH GOLD ALSO FOUND

But Mountain Gem Company Is After Copper and the Gold Is to Be Pure "Velvet."

Thomas P. Adams, an officer of the Mountain Gem Mining & Development company of Joseph, Wallawalla county, placed three fine specimens of copper in the Oregon state exhibit, ground floor of the Oregon building, Saturday night. Mr. Adams has been in Portland and Hillsboro making financial arrangements for renewed activity in the mineral region 25 miles from Joseph, on the south fork of the Wallawalla river.

The ore is of two kinds, one taken from the "white ledge," which is rich in silver, with good traces of gold as well as copper, and one from the "red ledge," which consists of from 25 to 50 per cent native copper. The third specimen is a sample of white ore "roasted" in a blacksmith's forge.

With this crude treatment, the richness of the ore is shown by the pure copper melted out and appearing in bright flakes throughout the mass of clinker.

Mr. Adams said the south fork region in the early days was cursed by the wildcat and water probably as much as any mining region in the world. The lasting effects of this sort of "mining" are only now being overcome. Were it not for the heavy demand for copper, he said, he doubted if renewed development could even now be successfully undertaken.

"Although we find plenty of gold in the ore, we have quit running any gold mines," said Adams. "The gold we get out of it is considered pure velvet. What we are after is the copper."

"We are now working on a wagon road from the mine to Joseph and as soon as that is finished we expect to begin hauling out the mineral. We have water power and will install a small dynamo and get out our own copper by electrolysis. That beats the smelter charges."

Adams said some tunneling has been done, 105 feet in the white ledge, and 230 feet in the red ledge. A porphyry dyke intersects the two ledges and apparently is the mother lode. This dyke has been traced for four miles, Adams said.

The specimens are to be included in the bureau of mines and geology exhibit in connection with the general state exhibit.

IDAHO MINES ARE ACTIVE

Coeur d'Alene District Finds Big Demand for Output.

Never was there such a rush and hustle in the whole Coeur d'Alene country as now, with metal prices soaring and lively demand for every kind of mineral the earth's inwards yield up. Boutin, secretary of the Interstate-Callaahan mine located seven miles from Wallace, Idaho, made this declaration Saturday during a brief visit to Portland. He said the mining camps look like they must have looked in the romantic days of the big rush.

The Interstate-Callaahan is now the third largest zinc producer in the world. It paid $2,225,000 in dividends last year and indications are that this year will break that record. Prices have risen from $4.80 to $25 per ton for spelter and are now hovering strong around $18. That fact has caused considerable of a boom in stocks, and the miners themselves, from muckers up to the bosses, are speculating.

Time was when the miners invested in liquid refreshments on Saturday nights. Now they invest in stocks. The result is that several tidy young fortunes have been made from increase in values of paper.

Most picturesque of all the characters of the Coeur d'Alene, Boutin said, is old J. F. Callahan who prospect for 30 years before he unearthed the big pay. His dividends last year were $500,000. Until lately, he lived in the same tumble-down shack that was his home during his days of fruitless quest. But though well along in years, he made a big splash after he got his dividend, went to Honolulu and picked up a young bride in California on the way home.

Some of the biggest pay mines in the world are located in the Coeur d'Alene, Boutin said, with lead, copper, silver, zinc and some gold.

REBELS GIVE UP STRONGHOLD IN DUBLIN'S HEART

Liberty hall, Pearce was wounded in the leg. Many rebels discarded their uniforms and escaped capture by mingling with crowds of civilians.

REBEL COMMANDERS IN DUBLIN SURRENDER; 1200 MADE PRISONERS

London, May 1.—(U. P.)—All Dublin rebel commanders have surrendered, it was officially announced today.

Large forces of rebels at Enniscorthy, 80 miles south of Dublin, surrendered after a truce lasting a day and a half, according to dispatches received in London today. Several Irish detachments are still holding out, but the back of the Irish rebellion has been broken.

Skirmishes continued in Dublin on Sunday, but there was little fighting in the heart of the city. More than 1200 rebels have been made prisoners. It is estimated that 200 have been killed and wounded and $10,000,000 damage done property during the seven days of disorder.

Proclamations were posted in Dublin yesterday announcing that Pearce, the rebel leader, had asked his followers to surrender. Irish snipers wounded the men posting these placards. Soon, however, groups of rebels surrounded in the business section of the city signalled for a truce. Presently several bands surrendered. Sniping in the outskirts of Dublin may continue for days while troops

GILLIAM COUNTY FAIR ANNOUNCES MANAGER

Victor J. Garvin.

The election of Victor J. Garvin of Oregon Agricultural college as manager of the Gilliam County fair, has been announced by the Gilliam County Fair association. He will assume his duties at the close of the college year and spend most of the summer in the field, rousing enthusiasm and assisting in collecting and arranging farmers' exhibits.

Mr. Garvin was born in Denver and is a graduate of Denver high school. He attended the Colorado Agricultural college two years and while a student there assisted in the promotion and supervision of several agricultural fairs and exhibits.

He came to Oregon Agricultural college as a student two years ago. He was supervisor of agriculture in the public schools of Corvallis last year and this year has assisted in the organization of boys' and girls' industrial clubs throughout the state.

There is no intimation of what punishment may be given rebel prisoners, including the Countess Markievicz.

DAMAGE TO DUBLIN BY INSURRECTION ABOUT $10,000,000 IS CLAIM

Dublin, May 1.—(Wireless to London)—(L. N. S.)—Slowly but surely the blaze of rebellion is dying out. With fatal precision, the military organization is asserting its mastery over the rebels.

Already the authorities are summing up the extent of the damage. Only rough estimates can be attempted at present. It is admitted, however, that the damage will exceed $10,000,000.

Pearce Issues Proclamation.

Peter Pearce, self-styled president of the republic of Ireland, who surrendered yesterday, issued the following proclamation Sunday.

"In order to prevent further slaughter of unarmed persons and in the hope of saving the lives of our followers who are surrounded and hopelessly outnumbered, the members of the provisional government at headquarters have agreed to unconditional surrender and the commanders of all the units of republicanism will order their followers to lay down their arms."

Postoffice Filled by Rebels.

The postoffice, the main stronghold of the Sinn Feiners, was fired by the rebels themselves and is in ruins. The Metropolitan hotel, near by, also was destroyed by fire. Both sides of Sackville street are practically burnt over. Most of the public buildings in Talbot street were destroyed, as was the Eden quay.

No estimates of the total casualties of the week's fighting have been made. However, a supplemental list issued by the commander-in-chief of the British forces here gives 27 names of officers—five killed, 21 wounded and one missing. On Friday two officers were reported killed and five wounded.

Loss of Officers Large.

The formidable total of 34 casualties among officers alone is thus presented. These figures are surprisingly large for a civilian revolt and indicate that the losses among troops must have been large. It is but natural to infer that the losses among the Sinn Feiners and civilians also have been heavy.

James Connolly, commander of the Dublin district rebels, was in the post-office when wounded. A bullet shattered his thigh bone. Many of the leaders of the rebellion have surrendered unconditionally.

Sniping Has Been Stopped.

The sniping from houses has been practically stopped, owing to the systematic digging out of the insurgents by troops.

In the neighborhood of Northwalk, the small houses were infested by the rebels. A party of bomb throwers from the Royal Munster fusiliers, under cover of darkness, attacked the houses, and the rebels were expelled by the use of hand bombs.

Three areas of the city are still held by the Sinn Feiners, but each is surrounded by a cord of troops. Nothing remains for the rebels but to lay down their arms or to steal away among the non-combatant population. Hundreds have surrendered.

Fate of Prisoners Uncertain.

The question of what fate shall befall the prisoners is exciting much speculation. The military authorities are fully empowered to deal with rebels taken in arms against the government. It is believed in some quarters, however, that the English will consider it advisable under the circumstances not to make martyrs of the Sinn Feiners.

None of the Dublin newspapers is being published. Visiting correspondents are afforded every facility by the military authorities to learn what is going on, but the size of the city and the scattered nature of the fighting make their task difficult.

Correspondents Are Targets.

Most of the correspondents are quartered at the London Northwest hotel. During Saturday snipers got the range of the hotel perfectly and for 10 or 15 minutes made the lives of the correspondents miserable. Bullets whistled all around until the gunners on the hotel roof began picking off the snipers. Eventually the firing ceased.

Owing to the paralysis of communication, a large part of the civilian population was threatened with famine until the army leader devised a plan for supplying them with food. Rations of bread, meat, fish and flour are now being distributed in all accessible parts of the city.

Bodies of Germans Found.

London, May 1.—The bodies of two German officers were found among the dead in the streets of Dublin, according to a dispatch from the Irish capital today, which quoted a British officer as authority. The dispatch confirmed reports that a submarine had been engaged in filibustering on the Irish coast.

Hood P-T. Elects.

Hood River, Or., May 1.—At the annual meeting of the Parent-Teacher association held at Library hall Saturday evening the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. William F. Rand; vice president, Mrs. Frank A. Cram; secretary, Mrs. Frank Davenport Jr.; treasurer, Mrs. H. A. MacDonald. The reports of the officers of the association indicate that the organization has had one of the most prosperous years in its history.

Milton Sets Strawberry Date.

Milton, Or., May 1.—At a recent meeting of the city council it was decided to have the annual strawberry festival and horse show May 31. The same committee that made the festival such a success last year was appointed.

UNINSTRUCTED G. O. P. DELEGATES NUMBER ENOUGH TO NOMINATE

Only 307 Pledged, All to Favorite Sons; Three Leaders Have None.

New York, May 1.—(I. N. S.)—Uninstructed delegates to the Republican national convention will have sufficient strength to nominate the candidate for president. This situation is revealed by the compilation of figures in states where the delegates have already been chosen and from telegrams from state leaders.

The figures show that at least 579 of the 985 delegates will go uninstructed. The number of votes required to nominate is 492. Only 307 or less than a third of the delegates, are pledged and most of these are to favorite sons. From this it can be seen that it will be anybody's fight when the convention opens. None of the three men most prominently mentioned for the presidency—Charles E. Hughes, Theodore Roosevelt and Edith Root—has had delegates instructed for him. Instructions have been given as follows:

Cummins 74, Burton 57, Fairbanks 51, La Follette 35, Sherman 54, Ford 30, Du Pont 6, total 307.

BURTON FINDS ENTIRE COUNTRY AROUSED TO PREPAREDNESS NEED

Chicago, May 1.—(I. N. S.)—After touring and addressing audiences in 41 states of the union within the past 10 months, Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio declares that the entire country is at last awakened to the great need of national military preparedness.

"That preparedness has become a national issue and is the popular desire of the people of the United States is apparent on all sides," said Senator Burton today. "The enthusiasm differs in different sections of the country. The eastern seaboard states are particularly alive to the needs of the nation in this respect, while the central states feel more or less secure. In the commonwealths along the Mexican border I found the citizens living in constant fear of some great impending danger. It is to be regretted that congress has been so slow to take action on this issue. However, I have no doubt but that both the army and navy bills will be passed eventually."

Portland People File Upon Land

Albany, Or., May 1.—The following Portland people came here Saturday afternoon and filed on land in townships 14, 3 and 4 east, about 4000 acres in all, being 150 each. Some of them had filed before. There were five women in the crowd. The land in question is timber land and is in the Cascadia section. The list, together with the fees each paid, is as follows:

Frank E. Alley, $16; John H. MacDonald, $16; Omer B. Young, $16; Edward P. Bowers, $16; Harack W. Brooks, $16; Thomas U. Stimpson, $16; Courtney Bryan, $16; Emil B. McGlasson, $16; Huldah J. Conrad, $16; Lloyd W. Wells, $29.46; Ethel A. French, $16; Joseph Amann, $29.24; Vassile Luda, $16; William G. Heibel, $29.24; Dwight H. Robinson, $29.54; David Fontana, $16.

Aviator Flies Over Seattle at Night

Seattle, Wash., May 1.—(P. N. S.)—In the first all-dark flight in the history of Seattle, Lieutenant Terah Maroney, of the aviation corps of Second regiment, National Guard, Washington, last night flew over the city at an altitude of 2000 feet. The money was aloft for more than 20 minutes and circled several times over business section and the Queen Anne hill residence district. Maroney is endeavoring to recruit aviation corps, to be a regular adjunct of the state militia force.

Miss De Graff Lectures.

Hood River, Or., May 1.—Miss De Graff, Portland delegate to the peace conference at The Hague, delivered two lectures in Hood River Saturday afternoon and evening. The afternoon lecture was given in the Grove Grange hall, and the evening lecture at the Library hall in the center of the city. The Pacific Teacher association.

Look at Porto Rico on the Map and say if Fine Cigars should not be made there

Tobacco in its perfection is as native to the soil of one island of the West Indies as to the other.

Porto Rican tobacco is known to have every good quality of Cuban leaf, but as now cultivated "in the field," of her up-land plantations it has a delicate mildness which distinguishes it from the Cuban leaf in this one noteworthy respect.
