THE OREGON DAILY JOURNAL, PORTLAND, SATURDAY, MAY 6, 1916.

Day Is to Be Exceeded in Religious Importance Only by Easter and Christmas.

CARNATION IS ITS SYMBOL

White Plower Is Worn, Red Bloom Signifies That Mother Is Still Living.

Sunday, May 11 will be observed universally as Mother's day in all churches Next to the Protestant Easter and Christmas, Mother's day is probably the biggest day in the church. No suggestion was even received more gladly or more quickly given universal recognition in the Sunday school world than the idea of Mother's day of Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia in a desire to commemorate the anniversary of her mother's death and (t) occurred to her that it would be a beautiful tribute to motherhood if all persons showed their love and loyalty to their dearest earthly friend.

The white carnation was selected # as Mother's day flower Its whiteness stands for purity; its form, beauty; its abundant and large field of growth, charity, its lasting qualities. falthfulness; its fragrance, love 11 44 is universally held that among the # many virtues of motherhood these -purity, heavity, charity, faithfulness and love are the most notable. The custom, widely observed on this day by men and boys is to wear * white carnation and to send a let- * ter or picture home to their mother If living. In recent years men, parleularly those away from home, have * honored their living mothers by weating a red carnation

Next Sunday some of the Portland * churches will present every mother with a carnation as she enters the church. In places where fresh flowers are hard to get paper flowers are used. The day cannot properly be observed in spirit if the carnation is not present effore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is and tomorrow is the oven, shall be not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith? Matt. vi: 30. By Rev. Walter L. Airheart of the First Methodist Episcopal Church.

> The atmosphere of human life is heavy with the sweat of toil, the streets are filled with hurrying men intent upon their search for gain. The spur of hunger and need not only drives men relentlessly from day to day but routes even the women and children from the homes and crowds them into the shops and mills.

Jesus tells of a Father who loves us, knows intimately all our needs and invites us to live lives of absolute trust in him, with the assurances that if we "seek first his kingioni and righteousness all things shall be given in addition." Does this doctrine offer a practical solution applicable for the life of today?

Jesus spoke with a perfect assurance of that which was true in his own experience and this is not only open to him but to all men. By this route he seeks to lead the race to its great future. This is not something promised for the next world but for this world, here and now.
