BROWN LEGHORN WINS PRAISE OF THE EXPERT

Government Poultryman Says They Have Well Merited Confidence Received.

High praise is given to the Brown as exceeding beauty of feather by George E. Howard, government poultry expert, who prepared the booklet on Standard Varieties of Chickens, Regarding this beautiful fowl, Howard says: The Brown Leghorns are one of the prettiest of the Leghorn varieties, but they are the most difficult of all to breed to feather. They have merited the confidence of poultry lovers for a long time; their hardy constitutions have withstood rough usage, and promiscuous interbreeding has not affected their characteristics. A Pixed Variety.

They are a fixed variety, and their merits are noticeable from the newly hatched chick to the oldest specimen. In mating Brown Leghorns the n.ost successful breeders use a double mating, one pen for each sex. Fine birds, both cockerels and pullets, can be bred from the same pen by using slightly different types of females. pullets, but it is a rare case to have half over. able quality, Mating Plan.

Shafting Also Helps.

Shafting on the back will also help the black stripe in the saddles. The pullets raised from this pen will be too dark for exhibition, but they will be a great help in breeding cockerels head of the pen mated to produce the pullets should be from a pullet strain, and bred directly from an exhibition hen. To him mate exhibition females brown on back and wings, all one shade, free from shafting on back or brick color on wings. These hens should have the large comb, lying over, but firm and strong on the head, so it does not lie close to the eye and

The cockerels raised from this mating are the birds to use for breeding females the next year. Ly breeding Brown Leghorns in this manner we have the distinct lines of blood, which should never be crossed.

Pertinent Advice For the Poultryman

By C. C. Lamb. O. A. C. Extension Poultry Specialist. Feed the little chicks clean, untainted food. Musty or moldy food is liable to bring disease and serious

If prepared chick feed is used, buy good quality. The cracked corn in the feed may be musty if too old and if it has been heated in any way. If your miller can supply a good grade of cracked corn and cracked wheat, you can make a good efficient home mixture of chick feed

A thick ration that is too concentrated will cause digestive troubles. ration that is too bulky will not furnish enough nourishment for satisfactory growth. Don't forget that the growing chick needs just as carefully a balanced ration as the laying hen. Ash, grit, charcoal, succulent green food and animal food are important elements in the chick's ration. The following ration and method of chick feeding is used successfully at is recommended: Eation for Small Chickens.

Starting food. Bran mixed crumbly with soft boiled egg; or bread squeezed dry out of milk. Grain mixture, 1 pint cracked wheat, 1 pint cracked corn.

Mash mixture. 3 lbs. wheat bran, 1 lb. wheat middlings or shorts, 1 lb. corn meal. Pinch of salt added when mixing. First feed time. 24 to 36 hours.

First week. Starting food twice a day; grain mixture three time a day on clean sand; after two or three days, grain litter; clean water; grit, charcoal, cracked bone, in separate dishes;

green food. One to three weeks. One feed day of moist mash, what chicks will clean up in an hour; grain mixture in litter two or three times a day; grit, charcoal, cracked bone, and beef scrap in hoppers; water; green food.

Three to six week. Morning feed of moist mash; two feeds of grain mixture; dry middlings in a hopper, If signs of diarrhoea appear; hopperfed beef scrap, water, grit, charcoal, cracked bone, always available; milk to drink; green food. After six weeks or on range. Morning meal of moist mash; two feeds of grain mixture; milk (or beef scrap), charcoal, grit, bone, water. Oats may be added to the grain mixture, if desired; the proportion of wheat may be increased or decreased as it becomes

Water Glass Method Of Preserving Eggs

This is the season when the hen is busy, and those who have a surplus of eggs which they do not wish to sell may preserve them until the slack lay-George A. The proportions of water-glass to water required for preserving eggs Some have successfully pre served eggs in proportions of one part of water-glass to 20 parts of water others have used more concentrated

The proportions to be used will de pend largely upon the length of time desired to keep them preserved. For the shorter periods perhaps the weaker solutions will do, but it is safer to use a proportion of one part of water-glass to 12 parts of water than say, one with 15 parts of water. The best results, however, have been ob tained where the eggs have been preserved in a solution containing one pint of water-glass to 9 or 10 pints of water.
