

News of Women's Clubs BY VELLA WINNER

ROSE CITY PARK clubhouse held a large and interested audience last evening, the occasion being the presentation of the operetta, "A Dream of Fairyland", by 100 members of the newly organized children's club, the Rosebud Choral. The story is of a day spent in Fairyland by two little girls and introduces all sorts of darling little fairies, elves, brownies, butterflies and all the other interesting people who live in Fairyland. The costuming of the little opera was one of its most delightful features. White frocks and gossamer, billowing black frocks for the evil fairies and red frocks for the wee-wee fairies, none of whom were more than five years old. The children did their parts beautifully, the dancing being particularly fine. The lighting effects and scenery contributed to the pleasure of the evening. The affair was planned and the children were coached by Gold-son Starr Scott.

Capitol Hill Election.—Capitol Hill Parent-Teacher association held its annual meeting last evening. Reports showed splendid work done during the past year. The new officers chosen were: President, Mrs. Charles Kirk; vice president, Charles Full; secretary, Mrs. G. L. Thompson; treasurer, Miss Gresham. Judge Taxwell gave a brief address. At the next meeting, which will be the final one for the season, the new officers will be installed.

President Gives Program.—The closing program meeting for the season of the Portland Women's club was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. G. J. Frankel, the retiring president, and Mrs. Walter Kendall, soprano, with Mrs. Warrant Thomas at the piano. Mrs. Frankel gave three groups of readings ranging from scholarly selections to humorous sketches and it was in the latter type of interpretation that her best work was done. Her own arrangement of "Hagar" was her heaviest number, and the "Lines From Old Familiar Verses," also arranged by herself, brought forth great applause. Mrs. Kendall possesses an exquisite voice, well trained and with full power. Her interpretation of the "Lines From Old Familiar Verses" was a notable success. Mrs. Thomas gave splendid support at the piano. The audience was unusually large, there being many guests. After the program was followed by a social hour and the serving of refreshments.

Highland Association Election.—Mrs. A. F. Fliegel was yesterday elected president of the Highland Parent-Teacher association. Other officers elected were: First vice president, Miss Fluke Howard; second vice president, Mrs. Charles Martin; secretary, Mrs. H. J. Kelly; treasurer, Mrs. E. K. Klippel; librarian, Mrs. Thomas G. Greene. Mrs. Greene has been president of the association for several years. A fine spirit of harmony prevailed and the past year has been a notably successful one. Mrs. Crawford, chairman of the social service work for the past year, gave a splendid report. It was decided to hold a picnic in June, time and place to be announced later. A committee was appointed to attend to the matter of having a picture of the late principal, J. H. Stanley, framed and placed in the building. Dr. A. P. McKinlay gave a comprehensive talk on the arachnid which is now hanging in the Highland school.

A Correction.—The announcement that Mrs. Everett M. Raynor of New York had been elected president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution was a mistake. The president of that organization is Mrs. William Cumming Story and there was no election at that year's convention. The annual meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held only biennially.

Richmond Association Elects.—Richmond Parent-Teacher association met yesterday afternoon and elected officers as follows: President, Mrs. Thomas Freeman; first vice president, Mrs. E. A. Kinsey; second vice president, Mrs. Lillian Goodspeed; secretary, Miss Jacoby; treasurer, Mrs. N. Freund. It was decided to postpone the next meeting on account of the Rose Festival. The next meeting will be a picnic in Kenilworth park to which the fathers will be specially invited. A picnic supper

CYANIDE AND GLASS USED TO KILL TROOPS OF U. S. BY MEXICANS

Water Holes Along Route of Pershing's Columns Prepared as Traps for Soldiers

El Paso, May 12.—(I. N. S.)—Cyanide of potassium and powdered glass have been thrown into the water holes and along the streams of the farthest front of the Pershing column, according to evidences developed at the Fort Bliss hospital.

A number of soldiers returned from South of Casas Grandes are suffering at the post hospital with all the symptoms of cyanide poisoning, including heart failure and lung failure. That they have not died is believed due to the fact that an insufficient quantity of the poison had been taken into their systems.

A telegram has been received from Lieutenant Colonel C. A. Bell, chief of staff to General Pershing, asking for information on chemical tests to locate cyanide of potassium in water, and asking how to discover glass spicules when they have been covered with grease so they float.

Four army lieutenants have been detailed to take instruction on the cyanide tests. They will complete the superficial test at the earliest possible moment and proceed to the headquarters in line with assignment.

A telegram has been forwarded to General Pershing's chief of staff giving the simplest chemical method known for determining the presence of cyanide in pools of water.

The army here and all along the line has been guarding this turn in events carefully. The information which has now leaked out comes from a quartermaster which is not to be doubted.

Large quantities of cyanide of potassium have been stored in the silver mines of Chihuahua. It is used in the process of separating the silver and gold metal from the ores.

The glass spicules or splinters, made by pounding and grinding up glass, are thrown into hot fat and then dropped into water. The grease covering causes them to float on the top.

Bed Time Tales BY CLARA INGRAM JUDSON

Mother Earth's Patterns. TWO little fairies perched themselves on an old stump and looked out over the hillside and meadows. "Don't you sometimes wonder," asked one of the other, "how Mother Earth ever thinks of all the pretty things she makes? How she plants the flowers and maps out the meadows and makes the many, many patterns she must use in her season's work?" "Yes, I do wonder that very thing," replied the other fairy, "and I've often wished I might ask her. But, you see, she is never so busy that she cannot answer questions, if you please," called a voice close by her. "Who is this lady person you are wondering about, and what do you wish you might ask her?"

The fairies both jumped. They never guessed that anybody was near, and it was very queer to have their words and thoughts answered so quickly that way. They looked around and up and down, but not a sign of anybody did they see.

"Did I dream that voice?" asked one fairy, "or did somebody really speak?" "You never dreamed that, my little friend," answered the other fairy, "I'm just now talking to you."

"But who are you?" questioned the fairy, who was more and more puzzled all the while.

"Then how the voice did laugh! 'Don't you know your old friend, Mother Earth?'" asked the voice, pleasantly.

"The other Earth?" exclaimed both fairies together. "We didn't recognize you at all! Haven't you a new voice?"

"Not a new one," replied Mother Earth, "but in the last spring one back again, like my spring voice much better than my winter voice and I always get it out as soon as I can. But what were you wondering about? Maybe I can help you."

"You surely can," said one fairy; "because it was you we were wondering about. We were wishing we knew how you think up all the pretty patterns you make in the meadows and on the hillsides and in the forests. Don't you ever run out of designs?"

"Not I," laughed Mother Earth; "but I must tell you that I don't think up the designs myself. I only use the ones that are furnished me."

"That are furnished you?" exclaimed the fairies together. "Who in the world furnishes designs for flowers and meadows and such beautiful things?"

"You'll never guess," replied Mother Earth, "so I'll tell you. Jack Frost makes all my patterns. He traces them on the window-panes and on the rivers and creeks. Maybe you think I sleep in the winter, but I don't. I study. I get into my head all the beautiful things Jack Frost draws and then when spring comes I am ready for work!" And away she went about her business.

Truthfulness. YOU cannot go into a department store anywhere without hearing some little child threatened with eternal punishment or being devoured by a big bear or a policeman—by his mother. In street cars and on the streets it is the same.

In the mind of an intelligent child there forms the idea that a mother is either a fool or liar. I heard one great man say that the most impressive memory of his mother was her lying modes of punishment for his naughtiness.
