

STOWAWAYS SOUGHT WHO REFUSED TO GO TO SEA ON ROANOKE

Federal Inspectors Would Learn Why Refusal Was Made by These Men.

San Francisco, May 17.—(U. P.)—Joseph Eib, quartermaster of the ill-fated North Pacific liner Roanoke was recalled to the witness stand for further cross-examination today when the federal investigation into the sinking of the steamer with a loss of 47 lives was resumed.

The federal inspectors are endeavoring to ascertain the truth of a report that the Roanoke was so heavily loaded that she drew more water than her papers allowed when she left this port on her last voyage.

Two stowaways who arrived here from Mexico on the Roanoke and refused to be deported on her are being sought by United States detectives.

AMERICA FOR PEACE BUT SOME MEN HAVE TO BE KNOCKED DOWN

—Glad because I am always happy to be with you, and know and like so many of you, and sorry because I have to make a speech. One of the leading faults of you gentlemen of the press is your inordinate desire to hear other men talk, to draw them out upon all occasions, whether they wish to be drawn out or not. I remember being in this press club once before, making many unprepared disclosures of myself, and then I was, with your singular instinct for publicity, insist that I should give it away to everybody else.

Forecast Has Been Verified.

"I was this morning looking forward to coming here this evening of that other occasion when I stood very nearly at the threshold of the duties that have since been called upon to perform and I was going over in my mind the impressions that I then had by way of forecast of the duties of president and combining them with the experiences that have followed. I must say that the forecast has been very largely verified and that the impression I had then been deepened rather than weakened.

"Sometimes the forecast is most beset. I seriously think of renting a pair of whiskers or of doing something else that will furnish me with an adequate disguise because I am sorry to find that the out of my life is unmistakable and I must sail under false colors if I am going to sail incognito.

Variety Among Our Citizenship.

"When we are dealing with Democratic affairs, gentlemen, we are dealing with things that to us as Americans are more or less calculable. There is a singular variety among our citizenship, it is true, a greater variety even than I had anticipated, but, after all, we are all steeped in the same atmosphere, we are all more or less affected by the same traditions, and moreover, we are working out something that has to be worked out among ourselves, and the elements are there to be dealt with first hand.

Two Reasons for Peace.

"You can imagine the strain upon the feelings of a man who is trying to interpret the spirit of his country when he feels that that spirit cannot have its own way beyond a certain point. And one of the greatest points of strain upon me, if I may be permitted to point it out, was this:

"There are two reasons why the chief wish of Americans is for peace. One is that they love peace and have nothing to do with the present quarrel, and the other is that they believe the political quarrel has carried those engaged in it so far that they cannot be held to ordinary standards of responsibility, and that, therefore, as some men have expressed it to me, since the rest of the world is mad, why should we not simply refuse to have anything to do with the rest of the world in the ordinary channels of action? Why not let the storm pass, and then, when it is all over, have the reckoning?"

America's Place in the World.

"Knowing that from both these two points of view, the passion of America was for peace, I was, nevertheless, aware that America is not only one of the nations of the world, but one of the chief nations of the world—a nation that grows more and more powerful almost in spite of herself, that grows more and more influential even when she is not aware of it, and that if she is to play the part which she most covets it is necessary that she should act more or less from the point of view of the rest of the world.

How to Handle a Man.

"If I cannot retain my moral influence over a man except by occasionally knocking him down, if that is the only basis upon which he will respect me, then for the sake of his soul I have got occasionally to knock him down.

"You know how we have read in— isn't it in Ralph Connor's stories of western life in Canada—that all his sky pilots are ready for fracas at any time, and how the ultimate salvation of the souls of their parishioners depends upon their using their fists occasionally.

Believes in Spanking.

"If a man will not listen to you quietly in a seat, sit on his neck and make him listen; just as I have always maintained, particularly in view of certain experiences of mine, that the shortest road to a boy's moral sense is through his cuticle. There is a direct and, if I may be permitted the pun, a fundamental connection between the surface of his skin and his moral conscience. You arrest his attention first in that way and then get the moral lesson conveyed to him in other ways that, if he were grown up, would be the only way you would use.

"So I say that I have been aware that in order to do the very thing that we are proud of the ability to do, there might come a time when we would have to do it in a way that we would prefer not to do it; and the great burden on my spirits, gentlemen, has been that it has been up to me to choose when that time came.

Omniscient Writers Scored.

"In domestic matters I think I can in most cases guess pretty near a guess where the thought of America is going, but in foreign affairs the chief element is where action is going on in other quarters of the world and not where thought is going in the United States. Therefore, I have several times taken the liberty of urging upon you gentlemen not yourselves to know where thought is going in other quarters about foreign affairs. Some of you have shown a certain range of omniscience, and certain things have been reported as 'understood in administrative circles' which I never heard of until I read the newspapers. I am constantly taken by surprise in regard to decisions which are said to be my own.

Rumors May Cause Disaster.

"Now, that is pretty dangerous, gentlemen, because it happens that rumors start fires. There is tinder lying about in the world, and it is spreading sparks may be responsible for something a great deal worse than burning a town on the Mexican border. Thoughts may be bandits. Thoughts may be raiders. Thoughts may be invaders. Thoughts may be disturbers of international peace. And when you reflect upon the importance of this country keeping out of the present war, you will know that rumors are all very well, but they are all very well, and you, gentlemen, the only thing that saves the world is the little handful of disinterested men that are in it.

Knows Some Disinterested Men.

"Now, I have found a few disinterested men. I wish I had found more. I can name two or three men with whom I have conferred again and again, and I have never caught them by any inadvertence thinking about themselves for their own interests and I feel that those men as you would tie to an anchor. I tie to them as you would tie to the voices of conscience if you could be sure that you always heard them. Men who have no axes to grind, men who love America so that they would give their lives for it and never care whether anybody heard that they had given their lives for it—willing to die in obscurity if only they might serve. These are the men, and nations like those men are the nations that are going to serve the world and save it. There never was a time in the history of the world when character, just sheer character, all by itself, told more than it does now.

Some Men Grow; Some Swell.

"A friend of mine says that every man who takes office in Washington either grows or swells, and when I give a man an office I watch him carefully to see whether he is swelling or growing. The mischief of it is that big men who swell they do not swell enough to burst. If they would only swell to the point where you might insert a pin and let out the gas it would be a great delight. I do not know any man that would be more diverting. The men who grow are the balance wheel of the whole thing. They are the ballast that enables the craft to carry sail and make port in the long run, no matter what the weather is.

Has Come Through the Fire.

"I have come through the fire, since I talked to you last. Whether the metal is purer than it was God only knows; but the fire has been there. If I may believe my own thoughts I have less partisan feeling, more im-

Camping Grounds For Motorists Urged

Chamber of Commerce Bureau Takes Up the Matter With City Commissioner Baker.

Request has been made upon the Portland Chamber of Commerce that camping grounds for automobile tourists be arranged for during the coming season. Mark Wopdruff of the publicly and conventions bureau took up the matter with City Commissioner George L. Baker, who promised to investigate and see if such facilities could be arranged.

It was pointed out that the service is provided by Grants Pass, Ashland, Roseburg, Cottage Grove and other Oregon cities. Ashland even going so far as to provide kitchen accommodations with gas ranges for the use of automobile camping parties.

ATTACKS BY TEUTONS WITH HAND GRENADES REPULSED BY FRENCH

"You will remember the red queen in 'Alice in Wonderland,' or 'Alice Through the Looking Glass'—I forget which, it has been so long since I read them—who takes Alice by the hand and they rush along at a great pace, and then when they stop Alice looks around and says, 'But we are just where we were when we started.' 'Yes,' says the red queen, 'you have to run twice as fast as that to get anywhere else.'"

"That is also true, gentlemen, of the world and of affairs. You have got to run fast merely to stay where you are, and in order to get anywhere you have got to run twice as fast as that. That is what people do not realize. That is the mischief of these hopeless demonstrations and standpat acts and other words of obliquity. They are sinking further back in what will sometime comfort-ably close over their heads as the black waters of oblivion. I sometimes imagine that I see their heads going down, and I am not inclined even to throw them a life-preserver. The sooner they disappear, the better.

Think First of America.

"We need their places for people who are awake and we particularly need them, gentlemen, men who will divest themselves of party passion and of personal preference and will try to think in the terms of America. If a man describes himself to me now in any other terms, that those terms I do not care for, and I love the fellows that come into my office some time and say, 'Mr. President, I am an American.' Their hearts are right, their instincts true, they are going in the right direction, and will take the right leadership if they believe that the leader is also a man who thinks first of America."

French Attack Breaks Down.

Berlin May 17.—(U. P.)—A French attack on the southern slope of Hill 304 broke down under artillery fire during the night the war office announced today. There was heavy artillery fighting all night on both banks of the Meuse.

Federal Censorship Bill Is Given Support

Committee Recommends It to House; Would Place Deputies in All Parts of Country; Fees to Pay Expenses.

Washington, May 17.—(U. P. S.)—The Hughes bill, providing federal censorship of motion pictures, was favorably reported out by the house education committee today.

Representative Hughes, in advocating the bill, declared it would safeguard the public against vicious "movies," while working no hardship on honest film producers.

The measure provides for a federal motion picture committee of five members, with offices in Washington, and authority to appoint deputy commissioners throughout the country. Films would be compelled to bear the commission's license before being shipped from one state to another. Fees for licenses are set at $2, and 50 cents for duplicates. Revenue from fees would give the government $150,000 yearly. It is estimated, covering the commission's expenses.

Upon adverse decision of one commissioner or deputy against a film, the producer may appeal to the full commission and from the commission's decision may carry his case to the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

Maximum punishment for violation of the bill's provisions is fixed at a fine of $1000, one year in jail, or both.

Legislative Ticket ENDORSED BY EMPLOYERS' ASS'N

Businessmen and Taxpayers, Attention!

It is most important that careful consideration be given to the selection of men as Representatives to the Legislature. No man should be selected who merely seeks advertising and experience at the expense of the business interests of the state.

We have had an over-production of PEEK laws. It is now time to make present laws fit present conditions, eliminating those that are obsolete and injurious to the interest and development of the state.

This Should Be a Businessman's Legislature!

There are 13 candidates for the Senate and 39 for the House. Therefore, to the average voter a proper selection would be difficult, unless he had a personal knowledge of the candidates.

To the end that the voter may be assisted in his selection, a careful study of the qualifications of ALL the candidates has been made and 8 for the Senate (8 to be elected) and 16 for the House (16 to be elected) are here-with suggested for your consideration, as men who would represent fairly the interests of all the people if elected. It is not the intention to reflect upon the honesty or integrity of any candidate not endorsed hereon, the purpose being to suggest the men who are most fit by ability and experience.

W. R. STEELE
FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER.
VOTE X 153

Mr. Steele was elected County Commissioner of Multnomah county in 1908 by almost a unanimous vote of all the voters of the county. During the time he held office he conducted himself in such a manner as to receive the confidence of the public, and demonstrated thoroughly his ability to properly administer the duties of County Commissioner.

Mr. Steele's friends, knowing his qualifications, have induced him to become a candidate in this election. The people of Multnomah county will be extremely fortunate if he is elected and his services secured, for the reason that it is difficult to get able, successful men of Mr. Steele's type to consent to run for office.

Mr. Steele has been a resident and taxpayer of Multnomah county for more than thirty years, and is married and has a family of nine children, all residing in Multnomah county.

Mr. Steele has expert knowledge of road building and road construction, and, as will be remembered by many, was one of the pioneers in the good roads movement of this county and state. In fact, Mr. Steele built the first hard surface road in Multnomah county.
