

WASCO COUNTY WILL VOTE ON BOND ISSUE FOR GOOD HIGHWAYS

Favorable Action Last Night at Enthusiastic Mass Meeting at The Dalles.

The Dalles, Or., May 18.—At a mass meeting of Wasco county citizens held at the court house last night, it was unanimously voted to call a special election for the purpose of voting on a bond issue of $250,000 to be used in building roads in Wasco county. Petitions will be circulated at once and the election will be held as soon as possible. It is planned to spend $125,000 in the north end of the county from Mosier to a point five miles east of The Dalles. This road will serve as the Wasco county part of the Columbia river highway. The rest of the bond money would be spent from this city south to the Jefferson county line, through Dufur, Tygh Valley, Maupin, Shaniko and Antelope. The meeting was the most enthusiastic ever held here on roads, and general sentiment throughout the county seems to assure the bond issue passing by a large majority.

WOMAN SAYS SHE SAW AUTO STOP ON BRIDGE

noon drag the river for Ristman's body. Up until this morning the officers were inclined to believe that the murderer killed Ristman on the road from Portland and disposed of the body in the Tualatin river near Sherwood, which is about four miles west of Tualatin. They clung to the theory that the murderer drove the machine after killing Ristman, and took the roundabout way to the Jennings home going eastward from Sherwood to the scene, instead of going through Tualatin and westward to the place.

This was based on the discovery of Ristman's Panama hat, a piece of his shirt sleeve and a part of his automobile lap robe about 200 yards westward from the Jennings home. Theories are advanced. They believed that the murderer noticed the hat, shirt sleeve and bloody lap robe in the machine upon reaching the Jennings home, and that he feared Mrs. Jennings, if she came out of the house, might see them; that he stopped in the road and carried the hat, sleeve and robe to a clump of bushes along the road where he hid them, was the theory of the officers.

They found that the bloody spots on the outside of the machine had been covered with dirt and that the foot mat in the bottom of the machine had been turned over to conceal blood on the floor of the car. With Mrs. Galbreath's story, however, the theory is now advanced that the murderer drove through Tualatin, thence westward to the Jennings home, throwing the body into the river before he reached the town of Tualatin; that after he killed Mrs. Jennings, he tried to start the automobile and, unable to do so, took the hat, sleeve and robe which could easily be identified as Ristman's and threw them into the bushes on his way toward Sherwood.

Mrs. Galbreath recalls incident. Mrs. Galbreath told her story to Sheriff Hurst and Deputy Sheriffs Beckman and Phillips this morning. She owns a ranch near the south end of the wagon road bridge crossing Tualatin river a short distance from the town of Tualatin. She is the sister-in-law of Joseph Galbreath, of Clipole, Or., who was probably the last person to see Mrs. Jennings before she was killed.

Mrs. Galbreath said she saw a machine stop on the bridge about 9:25 Monday night. She told the officers she gave the incident no thought until she had read of the murder mystery in the newspapers.

Ristman left Portland with his lone passenger shortly after 8 o'clock and it is believed he would have reached the Tualatin bridge at about the time

SUSPECT DENIES THAT HE KILLED MRS. JENNINGS

Bennett Thompson, who is held in jail at Hillsboro.

Mrs. Galbreath said she saw the machine. "When I read about the murder in the papers, I recalled seeing a machine on the bridge," said Mrs. Galbreath. "I wasn't sure that it was on Monday night, however, until I had talked it over with Mrs. Baker, who lives at my house. I was in Portland Tuesday, and being in court on that day and yesterday, had no opportunity until this morning to tell what I saw."

Saw Machine From Window. "I was near the window on the north side of the house when I saw the lights of a machine cross the river at the intersection of the old Boone's Ferry road and the new road. It appeared to me as though the driver was undecided which road to take, as the machine slowed down and seemed to stop for a few seconds."

"Then it came on down the slight grade and onto the bridge. There is an electric light in the middle of the bridge. The machine had just passed this light when it came to a stop. I couldn't see what took place, as the view was obscured by some trees in the yard."

A few seconds later the machine started again and came up the road. I saw it distinctly as it passed the house. It was a small car and the man driving it was dressed in brown clothes or had on a brown or tan colored rain coat.

"I noticed some stuff in the back of the car but thought at the time that it was some farmer who had some grain sacks or burlap in the back of the machine and was on his way home. I am sure that it was 9:25 o'clock, as I set my watch a few minutes later and that was the time."

River Will Be Drugged. The officers believe that if it was the murderer Mrs. Galbreath saw, the objects which she mistook for sacks were the lap robe and the tan colored foot mat. A search is still being made for Ristman's body and if not found soon the river is to be dragged near the bridge. Sheriff Reeves announced today that he plans to have the river dragged.

Searching for the body yesterday says, when the stranger came up, and he declares that he feels certain that if the right man was produced he would recognize him instantly. When Thompson left the city jail this morning with Sheriff Reeves he was apparently as calm and unperturbed as the policemen who stood around and watched his exit.

"You've put those things on backward, haven't you?" Thompson asked, speaking to Sheriff Reeves. "The sheriff had some late model hand-ruffs, and had placed the left cuff on Thompson's right wrist. The sheriff readjusted them."

Wants Square Deal Only. "As long as I get a square deal I ain't worrying at all," said Thompson to several detectives and policemen with whom he was acquainted, and who wished him good luck.

"Ben, if you did this you ought to be hanged," said Detective P. J. Moloney, who has known Thompson for 20 years.

"If I did this I should say I had ought to be hanged," Thompson agreed. "I have a good alibi though, and when the time comes I'll show it."

Thompson said he did not know of the Jennings murder until yesterday afternoon when he was going to the home of his mother in St. Johns.

Read Account in The Journal. On the street car he read over the shoulder of another man details of the crime as published in The Journal. He borrowed the paper and read the account. Then he went to his mother's home, at 1921 Amherst street, to assure her he was not guilty. She advised him, he said, to give himself up to the police, and he was standing on the corner, waiting for the street car to go to police headquarters when the police swooped down on him.

The detectives located Thompson through a woman with whom he is said to have been living on Forty-second avenue, in Lentz. She told them early in the afternoon that he had been at her house at noon, and told her he was going to his mother's home. The detectives at once hastened to St. Johns.

Thompson said he had known Mrs. Jennings, and that she wanted him to work for her. He was at her residence as late as last week, he said, but had not seen her nor heard from her since that time. He had been employed at the Western Co-operative Co., but last Thursday injured his thumb, received compensation for the injury, and quit the job, he said.

His statement was borne out by the fact that his thumb was still very sore from the bruising it had received. Attorney Says He Has Alibi. "All I can say now is that there will be an alibi, and it will be armor proof," said Attorney Roscoe Hurst, who was instrumental in securing Thompson's release from the penitentiary, and who has been his friend and adviser ever since.

"I cannot say now what that alibi will be. I talked with Thompson at the jail last night, and we decided to say nothing about our proof of his innocence until it is necessary. Thompson told me, however, that he can show his every movement from Monday noon down to the present time by most reliable witnesses."

Hurst went to Hillsboro to confer at greater length with Thompson today. Hurst expressed the greatest confidence in Thompson's innocence.

"While Thompson was a criminal, he is not the man who would commit that kind of a crime," said the attorney. "The killing of Mrs. Jennings was the work of a brute, a degenerate."

Ristman Had Election Cards. It was brought out today that Ristman also had some of Sheriff Hurst's campaign cards and that a similar card had been given Thompson by Deputy Sheriff Ward. A card spotted with blood was found along with Ristman's hat, sleeve and lap robe.

Last night Thompson gave Detective Show a crumpled card of Sheriff Hurst, saying: "Keep this card. It's the one Ward gave me."

Deputy Sheriff Beckman said today that Ristman had some of the sheriff's campaign cards and that there was no way to identify the bloody card as one of those formerly in Ristman's possession, or in the possession of Ristman's lone passenger on the night of the murder.

No conclusions have yet been reached as to the motives for the homicide. The robbery theory is somewhat shaken by the finding of two diamond rings and a gold watch in the Jennings home yesterday by Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson of Salem, sister of the murdered woman.

Joseph Galbreath, who had seen Mrs. Jennings as late as 7 o'clock on Monday day night, said that Thompson was at the Jennings home last Thursday. He said he had seen him on the front porch. This coincides with Thompson's story that he was at the place about a week ago.

Galbreath had been assisting Mrs. Jennings in the work on the farm and stated before the coroner's jury yesterday that he had seen the spitting sledge which had been used by the murderer in the basement of the Jennings home Monday.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jennings are being held from the residence this afternoon and interment is to be in the Winona cemetery at Tualatin.

Thompson was brought to Hillsboro by Sheriff Reeves this morning and locked up in the Washington county cell. An information charging murder will be sworn to today and he will be held to the grand jury.

The sheriff also brought the sledge with which the murder was committed, the blood-stained lap robe, torn shirt sleeve and Panama hat supposed to belong to Ristman.

The sheriff says the sledge was taken from the basement of the Jennings house and was not carried there by the murderer.
