

UNCLE SAM'S NAVY GOING TO SHOW WHAT REAL SCRAPPER IT IS

Divisional Exercises Began Monday and Will Last Until November 1.

WAR GAME SET FOR JULY

Target Practice Will Be Held on Southern Drill Ground All Through the Month of September.

Washington, May 20.—(U. P.)—The Atlantic fleet of Uncle Sam's Navy has started out to cut circles around itself to show the American people that it really can do in the way of manuevering.

The official program provides for fleet and divisional exercises off the north Atlantic coast in the vicinity of Newport, together with a war game in conjunction with the army from July 24 to 29.

Target practice will be held on the southern drill grounds from September 1 to 30, after which the fleet will be scattered to the home ports for looking and minor repairs.

After five days a joint divisional exercise will be held, the battleships of the fleet being Monday to operate singly for steaming trials and similar individual operations, after which, beginning today, the divisions of the fleet will assemble as follows:

The battleship Wyoming and First Division at Tomkinsville, the Second Division in the North river, the Third Division at Rockport and the Fourth Division at Newport.

After divisional exercises lasting for five days the divisions will return to their bases, except that the flagship and First division will go to Hampton Roads instead of Tomkinsville.

Squadron Exercises Next Month. Beginning on June 2 divisional exercises will again return to these bases on June 10, on which date the flagship and First division will return to Tomkinsville.

After five days a joint divisional exercise, from June 12 to June 17, the entire fleet will reassemble at Newport on June 17 for squadron exercises off Newport from June 19 to July 14.

The week from July 1 to 8 will be spent in the usual Fourth of July camps at Atlantic coast ports for local celebrations.

On July 8 the battleships will again mobilize at Narragansett bay and on July 10 will spend a five day period in fleet exercises.

Returning to Narragansett bay on July 12, the next four weeks will be spent at anchor for machinery overhaul, ship drills and inspections, with the exception of five days from July 14 to 19, when the divisions will operate in a war game in an assigned area. Torpedo exercises will also be held, and the mining division and destroyers will engage in joint exercises.

Tactical Exercises in August. One division of destroyers will cooperate with the army in joint operations in testing the defenses of eastern New York.

Tactical exercises of the fleet will begin again on August 7 and will continue until August 12, when the battleships will return to Narragansett bay for machinery overhauling, ship drills, coal and provisions and cordage inventories at the naval college preparatory to strategic maneuvers from August 20 to September 1, when the entire fleet will proceed to the southern drill grounds for target practice until September 30, when the fleet will disperse to the home ports.

The mining division of the fleet assembled in North River on May 15 will cruise and engage in exercises on May 22 off New Haven, on June 1 off Provincetown and on June 14 off Plymouth, Mass.

After a brief cruise at Boston this mining division will continue its exercises off Salem, Cape Ann, Gloucester and Rockport until July 1. The Vestal and Solace will base on Newport and will move according to the needs of the fleet.

Submarines to Practice. The vessels of the active destroyer flotilla upon the completion of repairs will make a reconnaissance of the New England coast, after which they will assemble at Gardner's bay and prepare to participate in the fleet operations in Narragansett bay.

The active flotilla will hold target practice in Narragansett Bay from September 1 to November 1. The reserve destroyer flotilla will continue on neutrality, aviation and naval militia duty.

From July 1 to August 30 summer submarine exercises will be held from the base at New London, during which torpedo practice, quarterly engineering runs and ocillator tests will be held.

The cruiser squadron of the Atlantic fleet will continue police and patrol duty and will join in the fleet operations and hold target practice as opportunity presents.

No schedule of docking and overhauling is prescribed by the navy department because of the uncertainty of their periods of service.

DUBLIN'S CAREER FOR MANY CENTURIES HAS BEEN STORMY

Its Legendary History, Going Back to the Third Century, Is Filled With Stories of Conflict With People Outside the Town.

From the National Geographic Society. The recent revolt in Dublin recalls many stormy episodes in the history of the Irish capital on the shores of the Irish sea, 324 miles northwest of London and less than 70 miles from Holywood, the nearest English port.

Even its legendary history, going back to the third century of the Christian era, is filled with stories of conflict, one of the earliest being a narrative of the defeat of the people of the surrounding province by the inhabitants of the town in 291.

One of the most tragic events of Dublin's early history is an echo of this hatred of the people of the country districts for those of the city. The occurrence is commemorated in Irish chronicles as the Black Monday of 1209. It was during the easter holidays of that year, strangely paralleling the time of the present revolt, that the Irish of the surrounding mountains rushed down into the valley of the Liffey river, on whose banks Dublin is situated, and while the inhabitants were celebrating the religious holiday, 600 of their number were killed.

Even in the early days the vigor with which the people of Dublin waged their internecine strife did not lessen the impetuosity with which they entered upon any conflict with a foreign invader. They tore down their walls and secured stones for their defense of their city against Edward Bruce in 1315, and when the Irish governor, who had yielded to the enemy, fell into the hands of the defenders, he practice in Narragansett Bay from September 1 to November 1.

Leader of Rebels in China Assassinated

San Francisco, May 20.—(P. N. S.)—Chun Kai Mi, a leader in the Chinese revolutionary party, and coworker of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, was assassinated in Shanghai, according to rumors in Chinatown today.

The same reports state that Dr. Tin Chau, secretary of Chun Kai Mi, has been mortally wounded. Chun held an important position of state when Dr. Sun was provisional president of China.

was brought to Dublin and starved to death. One of the most spectacular outbreaks of the sixteenth century was that led by Silken Thomas (Sir Thomas Fitzerald), a daring young nobleman who, upon hearing that his father had been beheaded in the tower of London, raised a large army and marched to the gates of Dublin, where he was admitted by the intimidated citizens.

Shortly afterward, however, when he endeavored to leave the city he found the gates locked. He made his escape, carrying with him some of the children of the city, and with these as hostages he managed to secure the release of all his followers. Subsequently this rebellion was quelled and the leaders were executed at Tyburn in 1526.

It was more than a hundred years after the death of Sir Thomas that a conspiracy to seize Dublin castle was revealed by Owen Connolly on the day before the attempt was to have been made. This was during the rebellion of 1641, and it was Connolly's information which saved Dublin for the king. Cromwell, and William III in turn visited Dublin with armed forces.

Another Fitzgerald loomed up as a factor in Irish unrest about the time of the Black Monday. He was Lord Edward Fitzgerald, a leader of the United Irishmen, who had received his military training in America, serving under Lord Rawdon in the Revolutionary war. Lord Edward was one of the most picturesque Irish leaders of the eighteenth century and his beautiful wife, the famous Pamela, was an equally appealing figure in the revolution of 1798, during which Lord Edward was captured and thrown into prison where he died of wounds received in the struggle with the officers who arrested him while in bed.

ARMENIAN MASSACRES MEAN EXTERMINATION OF THE ENTIRE PEOPLE

Correspondent of Chronicle Says It Is Believed 800,000 to 1,000,000 Perished.

MISSIONARY WORK NAUGHT

Order of Enver and His Co-Bandits Rendered Useless Fine Accomplishments of Americans.

London, May 20.—(I. N. S.)—A correspondent of the Chronicle describes the Turkish massacres in Armenia as follows:

The recent Armenian massacres, in which it is feared that from 800,000 to 1,000,000 victims have perished or are destined to perish in exile, represent the wholesale extermination of a people. That perhaps a quarter of a million escaped to Transcaucasia does not alter the fact that the Young Turks intended to make away with them en bloc, with the exception of the Armenian colonies of Constantinople, Smyrna and one or two other ports.

The reasons alleged by their executioners were that the Armenians had been incited to revolt by the entire powers, in co-operation with the Russian offensive movement; that their wholesale deportation was a measure dictated by imperative military necessity, and that repressive measures were not undertaken against the Armenians until June, when they rose in Van and other places in the war zone and joined hands with the enemy.

As a matter of fact, the deportation of Armenians from places widely removed from the theatre of war commenced as early as April, and synchronized with the system of massacre of most of the able-bodied males, so that at one blow the remainder of the population were deprived of their natural defenders.

The residue, consisting for the most part of old men, women and children, were uprooted from their homes and sent across Asia Minor the great majority on foot, until such as survived reached their destinations in the deserts of Syria. The tortured progress of these unfortunates, at the mercy of their brutal gendarme escorts or of the savage Kurdish tribes who attacked them on the road, affords one of the most poignant pages in history.

Even in normal times the Armenians' condition was altogether unendurable. They were treated as a subject and inferior race, and could get neither justice nor protection. Their only hope lay in internal reform—a vain hope, never realized in the face of determined Turkish opposition. Nor could they look for external help, as could the Greeks and Bulgars, to rescue them from Turkish tyranny.

It is not surprising, therefore, that when Turkey declared war upon the entente, the Armenians secretly prayed for the success of the allies, though they remained perfectly quiet, well knowing that any premature ebullition of sympathy would bring swift retribution. All the insurrections which took place occurred in consequence of the measures taken by the government against the Armenians. Such as escaped the massacres fled to the mountains and joined others in like case.

The Armenians of Van, when, in April, they saw massacres occurring in districts to the northwest of the lake, rose in arms in self-defense, entrenched themselves in the garden quarter of the town, and held out until the arrival of the Russians in June.

The semi-independent mountaineers in Sasun and Zeltun resisted desperately in the last, until all were exterminated. In one or two other places the Armenians, where they had arms, resisted. In all cases where such opposition was made, wholesale massacres ensued.

Elsewhere in Anatolia the Armenians only existed as scattered communities and were forced to submit to murder or deportation without any show of resistance.

In the Hamidian massacres of 1894-1896, as a rule, only the males were slain, and the Protestant and Catholic communities were spared. In the present case vast numbers of women and children were butchered or carried off to a fate worse than death, and the Protestants and Catholics shared in the common fate of their race.

The fine work done by the American churches, whose numerous schools and colleges were oases of western thought and civilization in a vast desert of ignorance and savagery, has been brought to naught at a signal from Enver and his co-bandits.

BAND OF GYPSIES ARRIVES IN AN AUTO; POLICE CALLED OUT

Apartment Houses Visited by Rovers in Their Quest for Donations of Coin.

PARTY REPUTED WEALTHY

Police Captain Moore Advises Party to Depart, at Conference Held at the Station.

Those whose duties make them inhabitants of police headquarters at Second and Oak streets gasped and rubbed their eyes and looked again at the wave of scarlet and green and pink and other bright colors that poured from under the side curtain of an automobile about noon yesterday.

The gypsies had arrived. They have been traversing the state from the south to the north, coming from California and are bound for Minneapolis. Reputed to be very wealthy, the gypsies have forsaken the painted wagons and the skinny horses and are traveling in automobiles more scared and battered than a prairie schooner.

The automobile, containing four women and a middle-aged man, reached Twentieth and Washington streets and the women began "working" the apartment houses.

In a few minutes a dozen complaints had poured into headquarters and Motorcycle Patrolman Bates was sent out. The party entered an automobile. The patrolman piloted the chauffeur to headquarters. The man was silent, but the four women talked vehemently.

"We come to town to feed the machine," exclaimed Mary, a young girl. "We not even stop, we go right through, the copper comes, we go to jail, I no tell fortunes, bother nobody. Every place we go the police come and chase us out. We've been on the run, run all time, no rest at all."

The speaker was said to be the one who was married near Roseburg a few days ago to the leader of the band. The dowry paid is said to amount to four figures.

Captain Moore told them to get their machine fixed and get out to the camp and tell the others to depart. The automobiles bear California license tags.
