

BIG LUMBER ORDERS WILL HELP OREGON; SOUTH MILLS BUSY

Southern Pine Sought by Allies Puts Oregon Fir Atop American List.

LUMBERMEN ARE HOPEFUL

Red Cross Society to Send First Aid Doctor, Dr. Lipscomb Tells West Coast Manufacturers.

Large Orders For Pine Placed. L. J. Wentworth of the Portland Lumber company reported at the monthly meeting of the West Coast Lumber Manufacturers' association, in session at the Portland hotel yesterday afternoon, that the yellow pine mills in the south have recently booked about 25,000,000 feet of special cutting business. Of this large quantity, 25,000,000 feet will go to the allies. He said the information received by him also showed considerable curtailment of production. This he concluded would have a strengthening tendency in the yellow pine prices, and reflect favorably on the manufacturers of fir in the Pacific Northwest.

Within a few weeks Portland will be the headquarters of one of the four doctors in the "first aid to the injured" service of the American Red Cross society with headquarters at Washington, D. C. It will also be the headquarters of a life-saving expert who will operate throughout the Pacific northwest.

This information was given out here yesterday afternoon by Dr. W. N. Lipscomb, field officer of the society, who has been stationed at Seattle for a year, and who during that time, has lectured on first aid to the injured and accident prevention to more than 12,000 men.

Doctor Addresses Lumbermen.

Dr. Lipscomb addressed the meeting of the West Coast Lumber Manufacturers' association in session yesterday afternoon at the Portland hotel. The address was the principal feature of the meeting, attended by men engaged in the lumber industry throughout the Pacific northwest.

Northwest Work Explained.

Oregon and Washington are given liberal treatment by the American Red Cross, for while we have 49 states to cover, we have but four doctors and one life saving expert in the service. Two of these doctors and the life saving expert will be stationed in the Pacific northwest. In addition there the Red Cross maintains two cars in this field.

The results have been shown in the reduction of the percentage of accidents in the state of Washington and the lessening of fatal results in cases of accidents. The first aid invariably prevents infection of wounds.

First Aid Emphasized.

He called attention to the fact that 90 per cent of industrial accidents are due to habitual carelessness and that much of the suffering and loss time following such accidents are due to improper care within the first few minutes after the accident occurs.

Attention was called to the fact that in the sawmill and logging camps Washington accidents had increased 60 per cent over last year owing to the large number of new and inexperienced men employed incident to the rush of industry. The same conditions were also said to apply to Oregon. The Red Cross man stressed the importance of proper and quick treatment for minor injuries. In this connection he announced 10 rules for preventing blood poisoning—a very frequent result of lumber industry accidents. The 10 rules were:

First—Every wound, no matter how small, should receive immediate attention.

Second—Never wash a wound out with water. Do not do that under any circumstances. Nature, in the bleeding process, cleanses the wound, the "washing out" drives possible infection into the system.

Third—Do not apply a handkerchief or other soiled substance to a wound.

Fourth—If a wound is beneath the clothing, cut the clothing away—but do not pull the cloth over the wound.

Fifth—Never touch an open wound with the hands for any reason whatsoever.

Sixth—Apply tincture of iodine, one-half strength, in an one-inch around a wound. It applies to all injuries except those of the eye, a burn or a bruise or exposed intestine.

Seventh—Carefully apply an absolutely sterile dressing.

Eighth—Apply dressing carefully once a day thereafter.

Ninth—If the injury becomes swollen or painful immediately summon a physician.

Tenth—Obey the other nine rules for the prevention of blood poisoning.

The lecture was listened to with close attention by the lumbermen. Members of the Oregon state industrial insurance commission and employees of that commission were present.

Grading Rules Discussed.

The proposed changes in the grading rules governing heavy timbers and the plan to adopt a definite standard for timbers were discussed. This discussion will be continued at the next monthly meeting.

Lumbermen in attendance at the meeting, in speaking of trade conditions, sounded a warning against overproduction on account of the weakness of the market.

It was also shown the past two weeks in yellow pine and the unsatisfactory weather throughout the country. The cold weather that has prevailed in the middle states has retarded activity in the building industry and thus in turn has affected the retail lumber trade.

It is expected, however, that as soon as the weather improves proposed projects in the building line will be started and will bring a revival in the demand for lumber.

Grand Jury to Hear Case Against Police

Involves Suspension of Officers Who Failed to Report Presence of Brother-Employees at Party Bailed.

The grand jury will be asked to receive today evidence concerning the "boozing party" May 23 which caused the suspension of Patrolman Charles E. Hunter, Deputy District Attorney Dech, who conducted an investigation, will bring testimony under a section of the prohibition law which penalizes public officers for failure to report violations of the law.

This action is aimed to involve not only Hunter, who has declined to turn in his star, but also E. O. Egan and Howard Blanford, special deputy constables, and B. R. McDonald, a special deputy sheriff. It will not involve C. M. Purdin, a fireman on the extra list, who was named by the young woman involved as being a member of the party.

Police Chief Will Lecture at U. of C.

Berkeley, Cal., May 27.—(P. N. S.)—August Vollmer, Berkeley's "golden rule" chief of police, has been given the new and unique additional title of "professor of criminology" by the University of California, where he will lecture at the coming summer session on "Criminology."

Chief Vollmer is not only the first police chief to have this distinction in America, but will be one of four professors in criminology in the whole world. The other three are Gross of Graz university, Austria; Ottolenghi of Rome and Reis of Paris.

DESERTED WIFE HAS WON BACK RIGHTS TO HER HOMESTEAD

Washington, May 27.—Mrs. S. Edna Harrison of Ingersoll, Or., has been made happy through speedy action secured by Congressman Sinnott on her homestead application. Deserted by her husband, their homestead before he left, with a child to provide for, and with slender means of support, she appealed to Sinnott to see what could be done to get back the homestead where for four years she had lived.

There is a provision of law whereby a deserted wife may succeed to the rights of her husband in a homestead, but in this case the husband had relinquished his rights. The land office has notified Sinnott that upon consideration of the facts in the case it will give Mrs. Harrison credit for her previous residence, cancel the relinquishment, and thus enable her to perfect the homestead.

For Reclamation Settlers.

Washington, May 27.—The senate committee on public lands has favorably reported a bill by Senator Walsh of Montana to give settlers on reclamation projects the right to enter a tract of 160 acres of land, whatever the farm unit may be on the project where they have located, by allowing him to enter additional acreage outside the project to make a 160-acre unit in all.

Another section of the bill permits those who have entered less than 160 acres of public land, not within a reclamation project, to take an additional entry of a farm unit within a project if the total area does not exceed 160 acres.

Working on Apple Exports.

Washington, May 27.—Upon inquiry at the state department, Congressman Sinnott has been informed that no definite progress can be reported as yet on the representations made to the British foreign office concerning the refusal of Great Britain to permit American apples to reach Scandinavian countries. It is stated, however, that Secretary Lansing has in preparation another note on the subject, and it is believed the influence of the British embassy here will be cast in favor of some relaxation of the rules now in force.

Complainant Is Satisfied.

Washington, May 27.—Upon receipt of information that the complainant in the case is satisfied, because of the filing of a new tariff removing the rates objected to, the Interstate Commerce commission has vacated its order suspending the log rates of the Idaho & Washington Northern Railroad company from Metairie Falls, Wash.

New Paving Broken Under First Traffic

Complaint Made That Surface on Twenty-Eighth Street Near Thurman Falls on First Train.

Complaint has been made that new paving on Twenty-eighth street, near Thurman, has broken under the weight of the first traffic permitted on it. The department of public works reports that although the street had been opened to traffic, the contract had not been accepted and will not be until defects have been corrected. Trouble is due, it was stated, to the fact that the hard surface was laid upon a fill not sufficiently settled.

Baker Druggists May Face Suit

Baker, Or., May 27.—That injunction suits with all druggists in Baker county, defendants, may be filed in the near future, seeking a court order barring the sale of ethyl alcohol for medicinal purposes without a physician's prescription, District Attorney Godwin announced today. Godwin believes such sales are unconstitutional. There are five licensed druggists in the city of Baker and 10 in the county.

12 Pupils Graduate From Redmond High

Third Largest Class in History of School Finishes; Five Teachers in Grades, Four in High School Now.

Redmond, Or., May 27.—A class of 12 was graduated Tuesday night for the Redmond high school. This is the third and largest class to be graduated. Those graduating were Ethel Wheeler, Gladys Smith, Bill Morse, Lucile Redmond, Opal Mohler, Douglas M. Harky, Irving Smith, Sam Bates, Earl Wood, Lysle Perry, James Bates and Jay Shively.

The schools close here today after a most successful year. Five teachers are now employed in the grades and four in the high school. The fact that the Redmond high school is the champion at the central Oregon district meet here last Saturday from Bend and Prineville is helping the school considerably in the move to displace the Redmond union high school which will be voted on in June.

WIDOW GIVEN A HALF INTEREST DURING LIFE IN HUSBAND'S ESTATE

Mrs. Emilie Closset Wins in Contest With Her Children Over a $300,000 Estate.

Mrs. Emilie Closset, widow of the late Joseph Closset, will receive during her life a one-half interest in all the revenue and profits of her husband's estate, valued at more than $300,000. The estate will not be partitioned among the heirs.

This was the decision of Circuit Judge Gantenbein, given yesterday afternoon, in the suit brought by Mrs. Closset against her three children who are the other heirs and the executors of the estate of which she herself is one.

Practically all of the property is income bearing. In his will, Joseph Closset provided that Mrs. Closset should elect within a year whether she would take a one-half interest in the estate or accept the provisions that he made for her. These provisions, in substance, were that the estate should be held in trust for 25 years, during which Mrs. Closset and the three children should share equally in the net revenue from the estate, and at the end of the 25 years the estate was to be divided share and share alike.

ROADS IN NATIONAL FOREST STAND POOR SHOW THIS SESSION

House Seems Averse to Incurring Any Expenditures That Can Be Avoided.

WALSH PLAN IS FAVORED

Montana Senator Would Have Government Advance Million Dollars a Year for Period of Ten Years.

Washington, May 27.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL.)—The chances are none too rosy that the present session of congress will provide funds for the construction of roads in the national forests by advancing money received from the sales of timber from the reserves.

This is true in spite of the fact that the senate has approved the plan and has placed an amendment by Senator Walsh of Montana as a rider on the good roads bill to carry out substantially the plan embraced in the Taylor road bill.

There is some question as to whether the linking of this plan with the good roads measure will be in fact of any advantage.

House Shies at Expense.

Representative Taylor, on being apprised of the passage of the good roads bill with the Walsh amendment by the senate, announced his purpose to do all he can to induce the house to accept the amendment.

The road plan has taken a new position since it left the house. It was re-written in the senate, and there is a noticeable disposition in the house to hold down new expenditures.

The forest roads plan calls for reimbursement to the government of every dollar expended under it, as the department of agriculture has insisted it should be, but even with this feature there is opposition in many quarters to advancing such a sum with an indefinite date for its return.

Hope in General Measure.

Western members who have introduced bills for outright appropriations or reimbursement from forest receipts, with particular roads in view, realize that there is little probability of success for any of these bills.

The only hope is in the passage of a general measure such as that of Taylor or the Walsh amendment to the good roads bill.

The fate of the Mount Hood road project in Oregon, to provide a connecting road from the mountain, will be decided by the success or failure of these general measures, as will also the construction of a road to the Oregon caves in Josephine county.

Outline of Walsh Plan.

The Walsh amendment provides an appropriation of $1,000,000 a year for 10 years, to be expended under direction of the secretary of agriculture for such roads as may be approved by him. It provides for return of this money by turning back 10 per cent of the receipts from timber sales in each national forest in which money is spent for roads.

The Taylor bill, which has the specific approval of the department of agriculture, differs only in the manner of reimbursement. It provides for return of the money from the sale of national forest receipts that is now paid to the states for the benefit of the counties in which the reserves are located.

At present the issue is doubtful. Rejection of the Walsh amendment in conference, or the failure of the good roads bill to which it is attached, would be a defeat not necessarily bringing in its train any other somewhat damaged prestige.

Cheaper Money for Farmer's Use Urged

A. L. Mills Addresses Oregon Society of Engineers at Library Meeting; Donbs German System Adaptability.

Oregon farmers ought to have cheaper money. This, in substance, was the message of A. L. Mills, president of the First National bank, to the Oregon Society of Engineers, at the library, last night. Mr. Mills discussed "Rural Credits" before the engineers. He told of the successful workings of the German rural credits system, but doubted if the German system would be adaptable to Oregon conditions. He outlined the draft of the measure prepared by the committee appointed by the Oregon Irrigation, Drainage and Rural Credits conference, of which he was chairman.

O. Laursgaard discussed the Jones bill, now in senate committee, as a desirable measure for national rural credits. E. G. Hopson spoke.

Will Issue Certificates

Salem, Or., May 27.—Just as soon as all the counties of Oregon make official returns on the vote of the primary election of May 19, Secretary of State Olcott will canvass the vote and issue certificates to successful delegates to the national convention and others, he said Friday. He urged that all counties which have not made returns do so at once so that delegates to the Republican national convention, scheduled for June 7, may not be delayed. The 20 days allowed for the return of the vote does not expire until June 8, but the secretary of state hopes county clerks will not wait after they have the full vote of the county. Official returns had been received Friday from 17 of the 35 counties of the state.

Salem, Or., May 27.—A conditional pardon was granted by Governor Withycombe Friday to George W. Wollette, who was committed to the state prison in November, 1915, for burning with intent to injure the insurer. His pardon was recommended by District Attorney Evans, Circuit Judge Gantenbein and Fire Marshal Stevens because of assistance he rendered the state by confessing and giving testimony.

Salem, Or., May 27.—The state emergency board made provision for isolating degenerates at the state prison, as well as repairing the damage done by the recent fire, at its session here Friday afternoon. Mrs. Closset chose to take her dower interest, which under the law is a life interest in one-half of the property left by her husband. Judge Gantenbein held it would be unwise to attempt to divide the property and so made his decision as stated above.

After Mrs. Closset began her suit for her dower interest, two of the children, Eugene Schmidt and Alfred Adolph Closset, petitioned for the removal of the cause to one of the executors of the estate on the ground that her position had become inconsistent, in that she appeared as both plaintiff and defendant in the suit.
