GODLINESS PROFITABLE TO ALL

"Godliress is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is and that which is to coine." 1 Tim., 4:8,

The genius of Christianity is service "Even the son of man is come not to be ministered unto, but to minister." He who lives not for others, lives not well. Godliness is Godliness. Those who pay the price of devotion and consecration, those who have 'searched the Scriptures" and found therein the way of life; who have been able to give a reason for the faith which they profess, are they who by their faith and conduct give the richest evidence of discipleship. As an investment, Godliness gives the largest returns of any investment ever made, for it not only affects "the life that now is, but that which is to come" as well,

Godliness pays well in the coin of the realm. Business honesty is as great an asset as business thrift. The shortest route to business honesty is through the gate of moral integrity. Nor is the least asset of Godliness good health, for Godliness anticipates good cheer, confidence and a perennial happiness. As such it makes a positive life,
