HAPEENINGS IN SOCIETY

MISS NANCY ZAN

MISS DAPHNA BARTLETT

By Nona Lawler.

SOCIETY maids and matrons are all taken up in the mad whirl of the charity movie, "Veda, the Vampire," which is rehearsing at all hours of the day. Summer weather, too, brought many affairs into favor during the past week, and caused a new impetus to the warring season.

Among the larger affairs of the week were the dance which Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ayer gave Thursday for their niece, Miss Margaret Ayer, at their residence in North Nineteenth street. The gardens, which are exceptionally beautiful, were illuminated, and presented a setting of fairy loveliness for the daintily clad maidens. About 100 guests, including the belles and beaux of the debutante set, were present.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Cotton were also hosts at a dancing party Thursday evening, when they entertained for the married set with an Informa. barn dance at their country place near Gresham. Their guests were the most part members of the Monday Night Dancing club. Flannels and sport clothes were the order of the evening.

Several congenial groups of the guests gathered at various downtown restaurants, some at the University club, for dinner before motoring out to the Cottons'. One of the parties was presided over by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Branch Riley, their guests being Mr. and Mrs. C. Edward Grell, Dr. and Mrs. Otis B. Wright and Rodney L. Glisan.

The first rehearsals for the society movie feature which is to be given next month for charity, took place Tuesday morning on Portland Heights and in the afternoon at the William MacMaster residence, Ardour, near the Waverley Country club. Mrs. Donald Green (Dorothy Morrison), daintily little Miss Clementine Lewis, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Allen Lewis, and Miss Harriet Cumming were in the first picture taken at the MacMaster residence, and in the second picture were Miss Cumming and Varnel Beach, playing the ingenue and juvenile parts. They presented a sweetheart scene in the garden, Mr. Beach reading love sonnets to his rapt listener, who caller interrupts them, calling from a distance, Miss Cumming jumps to her feet, but Mr. Beach, who is Jack in the play, claims a kiss before her departure.

On Wednesday the most thrilling pictures were taken, for crowds of people watched the proceedings following the actors from place to place. In the morning pictures of the mysterious Veda, the vampire who upsets all the families and plans in a small town of the play, were taken at the home of Mrs. Helen Ladd Corbett. At 1:30, Leland L. Smith, the bridegroom, began searching for Veda, with whom he has fallen hopelessly in love. In front of Meier & Frank's he watched all the shoppers and especially the group of young matrons and girls who were expected to be in the picture.

They included Mrs. E. C. Meers, Mrs. Guy Menefee Standifer, Mrs. Frank Gilbert Owen, Mrs. Hallett Winslow Maxwell, Mrs. Everett Ames, Mrs. Hazel Blumauer Litt, Miss Genevieve Brooke, Miss Sara McCully, Miss Louise Caswell, Miss Cornelia Cook, Miss Alice Gilman, Miss Jean Morrison, Miss Antonette Meers, Miss Gretchen Kioesterman, Miss Yvonne Guthrie, Miss Julia Guthrie, Miss Dorothy Strawbridge, Miss Clementine Lambert, Miss Ivelin Shea and Miss Sally Hart. Before going shopping the merry group of actors and actresses went to the home of Mrs. Helen Ladd Corbett to be made up for the scene. Since the groom could not find Veda shopping with the others, he went on to the Y. M. C. A. and later to Twelfth and Washington streets, with a crowd of actresses and a mob of other people following him. After holding up a chauffeur and demanding that he find Veda, the groom left for the station where he sat down disconsolately on the curbing, where the photographer took another picture of him. All this rushing hither and yon means of course that everyone must give up endless time to the movies, but the younger set is thoroughly enjoying every phase of the acting and the making up and the running about.

On Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock or thereabouts a breakfast scene was taken at the home of Mrs. Corbett with the bride, most despondently nibbling the breakfast brought to her by her fond mother, and a group of girl friends cheering her up, and weeping sympathetically.

On Thursday morning scenes at "Mr. Seaman's" farm, the Henry Ladd Corbett home, were taken, showing Mr. Seaman's rushing hither and yon means of domestic lines and his awakening desire to be a benedict instead of a bachelor. Later pictures were taken at the Waverley Country club showing the "Love Birds" scene in which the little children of families of the Rivera district figured prominently. On Friday, the actors left Mrs. Helen Ladd Corbett's home early in the morning, going to the city park and Macleay park, and yesterday more scenes were taken at the MacMaster home. Those who took part in the picture on Friday and Saturday were: Mrs. Donald Green, Miss Harriet Cumming, Miss Clementine Lambert, Miss Dorothy Strawbridge, Larnel Beach, Stanley Adams and Veda.

Miss Ellen Low Mills and Rogers McVeagh were married Friday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents, Mrs. and Mrs. A. L. Mills, at 416 o'clock, Bishop Walter T. Sumner was the officiating minister and only members of the Mills family were present. The bride and bridegroom stood unattended. The bride was charmingly gowned in a girlish white lace frock and wore her mother's wedding veil. She carried a lovely shower bouquet of spray orchids and lilies of the valley. The house was decorated with a profusion of flowers and greenery.

Mrs. McVeagh is a charming and popular girl in the younger set of social society. She has devoted most of her time to out-of-door sports and is an exceptionally good equestrienne. She is one of the most prominent families of the city. Her father, A. L. Mills, is president of the First National bank, and Mrs. Mills is daughter of the late C. H. Lewis, one of the foremost pioneers of the state. Mr. McVeagh is of distinguished parentage. He is the grandson of Wayne

MISS HARRIET CUMMING

McVeagh of Philadelphia, who was attorney general in President Garfield's cabinet, and an uncle, Franklin McVeagh, was secretary of the treasury in Taft's administration. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McVeagh of New Hampshire, and again his mother claims distinction as the author of "Fountains of Papal Rome." Mr. McVeagh is a Harvard graduate, class '10, and has been with the law firm of Deal, Minor & Winfree during his several years' residence in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. McVeagh have left for a month's sojourn in the eastern cities, after which they will be at home to their friends in Portland.

In compliment to Miss Susan Cheney, the attractive young subdebutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cheney, Mrs. S. W. Arnold and Miss Ann Hibler entertained with a dancing party at Mrs. Arnold's beautiful new home, Forest Hill, on the Columbia highway, at Bridal Veil. Sixty young people of the school set motored out for a buffet supper and dancing was arranged for the evening.

Miss Sallie Lewis is being welcomed home from New York, where she maintains a winter residence, and is domiciled at her home at Nineteenth and Glisan streets for the summer. Her sister, Mrs. Emma Bingham, has come east for an extended stay and is now visiting at Washington, D. C.

For Mrs. George W. Boschke of San Francisco, Mrs. John F. Twoby gave a prettily appointed tea Tuesday afternoon at her Irvington residence on East Twenty-fourth street. About 30 guests, for the most part old-time friends of the honor guest, were bidden, and presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Roger B. Sinnott and Mrs. Horace Luckett. The rooms were most artistically arranged with clusters of blue delphinium and lupin.

Many charming affairs are being given for Mrs. Boschke, who formerly made her home here. Her daughter, Mrs. Guy Standifer, with whom she is staying, will entertain for her cabinet, and an uncle, Franklin McVeagh, was secretary of the treasury in Taft's administration. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McVeagh of New Hampshire, and again his mother claims distinction as the author of "Fountains of Papal Rome." Mr. McVeagh is a Harvard graduate, class '10, and has been with the law firm of Deal, Minor & Winfree during his several years' residence in Portland.

Monday evening at their Irvington residence in Tillamook street Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis Mead entertained with one of the largest and most elaborately appointed receptions of the season, the occasion being their fifteenth wedding anniversary. They received in a veritable garden of flowers, the gifts of their guests, and about the rooms were clever and elaborate crystal decorations, carrying out the idea of the crystal wedding. Lace-like chains of little crystal icicles were fastened among the flowers over the chandeliers and doorways. Mrs. Mead received in a handsome imported gown of white satin and silver brocade made en traine, over a silk lace petticoat, fastened with cascades of the ruffled lace, and bodice of crystal beaded net. She carried a huge bride's bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Mabel Williams, who was her bridesmaid, stood with the bride and bridegroom. At 9 o'clock the Wilder string orchestra, which played in the upper hallway during the evening, played the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," and the bridal couple of 15 years ago marched through the rooms to the dining room, where Mrs. Mead cut a huge bride's cake.

More than 200 guests called between the hours of 8:30 to 11 o'clock. Little Grace Wells received the cards at the door, and those who assisted the hostess about the rooms were: Mrs. Andrew T. Powers, H. W. Wells, Mrs. W. B. Fechtelner and Miss Sallie Patrick. Presiding at the punchbowl were Misses Marie and Helen Haller, Margaret Porter and Alberta Bair, the latter two, Misses Porter and Bair, are just being welcomed home from school in the east.

A buffet supper was served from the dining room, where the decorations of pink sweet peas arranged in an artistic basket were particularly effective.

Miss Vella Winner entertained most delightfully Monday afternoon with an Informa. at the Benson hotel. The party was held in the ball room, honoring Mrs. Edison E. Scanton, who with her husband, Lieutenant Scanton, commander of the U. S. S. Marblehead, recently came here to make Portland their home. Lieutenant Scanton is a cousin of Miss Winner. About 60 guests called from 4 until 6 o'clock. The decorations were most artistic and in harmony with the draperies of the room, in bright pink roses and a profusion of maiden hair fern. Mrs. Frank J. Durham and Mrs. George H. Thomas presided at the tea and coffee urns and a heavy of girls from the State university who recently returned from Eugene for their summer vacation, assisted. They included: The Misses Bernice Lucas, Myrtle Smith, Beulah Hayes, Ruth Fraley, Vivien Pallette and Marian Coffee.

Features of the afternoon's entertainment were the violin solos by Master Louis Kaufman and soprano solos by Miss Zella-Knox. Mrs. Frank Eichenlaub accompanied Master Kaufman and Miss Lillie Hansen accompanied Miss Knox.

Mrs. William F. Stewart of Los Angeles, accompanied by her children, has arrived to pass the summer with her mother, Mrs. Anna M. McGinn. Mrs. Stewart is a sister of Mrs. John F.

Shea, Miss Edith McGinn, Judge Henry E. McGinn and Everett McGinn. Her visit here among her many old-time Portland friends will doubtless be filled with smart social affairs.

Mrs. J. C. Elliott King entertained with a most delightful garden party Friday afternoon at her home in Mount Tabor, asking the members of the Delta Gamma sorority to meet Mrs. Thornton Munger, a recent bride.
